DETAILS OF SUBWAY COMPROMISE PLAN

B. R. T. UP TO 59TH STREET

It Would Keep Coney Island and Get Richmond—Wide Brooklyn Sweep for Interborough—Would Divide Queens.

Ex-Controller Edward M. Grout, a former law partner of Mayor Gaynor, made public yesterday the details of the compromise subway plan about which Bridge Commissioner Kingsley Martin went to see Col. T. S. Williams, President of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company several days ago, and to which Col. Williams referred with some hostility in his letter of May 23 to William G. Morrissey.

The plan, Mr. Grout asserts, was suggested to the Mayor by himself because of his interest in the city's transit lines, growing out of the fact that six or seven years ago he was a member of the Rapid Transit Commission, and of the committee which laid out the major part of the routes provided for in the proposed plan. He declares that he represents neither the Interborough nor the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, has no direct interest in either, and that the plan he brought to the Mayor's attention, and at the Mayor's direction had put on paper, is in no sense a compromise as Col. Williams used the word in his letter to Mr. Morrissey.

The fact bore in upon Mr. Grout and a number of other citizens, he explains, that while the Interborough Company had asked for what it wanted, and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company had asked for what it wanted, no one had, first of all, consulted the city, the owner of the subways, the most interested corporation from every viewpoint, as to what it wanted, and what would serve it best. Mr. Grout and others thought it much better, starting with the needs of the city in rapid transit, to work out a plan which would most nearly meet those needs.

With this idea he went to Bridge Commissioner Martin, who is generally regarded as the Mayor's personal adviser on subway matters. From the Commissioner, to whom the plan appealed, he went to see Borough President McAneny, Chairman of the Board of Estimate Committee now considering the two opposing subway offers. Finally he unfolded the suggestion to the Mayor himself.

The Mayor heard him with close attention, and requested Mr. Grout to see Commissioner Martin again, getting him to draw on a map of the city the proposed allotment of territory between the two companies, likewise showing wherein each company's service would overlap into the other's general field.

This Mr. Martin, with the assistance of the Bridge Department's engineer, Mr. Ingersoll, did after a number of conferences with Mr. Grout. That map, with further explanation of the plan involved, was later shown to the Mayor, who, it is understood, appeared to be attracted by it, and also to President Shonts and President Williams.

A Central Distributing Section.

The compromise plan makes the business heart of Manhattan below Fifty-ninth Street the common ground for both Interborough and Brooklyn Rapid Transit, with the advantage on the side of the Interborough. It makes the business heart of Brooklyn the common ground for both competing lines, with the advantage on the side of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit. The territory between Fifty-ninth Street in Manhattan and a semi-circular line drawn to inclose the business section of Brooklyn is conceived as the great central distributing section of the city, to which all traffic converges and from which, at stated hours, it flows. Both companies, therefore, are made feeders for this territory, bringing the crowds in to the offices and shopping sections and taking them out again.

The Interborough appears as master of the situation in Manhattan and the Bronx, as, from this company's existing lines, both elevated and sub-surface, in the opinion of Mr. Grout and others, it is in a position to serve these boroughs more efficiently than it would be practicable for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit to do. In the same way, the bulk of the traffic in Brooklyn and Richmond will fall to the share of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit. Queens, under the plan, would be divided between the two, the northern section, embracing the thickly settled sections about Corona and between Corona and Manhattan, and about Astoria, being reached by the Interborough, and certain territory beyond the limits of Brooklyn as far as Jamaica coming into the natural field of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit.

What the Interborough Would Get.

The Interborough, under the plan, would construct the extensions in the Bronx it now seeks to construct. It would also construct its proposed line from the Harlem River down Lexington Avenue to Forty-second Street, and likewise from Fifty-ninth Street down Seventh Avenue to the Battery, this line connecting with the present Subway at Times Square, and passing the Pennsylvania Station. It would also construct a line from Astoria to Queensboro Bridge, over the bridge, and under Fifty-ninth Street to connect with the proposed Seventh Avenue extension. Another Interborough line, with a terminal at Corona, would come through the Belmont Tunnel and connect with the existing Subway at the Grand Central Station. In this manner the Interborough "H" in Manhattan would be complete, with cross-connections at both Fifty-ninth and Forty-second Streets.

With the exception of a return line from Brooklyn under Fourteenth Street to Seventh Avenue, this would complete the Interborough extensions in Manhattan contemplated in the compromise plan. The plan further contemplates, of course, the third tracking of the Interborough's east side elevated lines which it so much wishes to accomplish.

In Brooklyn, the plan involves for the Interborough the extension of the existing Subway from Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues out Flatbush Avenue and Eastern Parkway to Utica Avenue, through Utica Avenue to Stuyvesant Avenue, under Stuyvesant Avenue to Bushwick Avenue, and under Bushwick Avenue and several short extension streets to a point in Williamsburg opposite Fourteenth Street, Manhattan, and finally under the river to Fourteenth Street, thus completing half a circle, and connecting with the existing Subway at Fourteenth Street and Union Square, and the proposed Seventh Avenue extension four blocks further west.

While not shown on the accompanying map, the plan makes possible an extension of the Interborough line from a point on Bushwick Avenue to connect with the Belmont Tunnel-Corona line, and then with the Astoria-Queensboro Bridge line, which, in turn, taps the New York, New Haven & Hartford connecting line. By the use of such extensions, it is argued, one could go from an outlying point in East Brooklyn to the Bronx without passing through the length of Manhattan, and thus save much time.

OSBORN FIGHT WIDENS.

Governor's Friends Decline to Attend Dinner to Which He Wasn't Asked.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., May 26.—The snub administered to Gov. Osborn by the alumni of the Detroit College of Law in failing to invite him to the annual dinner of the association, which was held to-night, has resulted in widening the breach between the Osborn and anti-Osborn factions in the Republican Party. Gov. Osborn's friends already have had their revenge. They boycotted the dinner. Though 150 plates were guaranteed and ordinarily that number of tickets would have been taken up days before the event was to take place, less than a hundred had been sold late this afternoon.

Judge-elect E. T. Vansile, who leaves the Prosecutor's office for the Circuit bench, was the guest of honor. He is one of the Faculty of the college and very popular. He is also a close friend of Gov. Osborn. But this latter fact did not deter the friends of the Governor from staying away from the banquet.

The ire of the lawyers was excited by the vetoing by the Governor of a bill repealing the law which provides that Justices of the Supreme Court must reside in Lansing and in his veto message scoring the jurists for violating the law. The lawyers who had taken up the task of relieving the Justices from the burden of this statute had been assured by the Governor that he would sign the bill.

WAS VON PHUL MURDERED?

ST. LOUIS, May 26.—Friends of S. Louis Von Phul, who was shot in the Brown Palace Hotel in Denver Wednesday night by Harold F. Henwood of New York, declare Von Phul was a victim of a conspiracy and that he was lured to his death.

Joseph A. Murphy, brother-in-law of Von Phul, to-night wired to the prosecuting attorney at Denver saying that Von Phul's death "was the result of a carefully worked out conspiracy hatched in St. Louis and carried out at a place where the murderer would have tremendous and interested wealth behind him."

In his message Murphy goes on to say he has been asked by wealthy residents of St. Louis to use every means possible to vigorously prosecute Henwood. His message concludes:

"We have no wish to drag any one down, particularly a woman, but Mr. Von Phul was not a barroom fighter or a drunkard, and his friends are determined that his memory shall not live in the public's mind as having met his fate in a barroom brawl. We believe we can furnish you with information that will be invaluable, and ask that you hold Henwood without bail until we can take the matter up with you."

Von Phul was a member of one of the oldest and most aristocratic families in St. Louis.

STRIKERS HURT IN A RIOT.

Seven in Hospital After an Assault on Fifteen Strikebreakers.

Fifteen strikebreakers employed by the H. P. & H. F. Wilson Company of 577 Tenth Avenue, manufacturers of baling wire, were assaulted yesterday afternoon as they were leaving the factory. Seven of their assailants were beaten with clubs and then arrested and locked up at the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station on charges of assault and causing a riot.

The strikebreakers were being worsted when the reserves from the West Forty-seventh Street and West Thirty-seventh Street Police Stations appeared, though the seven strikers hurt had bad scalp wounds, and two ambulances were summoned for them from the Flower Hospital.

Two strikers, who it is alleged were in the melee but escaped uninjured, were also taken into custody. The nine described themselves as Hugh Hassan of 438 West Thirty-eighth Street, Henry Ekzoolan of 457 West Fortieth Street, Handy Ali of 439 West Thirty-eighth Street, George Bedwyan of 436 West Forty-fifth Street, Charles Takesian of 459 West Fortieth Street, Monad Ali of 442 West Thirty-ninth Street, Charles Fenergian of 536 West Forty-fifth Street, Simon Puran of 536 West Forty-fifth Street, and Morris Manchen of 436 West Forty-sixth Street.

They were arraigned before Magistrate Krotel last night in the Men's Night Court and held in $500 bail.

OIL TRUST MAY FIGHT ON.

Expected to Ask the Supreme Court for Rehearing of Dissolution Suit.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The closing hours of the present term of the Supreme Court of the United States are being watched for some move on the part of the Standard Oil attorneys to stay the dissolution of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, in accordance with the court's decision that it violated the Sherman anti-trust law. In practically every big case before the court in years a motion has been made by the losing side for a rehearing, and many expect that the Standard Oil Company will pursue the usual course. As the court adjourns on Monday until next October, the effect of a motion for rehearing, even if not granted, eventually might be far-reaching.

The pendency of a motion during the Summer would stay the issuance of the court's mandate directing the United States Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Missouri to dissolve the combination. Already the Supreme Court has given the corporation six months after the mandate reaches the lower court in which to dissolve.

If the issuance of the mandate is thus delayed until next October, the dissolution need not become effective until probably April, 1912.

President Taft and Attorney General Wickersham have not taken up the question of criminal proceedings against Standard Oil officials. The President expects to wait until the oil company dissolves under the court's decree before he considers any further Government action. It is probable that future proceedings will be contingent upon the way in which the Standard obeys the Supreme Court's orders.

FAST TRAIN IN PERIL.

Derailed Tender on New Haven Road Dragged 500 Feet.

WEST CORNWALL, Conn., May 26.—Rushing along at sixty miles an hour the New York express over the Berkshire Division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, with passengers aboard for Canaan, Lenox, and Pittsfield, was brought to a stop on the edge of a ditch this afternoon, by brakes set by Engineer Harry Grant after the tender had been derailed by a broken journal.

In the chair car the seventeen passengers had the impression that the express had struck an automobile at the so-called "school house crossing," a mile south of Lime Rock Station. Instead they found that the derailed tender had torn up the roadbed for 500 feet. The chains which held the tender to the engine were strong enough to hold, and in the opinion of railroad men this alone prevented the tender from breaking loose and dragging the coaches into the ditch.

The disabled tender was sidetracked and a train came down from Canaan which took the passengers from the express and carried them to their destinations. The line was blocked for several hours.

LORIMER MAY RESIGN TO SAVE HIS FRIENDS

Rumored in Washington That He Thus Plans to Forestall a New Investigation.

LA FOLLETTE ENDS ATTACK

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Protracted debate on the various resolutions pending for the reopening of the Lorimer case prevented the Senate from reaching a vote this afternoon, and the matter went over accordingly till Monday. Talk from all sides on the floor indicated pretty plainly, however, that the Senate would vote unanimously to order the Committee on Privileges and Elections to reopen the investigation and report its findings.

The overwhelming sentiment in the Senate in favor of reopening the case, and the definite directions contained in the resolution ordering the committee to trace the corruption to its ultimate sources, has revived the report that in order to save his friends—both in and out of Congress—Senator Lorimer will resign. He is now in Chicago attending the marriage festivities of his daughter, but those here who are closest to him say that he will never resign.

The talk of his resignation, however, is well based on the logic of the situation. If there has been corruption, the very men who aided Mr. Lorimer's election to the Senate are those who have most to gain in heading off the investigation before it reaches their trail. The reasoning here is that if they were able to put Mr. Lorimer into the Senate they will be able to force his retirement if it appears that his continuance under fire may jeopardize them.

Senator Lorimer's resignation would of course end the jurisdiction of the Senate and the investigation would stop at once. The same argument in a less degree is true in regard to Mr. Lorimer's friends in the Senate. They seem to be rapidly deserting him as it is, but there are some who rejoice in being excused from the embarrassment of voting for him a second time and yet are not willing to vote against him.

Mr. Lorimer must be aware of a silent pressure from these for his resignation. It is pointed out that in a speech denouncing his enemies for persecution and placing him contrary to the Constitution in double jeopardy, Mr. Lorimer could make almost a graceful retreat, and as his resignation would end the matter no opportunity would be offered for the reply that could easily be made to the charge of double trial.

Mr. La Follette concluded his four-day set speech on the case after talking for nearly three hours this afternoon, but announced that he would have something more to say on Monday in reply to the speeches his observations aroused. Mr. La Follette also said that when the voting stage is reached he will so change his resolution as to provide that the Senate shall elect an investigating committee of five from among the new Senators.

Senator La Follette was followed by Mr. Bailey of Texas, the leading defender of Mr. Lorimer in the last session, who repeated on the floor what he had said in party caucus yesterday, that every Democrat in the Senate believed in the light of new evidence that the case should be retired. If the evidence showed fraud, he said, he and his colleagues would be the first to vote for Mr. Lorimer's expulsion. Mr. Dillingham of Vermont, Chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, stated the same thing for the Republicans. That leaves the personnel of the Investigating Committee the only point to be settled.

"In view of the evidence said to be freshly discovered," said Mr. Bailey, "and in view of the resolution adopted by the Illinois Legislature, every Democrat favors further inquiry into the election of William Lorimer.

"That was our feeling before the Senator from Wisconsin's extended remarks and that is still our feeling. If the existence of the new evidence is established the Senate owes it to itself and to the country to hear it. But it is upon this new evidence that we base our vote, not upon dissatisfaction with the work of the old sub-committee.

No Demand for Testimony.

"It was no fault of theirs that witnesses concealed facts before them and imparted it elsewhere. The Senator from Wisconsin, I may add, is wrong as to the popular sentiment on this matter. Clamor is not sentiment. On the day we voted on the Lorimer case last session only fourteen copies of the testimony had been withdrawn for circulation from the folding room, and to this day there are 631 copies left out of an original print of 736 copies."

"The real question the new evidence has brought out," said Mr. Borah, an Idaho insurgent, "is that if money was paid for the election of Lorimer, it was paid by people who though they were purchasing an interest in his seat. It is the gabble of idiots to assume that business men, who know for what purpose every $10 goes, should have put up $100,000 for a seat in which they did not expect an interest.

"It may be true that these business men, sitting in their clubs in a social way, talked of the imaginary bribery of legislators as an intellectual recreation, or they may have boasted of crimes which unhappily they have never had an opportunity to commit. But this is not likely, and they should be forced to tell what they meant by their talk. Our institutions are at stake. Some people are thinking that representative government has failed; that there are only two motives influencing the minds of men in high places, the motives of grand and petit larceny."

Senator La Follette pointed out that it was a deeply significant fact that for seventy years after this Government was established the Senate had never been humiliated by a call to investigate a charge of corruption in the election of one of its members. Since that time eleven Senators have been required to defend themselves against the charge of bribery.

Cites Past Bribery Cases.

"A study of the ten bribery cases tried here in recent years," said Mr. La Follette, "discloses the growing tendency toward the establishing of precedents which make it increasingly difficult to convict, excepting in cases where the proof is overwhelming and notorious. The decision in the Lorimer case makes another of those unfortunate precedents. In some respect it stands alone—a lurid page in the history of lowered Senatorial standards.

"The abolition of caucuses and conventions and the nomination of all candidates by direct vote, the election of United States Senators by direct vote, the nomination of Presidential candidates by direct vote, the initiative, the referendum, and the recall—all these are but the logical outcome of the betrayal of public trust by public officials.

"Is it wise, is it just to the committee that it should conduct its proceedings under a fire of criticism and public suspicion all that time? Will it conduce to the judicial poise and calm which in fairness to the public, the Senate and the accused, should characterise the proceedings of any committee that investigates this Lorimer case? Could a committee under such circumstances do its best work?

"Whatever the committee may report, their action will be misjudged. If they should decide for Lorimer again, will the public think that it is a fair and unbiased judgment? Will it be satisfied? If they should reverse their former judgment, will the public believe that they do so from conviction?"

MOTOR CYCLE KILLS MRS. MARY PARMELE

RETURNING FROM MRS. IVES'S

Stepped Back to Avoid a Car and Met Death from a Slow-Going Cyclist —Wrote Short Histories.

Mrs. Mary Platt Parmele, widow of Theodore W. Parmele, and an extensive contributor of articles on philosophy and stories to reviews and magazines, was killed last night by being run down by a motorcycle at Sixth Avenue and Forty-ninth Street.

Mrs. Parmele, who was 70 years old, was returning to her home at 68 West Forty-ninth Street after a visit to a Sixth Avenue drugstore when the accident occurred. She was convalescing from an attack of pneumonia, and was still weak from her illness, but in spite of this she went out unattended. She had paid a visit to Mrs. Brayton Ives at 32 West Forty-ninth Street, and had then called at the drugstore. After leaving this, Mrs. Parmele turned her steps homeward.

She was about to cross Sixth Avenue when a motorcycle, ridden by William Herrman, a young electrician living at 246 West Fifty-first Street, came down the avenue. Herrman saw Mrs. Parmele, and tooted his horn several times to give warning of his approach.

At the same instant, however, a street car was also coming south, nearly abreast of the motor cycle. According to the version of the accident obtained by the police, when Mrs. Parmele had reached a point in the street where she would have been safe from the motor cycle, she saw the car and hastily turned back, directly into the path of the motor cycle. She was thrown to the pavement when struck by the cycle, and in falling her head struck the pavement heavily. She was carried unconscious into the drug store at the corner by Patrolman Butler, aided by citizens. Butler sent a call for an ambulance to Flower Hospital and Dr. Baer responded.

Mrs. Parmele was dead when the doctor arrived, and he returned to his hospital with an empty ambulance. Mrs. Parmele's body was taken to the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station.

Herrman, the cyclist, when the accident happened, was thrown to the street, but he had not been going very fast and was unhurt. His first thought was for the aged woman he had injured. He shouted for assistance and was partly responsible for the quick appearance of Policeman Butler. Herrman was much affected by the accident, but rendered all the help he could to the policeman and others who had picked Mrs. Parmele up. He went to the police station with Butler, together with some witnesses of the accident.

To Coroner Winterbottom, who was called to the station, Herrman said he had been going as slowly as possible.

In this he was corrobated by several persons who had seen the accident. The Coroner paroled Herrman in the custody of Thomas Brown of 164 West Forty-sixth Street.

It was learned that Mrs. Parmele was rather deaf. This may have been the cause of her ignoring Herrman's signals. She lived with Mrs. J. J. Tierney at 68 West Forty-ninth Street, having one servant to attend to her needs. She had many friends, prominent in social life, who often visited her, and with whom she was a great favorite. Among these was Mrs. Brayton Ives.

Mrs. Parmele was born in Albany, N. Y., on July 14, 1843, and was educated in this city. She was a daughter of Judge Zephaniah Platt. Her first husband was A. J. Agnew and her second Theodore W. Parmele. She had been a frequent contributor to reviews and magazines since 1802, and was the author of a series of short histories, including France, England, the United States, Germany, Spain, Russia, and Italy.

AUTO KILLS BOY AT PLAY.

Eleven-year-old Albert Lauson was killed last night in front of his home, 109 West Eighty-ninth Street, by an automobile driven by J. B. Bonsal of 160 West Seventy-eighth Street. Bonsal at once reported at the West 100th Street Station where he was paroled by Coroner Winterbottom.

The boy was playing ball with his brother Edward, and in pursuing the ball, ran in the path of the car. Bonsal tried to stop, but it struck the boy. The chauffeur put the unconscious lad in the car and drove full speed to St. Luke's Hospital, where physicians said he was dead.

URGE ANNOYER'S ARREST.

Women Induce Mrs. Goldberg to Press a Complaint.

Twenty or more women stood outside the West Side Bank, Thirty-fourth Street and Eighth Avenue, late yesterday afternoon and urged Mrs. E. Goldberg of 324 East Fifty-first Street, to insist that Patrolman Dailey arrest Patrick O'Connor, a carpenter, of 426 West Thirty-fifth Street, who, she said, had annoyed her.

The women were indignant, and their spokesman said to Mrs. Goldberg:

"Madam, it is your duty to have this man arrested. We saw him annoying you. It is this class of man that makes it impossible for respectable women to walk on the street without annoyance."

Mrs. Goldberg finally agreed to press the complaint against O'Connor, who thereupon was locked up in the West Thirty-seventh Street Station charged with disorderly conduct and intoxication. Mrs. Goldberg, who had been shopping, said the man followed her several blocks. To get rid of him she got on a Thirty-fourth Street car, but he jumped on also, she said, and squeezed himself in by her side. She moved, but he followed her from seat to seat.

She got off the car at Eighth Avenue, and O'Connor also got off. Then she ran to Patrolman Dailey, but he would not arrest the man unless she made a complaint. Mrs. Goldberg did not want to do so at first, but the others persuaded her to.

FLAMES SWEEP CONEY ISLAND

TOWER FALLS IN CRASH

INCUBATOR BABIES KILLED

Manager Gumpertz Orders Animals Shot—Flames Spread and Reach to Feltman's.

Like the fire of four years ago which, starting at the west end of the Bowery at Coney Island, burned out Steeplechase Park and all the surrounding amusement enterprises, a blaze started in Dreamland Park at Coney Island some time after midnight last night and, feeding on the flimsy woodwork and paper mache structures which enclose the park, it gained good headway before it was discovered at 2:10 o'clock.

The fire caused the death of six babies which have been on exhibition in the Infant Incubator Show, near the West Eighth Street entrance. Sergt. Klinck of the Coney Island Station thought of the babies as soon as he learned of the fire, and made a dash for the incubator show. He got in and managed to get three of the tiny children out, only to find that all three had been suffocated to death.

The flames spread with such rapidity that Klinck could not get into the building again after having left it with the last of the three infants, and it is known that at least three other infants were left within the structure.

The fire was seen then near the West Eighth Street entrance to the park, which is less than 100 yards from the Coney Island engine house. It was seen first in Hell Gate. Apparatus and men were on the scene in an instant, and streams of water were got on the flames without the loss of a moment. But the few streams which Coney Island's engine could throw made no impression on the steadily mounting fire.

The animals in the show of Capt. Joseph Ferrari seemed to be aware that the park was on fire as soon as any of their keepers. They began to howl at the top of their lungs, and Capt. Ferrari at first tried to get them into traveling cages and out of the park. He was engaged in this work with all of his trainers and keepers when the police warned him of the danger of taking the animals out. He decided then to leave them to their fate rather than risk trying to get them out where there was danger that they would get loose in the crowd.

It is a long way to the island from any other engine house, and before other apparatus arrived the whole end of the park opposite West Eighth Street was in flames. A second alarm and then a third and a fourth were turned in in rapid succession, the last bringing Acting Chief Kenlon in his automobile.

Although Coney Island opened for the season last Saturday, many showmen were already there for the Summer, and these hurried from their beds as the flames lit up the sky. Soon a crowd of several thousand persons gathered in Surf Avenue opposite the West Eighth Street entrance and opposite the big entrance where Creation is shown, for through the entrances good views could be obtained of the leaping flames inside.

The reserves of the Coney Island station were routed out of bed and hurriedly formed fire lines, cutting off Surf Avenue from the beginning of the Parkway to the other side of Dreamland. The crowd were herded outside this area.

More apparatus arrived momentarily until the full complement of engines, tenders and trucks which respond to four alarms, were gathered outside the park. Fire boats were reported on their way to the Dreamland pier from their station in the waters nearer Manhattan.

The blaze of the paint-covered wood threw a glow into the sky, and the rumbling and clanging of engines on their way to the blaze awoke residents of all the adjoining sections of outer Brooklyn. Soon automobile parties, most of the folk in heavy coats thrown over night clothes, began to appear on Ocean Parkway. They were stopped from approaching any nearer to the fire, but from this vantage point the view was like one of the old-time Pain firework spectacles at Manhattan Beach.

The flames, fanned by a good breeze, spread out to the tower, which rises high above all else in Dreamland, and began to climb up this structure of lathing and light wood. They licked around the white paint with which the structure was covered, and each moment mounted higher up its sides, until presently the tower glowed out against the black of the night sky like some huge bonfire.

At 3:15 o'clock the fire had spread as far west as Feltman's, and streams were being turned on this, keeping it constantly wet down in the hope of saving it. The Giant Roller Coaster next to Dreamland, which was to have opened to-day, caught fire three times, but the firemen managed to put out the blaze.

Deputy Chief Lally declared then that the fire threatened to become the worst that the island had ever experienced. The flames were spreading rapidly north, south, and west. To the south the ocean presented a bar. It was traveling westward at good speed, however, and momentarily was creeping nearer to Surf Avenue, across which is the Brighton Beach terminal.

FEARS FOR AUSTRIAN RULER.

Disquieting Reports of Francis Joseph's Health Continue.

VIENNA, May 26.—Disquieting reports concerning the health of the Emperor Francis Joseph continue in circulation. It is admitted semi-officially that the doctors insist on the necessity of a considerable change in his Majesty's ordinary customs, and in order to spare himself from official duties and to avoid the danger from extremes of temperature, he may be obliged to abandon his annual visit to Ischl and instead go to the Southern Tyrol.

MAINE'S MAST A MONUMENT.

Will Be Erected in Arlington Cemetery in Memory of Battleship's Dead.

NORFOLK, Va., May 26.—The naval collier Leonidas to-day passed out the Capes for Havana to bring back the mainmast of the battleship Maine, sunk in Havana Harbor thirteen years ago.

The Leonidas will also bring back any bodies of the men of the Maine that may be recovered from the mud of Havana Harbor.

The mainmast will be erected in Arlington Cemetery at Washington as a monument to those who lost their lives in the Maine disaster.

CENSURE SHAW TRUSTEES.

Bar Association Finds They Returned Estate of $9,000,000 as Worth $4,000.

BOSTON, May 26.—The fact that the Boston Bar Association had passed a vote of severe censure for R. F. Herrick, Q. A. Shaw, and Frances Welch, trustees of the Quincy Shaw estate, for making returns of $4,000, when the estate was worth $9,000,000, became known to-day.

The Bar Association conducted an investigation of the incident at the request of Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston. The association found that although the trustees were not guilty of any violation of the statutes, they did violate the standard of ethics of the legal profession.

The Shaw trustees recently paid into the city treasury several hundred thousand dollars in taxes that had been previously withheld from the city.

Most of the Senator's Estate Is in the Stock of Corporations.

ELKINS, West Va., May 26.—The report of the appraisers of the late Senator Stephen B. Elkins's will, entered on file at County Clerk Rowan's office, shows that the Senator's actual wealth was $4,025,109, which is divided as follows:

Money in bank at time of death, $117,357.

Stock value in fifty-four corporations, $2,932,208.

He had a bond appraisement in nine corporations of $733,900. He had $12,370 in miscellaneous investments.

AT 90 HE WALKS 65 MILES.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, May 26.—With the thermometer standing at 94 degrees Thomas Welman, aged 90, to-day walked from Youngstown, Ohio, to Pittsburg, a distance of sixty-five miles, in fourteen hours. He started from Youngstown at 6 o'clock this morning and arrived at his home, 1,518 Forbes Street, at 8 o'clock this evening.

Welman is a candy maker. He had lost his money in Youngstown. The house in which he lives has a telephone, and his friends would have forwarded him money with which to pay his fare had they known of his predicament. Welman did not know he could reverse the tolls and call Pittsburg until he reached home.

"It's too late now," he said. "I've walked ever since morning without a bite to eat, and I don't think it was so much of a walk."

INDIANS ON THE WARPATH.

RENO, Nev., May 26.—Eighteen Shoshone bucks, led by the eldest, 23 years old, from Duck Valley reservation, are in Little High Rock canyon, northern Washoe county, to avenge the killing of the Indian band that murdered four Washoe county stock men last February. Constable Scott Butler of Gerlach, has advised all prospectors to keep away from the canyon unless prepared to fight.

The Indians, who are well armed, are subsisting on beef and sheep pillaged from the stockmen.

Four bucks, two squaws and two pappooses led by Indian Mike were killed at Kelly's Creek on February 26 while resisting arrest by the state police for the killing of four stock men.

SOUTHERN MEN TO STRIKE.

Firemen Demand 20 Per Cent. Increase, Which Road Wants to Arbitrate.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—"Unless our demand for an increase of 20 per cent. in wages is granted there will be a strike of all firemen employed by the Southern Railway before the middle of next week," said Vice President H. O. Teat, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, to-night after another day of ineffectual conferences between President Finley of the Southern and representatives of the firemen.

Following the refusal of the firemen to agree to President Finley's proposition to submit the wage question to a board of mediation, this matter was put aside temporarily and rules, against many of which the firemen complain, were considered without conclusion. The conferences will continue to-morrow.

Vice President H. O. Teat declared that the men had no disposition to take "snap judgment" on the Southern's officials. It was pointed out that the wages of the firemen on the Southern are below those on other first-class roads, and even with the increase of four cents a hundred miles on large engines and 11 cents on small engines, which was offered by the officials of the road, they would still be at a disadvantage.

Boy Loses a Foot in Tenth Avenue.

Twelve-year-old James Murphy of 456 West Eighteenth Street was run over and had his right foot cut off by Freight Train 13 of the New York Central Railroad when the train was running through Tenth Avenue yesterday afternoon. Train men say that the boy was trying to jump on the train for a ride.

DIAZ SLIPS AWAY BOUND FOR SPAIN

NEW PRESIDENT ACCLAIMED

MADERO ISSUES A MANIFESTO

Asks People to Support the New Administration and Relinquishes the Title of Provisional President.

MEXICO CITY, May 26.—Porfirio Diaz, who for thirty-five years ruled Mexico, early to-day stole from the capital bound for Vera Cruz to take ship for Spain. Private telegrams received in this city to-night say he arrived at Vera Cruz at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

According to these advices Diaz boarded the Ypiranga, a Hamburg-American boat, to-night. The Ypiranga is due to sail south to Coatzacoalcos to-morrow. She will return to Vera Cruz and sail for Europe Wednesday.

Railroad reports state that the Diaz pilot train was stopped by insurrectos below Jalapa. After learning its purpose the rebels permitted it to proceed. None of the three trains used suffered other delays.

Only a few devoted friends, whom he dared to trust, followed him to the station at 2 o'clock this morning, shortly after the celebration over his resignation had quieted down. In the distance he could hear the voices of a few who were still acclaiming the new President, Francisco Leon de la Barra, and shouting: "Viva Madero."

So carefully were the arrangements made for the escape that the news did not come out until late to-day. Secrecy was due less to apprehension of a popular outburst in this city than to a desire to reach Vera Cruz before marauders along the route could learn of the trip.

Travel between Mexico City and Vera Cruz usually is over the Mexican Railroad, a standard gauge line with modern equipment. Rails along this route, however, frequently have been removed of late by bandits, who were determined that Gen. Diaz should not leave the capital. They are reported to have held the idea that Diaz would carry national funds with him.

There is also a narrow-gauge railroad to the coast, the Interoceanic. The bandits have not molested it, and for this reason it was chosen by Diaz for his trip.

Goes Through the Back Streets.

Gen. Diaz, still feeble from his illness, left his home, in Cadena Street, under dreary conditions. Rain had fallen earlier in the night, and by the time he came out the air was chilly. He was closely muffled. A borrowed automobile was used for the trip to the San Lazaro Station, in the western part of the city, and the journey was made over unfrequented streets. By prearrangement, at the last moment, police were scattered along the way. At certain points close friends of Diaz, including those who are to accompany him across the Atlantic, fell in behind the Diaz automobile.

Three trains were used. The first was a pilot; the Diaz special followed, and a third, occupied by a detachment of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, brought up the rear. The cars of the special were occupied as follows: First car, Gen. Diaz and Mrs. Diaz, Mrs. Romero Rubio de Teresa, Col. Porfirio Diaz, Jr., a son; Lieut. Lorenzo Elizaga, and their families; second car, Gen. Fernandina Gonzales, Manuel Gonzales, Col. Santa Cruz, Major Espinosa y Rondero; third car, Francisco S. Garcia, Ignacio de la Garita, and a kitchen crew.

The trains ran without orders, for fear the bandits along the line might tap the wires and get news of the flight.

Gen. Diaz probably will make his home in Madrid. During the recent centennial King Alfonso conferred on him a title and made him an honorary General of the Spanish Army. Señora Diaz was made a lady-in-waiting to the Spanish Queen. Gen. Diaz speaks no language other than Spanish, and, outside of Mexico, he would find the most congenial surroundings in Spain.

De la Barra Quickly Inaugurated.

The inauguration to-day of Francisco L. de la Barra as provisional President was a brief affair, occupying only ten minutes. To spectators it seemed that he had scarcely moved down the avenue Cinco de Mayo to the Chamber of Deputies with his splendid escort before he was on his way back to the National Palace at the heels of his galloping troopers, his carriage smothered with flowers. The oath was administered by the President of the Chamber of Deputies. The provisional President stood with his hand extended and repeated it. It is not the custom in Mexico to use the Bible in taking the oath, nor is the name of the Deity used. A portion of the oath reads:

I promise, without any reservation whatsoever, to keep and see to the keeping of the political Constitution of the United States of Mexico, with its additions and amendments, the reform laws, those laws depending thereon, and to discharge loyally and patriotically the office of Provisional President of the republic, which by law devolves upon me, having as my sole aim and object the welfare and prosperity of the union.

To this the President of the Chamber replied: "If you do so, the Nation will reward you; if you do not, it will call you critically to account."

Those present remained standing while the oath was administered. When this was completed many vivas and cheers rang throughout the Chamber. The diplomatic corps was present, headed by the American Ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson.

During the trip of Mr. de la Barra in an open carriage from the National Palace to the Chamber of Deputies and the return, infantrymen with full equipment, including knapsacks and blankets, stood in the sun and restrained the crowds along the route. The cheering was greatest on the return trip. The Presidential carriage had been fairly covered with roses and orchids and the vivas were prolonged and enthusiastic. The President carried his silk hat in his hand, bowing right and left. He remained in the palace all afternoon, holding a reception.

Madero's Agent Controls City.

The city was quiet throughout the day. A few street urchins tried to renew the demonstration of the last two days, but they were kindly and firmly suppressed by the police.

Shutters were removed from windows to-day for the first time in two days. Alfredo Robles Dominguez, Gen. Madero's representative, is virtually the military commander of the Federal district. The police and soldiers are acting under his direction with as much readiness as though they had never known another superior.

Before resigning his office yesterday as Minister of Finance, José Yves Limantour exhibited to Jaime Guerza, the new Sub-Secretary of the Treasury, $60,400,000 in gold in the vaults of the Treasury. He turned over all the Government funds in his possession, taking for them Señor Guerza's receipt.

Gen. Samuel Garcia Cuellar, once chief of staff under President Diaz, to-day was formally appointed Governor of the Federal district and assumed his duties. He is a man of high character and attainments and is popular with all classes. He won his rank of General through bravery and ability displayed as commander of the Federal forces in the battle of Casas Grandes, in which he lost an arm. One of the first requests of Madero after the signing of the peace pact was that his former opponent should remain in the service of the provisional Government. Gen. Cuellar has a wide acquaintance in the United States, having served as Mexican Commissioner at the Buffalo Exposition.

Doubts regarding the loyalty to Madero of the rebel troops in the Southern States were settled to-day by reports made by the various leaders to Alfredo Robles Dominguez. Ambrosio Figueroa declared he would obey all orders of Francisco I. Madero. With one exception similar answers were made by all the revolutionary chiefs, the exception being Zapata, who took Cuautla, and even he will submit to the terms of peace, it is believed. Zapata has not always obeyed orders and yesterday one of his officers, Tepeaha, was executed by Figueroa's men on the charge of brigandage. Zapata to-night telegraphed to Dominguez that he would receive the peace delegates.

MADERO RESIGNS TITLE.

Special to The New York Times.

JUAREZ, Mexico, May 26.—Francisco I. Madero, Jr., leader of the Mexican revolution, this afternoon issued this manifesto to the Mexican people:

Fellow Mexicans: When by the San Luis Potosi plan of last October I invited you to take up arms to conquer our liberties and political rights, you all concurred in my call, and in six months by your heroic efforts you have overthrown the dictatorial régime, which for about thirty-five years has oppressed our fatherland.

The triumph has been complete, and in succession will be justice equally for the rich and the poor, for the powerful and for the humble. Liberty will spread its broad wings to all Mexicans, and united fraternally we will work for the aggrandizement of our country.

Having continued the revolution till its conclusion, it would seem that I should convoke the general elections, according to the stipulations of the San Luis Potosi plan, as the war of fratricide which we have been obliged to carry on will not triumph in the determination of personalities but in the victory of our principles.

From the moment in which we triumphed and we saw the republic surely coming under a régime of absolute liberty, Gen. Diaz and Señor Ramon Corral resolving to resign, to leave the power in the hands of Señor de la Barra—from that moment, I say, it appeared to me that I should act in the interests of the fatherland, putting a final stop to the bloodshed of the war of fratricide. But considering as legitimate the authority of Senor Francisco de la Barra, inasmuch as he comes into power by mutual agreement of both contending parties, it is impossible for me to assume charge of the Provisional Presidency of the republic, and for that reason I hereby formally resign before the nation.

Wants All to Help for Peace.

Thus, as all my companions followed when I invited them to the election of last June and afterwards you followed me in arms to reconquer our liberty, I hope that now all will follow my efforts in re-establishing quickly peace and tranquility in the whole republic, to the end that very soon the Mexican people will enjoy the well being which proportionately is due under the new regime of Government inaugurated to-day with President de la Barra, who has received so much and honored a post solely with the idea of serving his country as an intermediary between the despotic government of Gen. Diaz and the eminently popular government which will result from the next general elections.

Señor Francisco de la Barra is supported in power by public opinion and, as he has unanimously proclaimed the principles of the revolution, we are able to say that the President of the Republic in the interim is one of us because he bears high sentiments of justice and patriotism. He has given proofs of it in his tact in forming the new cabinet in which are amply represented the men who have carried the revolution to an end and who have been designated by mutual agreement between Señor de la Barra and the principal chiefs of the revolution who could be consulted.

In all, I hope that as I publicly recognize Señor Francisco de la Barra as President ad interim of the Republic of Mexico, all my fellow-citizens who have defended the principles of the revolution and have recognized me as provisional President will recognize the same in Señor de la Barra, who has already assumed the position, and will endeavor to follow him effectively in his work of re-establishing order and tranquillity in the republic.

To those who for so many years have been victims of tyranny, and who fear some trick from their old oppressors, I say that they should fear nothing. The people already have shown their omnipotence, and before I resigned the provisional Presidency, I agreed with Señor de la Barra on the necessary means for assuring the satisfaction of the national aspirations, as to which the next general election will respect the popular will.

Defends Substitution of Governors.

Among these means are to make the Governors of the States resign, and to substitute citizens who constitute a guarantee for the régime which has been inaugurated. The objection can be made that this is an attack on the sovereignty of the States, but, speaking with frankness, I ought to declare that if we have agreed on Señor de la Barra to hold the Presidency of the republic it is because he is considered an honorable man, because up to this time he never has served as the instrument to burlesque the popular vote, but we cannot say the same of the Governors or of the Legislatures of the States any more than it can be said of Gen. Diaz or Señor Corral.

If, contrary to the San Luis Potosi plan, I have accepted in the name of the revolution a provision that the national chambers and the Legislatures of the States shall continue in their present form, it is to avoid great overturnings and difficulties, and because the Chambers frankly accept the new régime.

I consider very ample the concessions which the revolutionary party has made to the old régime, and in this document I make it clear that it is because it is convenient that the new Government, effectively supported by the party emanating from the revolution, shall act liberally until it fulfills the national aspirations.

These Governors who have been designated by the people, others who have been candidates on various occasions, and others who shall be legally installed and will be named in accord with the popular aspirations, will be a guaranty of our future liberty. So far as possible, according to the Constitution, they will have, in the capacity of militia, that part of the insurgent forces which will be deemed convenient.

The nation will suffer some sacrifices, because provisions contained in the third clause of the San Luis Potosi plan cannot be entirely satisfied, but those losses will be very inferior to those which would be occasioned, by a prolongation of war. Moreover, through constitutional means we will procure the satisfaction of the legitimate civic rights to which the said clause refers.

Rebel Leaders for the Army.

With regard to the military grade of the chiefs of the revolution, they will be recognized according to the San Luis Potosi plan by the Governors of the States, as a commission will be named to determine which shall be approved for the service of the Federal Government.

Mexicans, when I invited you to take up arms I said that you would be invincible in war and magnanimous in victory. You have fulfilled faithfully my prognostication, earning the admiration of the whole world. Now it is recommended that, just as you have known how to grasp your arms in the defense of your rights, you should continue in the capacity of the national guards, placing yourselves in the lofty position which guards order and constitutes guaranty for society and for the new régime of things.

You who retire to private life are armed with the new weapon which you have conquered—the vote. Use liberally that powerful weapon, and very soon you will see that it is proportionately a more important and durable victory than that which your rifle has afforded you.

Retiring to private life in the capacity of a simple citizen, I will continue, however, to be considered as chief of the present revolutionary party and will collaborate with the Government of Señor de la Barra, placing at his services my energies. I well understand that since it was I who promoted the revolution, I will be regarded as chief of the revolutionary party emanating from it. I must consecrate myself to re-establishing order and public peace and continue to be watchful of the interests of the political party which has placed me in its confidence.

The one thing that I ask of all my fellow-citizens is that they co-operate with me and with the present Government so that united we all may dedicate ourselves to work for the aggrandizement and glory of our fatherland, effective suffrage, no re-election. FRANCISCO I. MADERO.

It was explained that the third clause of the San Luis Potosi plan referred to the placing of Maderists in the National Congress as well as in State Legislatures.

After he had affixed his signature to the manifesto Mr. Madero received the newspaper correspondents.

He was in a happy frame of mind and started the conversation by announcing that he had sent a long message to Mr. de la Barra congratulating him on his succession to the Presidency and offering him all possible assistance in carrying out the peace programme.

Mr. Madero said that the political party of which he is the leader will hold a National Convention in the City of Mexico and will nominate candidates for President and Vice President. The old name, Anti-Reelection Party, will be dropped. The new name may be the Progressive Party. That Mr. Madero will head this ticket is the opinion of all his friends, and if he is nominated he will accept.

Mr. Madero was asked if in pledging to Mr. de la Barra the united support of the revolutionists he intended it to be understood that the revolutionary army would be at the disposal of the new President in putting into effect the reforms that are promised. He answered that such was his intention and that Mr. de la Barra was commander of the army and navy including the men who overthrew the Diaz regime.

The trouble in the State of Coahuila was announced to be over. No further opposition to the seating of Señor Carranza as Governor is expected.

With reference to the time of his departure for the City of Mexico, Mr. Madero said he certainly would not leave before next Tuesday, as he accepted this afternoon an invitation of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce to attend a dinner next Monday night. It will be served in the Hotel Sheldon, El Paso, and Mr. Madero will probably make clear the attitude of the new powers in Mexico toward the United States. Mr. Madero believes that the friendship of the two nations will be cemented more strongly as a result of the upheaval that resulted in the downfall of the Diaz Government.

Corral Still in Paris.

PARIS, May 26.—Ramon Corral, whose resignation as Vice President of the Mexican Republic, together with that of President Diaz, was tendered to and accepted by the Mexican Chamber of Deputies yesterday, is still sojourning at the French capital.

New British Minister to Mexico.

LONDON, May 26.—The appointment of Francis William Strong, Minister Resident to Colombia, as British Minister to Mexico is gazetted. He will succeed Reginald T. Tower.

DOGS STILL QUARANTINED.

Petition of New Rochelle Folk to Lift It is Ignored—May Test the Law.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, May 26.—Dog owners are incensed because no notice has been taken of their petition of asking the Commissioner of Agriculture, Raymond A. Pearson, to raise the rabies quarantine in that city. A supplemental petition, started to-day, has been signed by 500, and another will be sent to Gov. Dix, if no action is taken.

The S. P. C. A., which was formed recently, learned to-day that a dog catcher had lassooed a collie pup in the grounds of Miss Helen Hubbard, on Pelham Road, and tried to drag it over the fence. William B. Ogden, President of the society, has asked dog owners to notify the society if they see dog catches roping dogs that legal action may be taken.

Judge Mark M. Schlesinger has advised the society to test the law giving the Commissioner of Agriculture power to regulate the quarantine. He said if any "dog jumper" entered his property he would protect it to the best of his ability.

Owners of dogs with noses too short to hold muzzles keep their pets under robes in their automobiles when they drive, for dog catchers have made a specialty of taking dogs out of cars. Recently a dog owned by Frank De K. Huyler was taken from his car in Main Street. Mr. Huyler had to send $10 to Albany for its release.

DEAD BODY AT CHAPEL PIANO.

Closing Exercises at Alfred College Postponed Because of Student's Ghoulish Prank.

ALFRED, N. Y., May 26.—The placing of an unclothed human body on a piano stool in the Chapel of Alfred University last night has so upset the faculty and students that the programme prepared for the last day of the college year has been postponed. Students are suspected of the deed, but as yet the faculty has been unable to get any definite clues.

For several days the students have been in sullen mood over the suspension of the entire baseball team, which recently played a game at Wellsville without having obtained permission. As the athletic students must attain an average of 95 per cent. to get through the school year, they waxed indignant at the action of the Faculty in depriving them of their studies and they found many sympathizers among the other students.

A raid was made last night on an undertaking establishment in the town and a body was taken from one of the slabs. The body was put in a sitting posture on the piano stool.

Prof. Annas of the Music Department made the gruesome find when he entered the chapel to-day. About fifty students entered the chapel before the excitement subsided and the doors were locked.

RAIDERS IN EIGHTH AVENUE.

Find 118 Men in Poolroom and Make Four Prisoners.

Armed with warrants signed by Chief Magistrate McAdoo, Lieut. William Jones and a number of detectives raided a poolroom on the second floor of a three-story brick building in Eighth Avenue, near Twenty-eighth Street, late yesterday afternoon. One hundred and eighteen men were found in the place. Of these four were arrested on the warrants.

The gamblers occupied three rooms. In the largest the detectives found a locked box, which they broken open and found two telephones. Connecting wires were run through holes in the box, and there was enough wire to allow the box to be used as a movable telephone booth. The police say the scheme was to cut the wires and dispose of the box in the event of a raid. However, the police were too quick in this raid.

The detectives made their entrance without much difficulty. They were armed with axes, but only encountered an ordinary wooden door, which was easily burst open.

The prisoners were taken to the West Thirty-seventh Street Station and all were bailed out.

TWO POLICEMEN HURT BY A RUNAWAY HORSE

Both Make Brave Efforts to Stop It as It Dashes Through Times Square.

ARE HURLED TO THE STREET

Animal Breaks from the Wagon and Runs Down Seventh Ave. to 34th St. Before It Is Stopped.

Women fainted and men gasped with fear in Times Square yesterday noon, when two traffic policemen were severely injured by a runaway horse. Many persons narrowly escaped injury.

The horse, drawing a light delivery wagon belonging to Herman Maupai, a silk dyer at 333 West Forty-fourth Street, took fright while having its midday meal near Eleventh Avenue and Forty-fourth Street. It ran through Forty-fourth Street to Eleventh Avenue, whirled east into Forty-third Street at breakneck speed, the light wagon bouncing over obstructions, swaying from side to side, hitting the high places only.

Whether the impulse, born of habit, to obey traffic regulations had anything to do with it or not, the animal on reaching Times Square suddenly switched down Seventh Avenue at an unflagging pace. Policeman Patrick Gannon, who recently received honorable mention for stopping a horse, saving several lives, was at the crossing. Policeman James G. Guckian being on the Times Building side of the avenue. They saw the frenzied horse bearing down upon them. Gannon shoved several persons, who had become helpless with fright, out of the path of the horse, and caught the animal's neck. The shaft struck him in the face, bringing a gush of blood, but he held on, until the horse reared and plunged violently, wiping the policeman against the wheels of a vehicle standing in front of the Victoria Theatre. Gannon fell almost under this vehicle, and his head went to the pavement. He came up with blood streaming from face and hands, and his uniform covered with dirt.

Guckian had been a little further off the horse's course than Gannon, but without waiting to see what had happened to his fellow-squadsman he sprinted forward, overtaking the horse on the southern edge of Forty-second Street. He clung to it until nearly half the block was covered, when the horse threw him under the hoofs of another horse. When he arose he had a cut hand, half his face was covered with dust and blood, and through a gaping tear in his trousers and underclothes the blood showed.

The horse went on. Just before Forty-first Street was reached, however, the wagon grazed another vehicle, and whirled it over on its side. The horse was stayed a little by the jerk, but broke away with harness and shafts, leaving the overturned vehicle in the street. The animal was captured at Thirty-fourth Street.

The Fire of 1907.

Coney Island has been swept more or less by fires. Perhaps the most disastrous was one which started in the Cave of the Winds in Steeplechase Park on the morning of July 28, 1907. This fire swept some thirty-five acres clean and caused a loss of $1,500,000. It swept along two blocks of Surf Avenue, skirted two blocks of the Bowery, ate up everything from the Bowery back to the ocean front for two blocks, and injured a dozen persons.

The shifting of the wind to the southward cut off any danger to Dreamland on the east and Henderson's and Luna Park to the north. The brick walls and iron shutters of Stauch's helped to check the fire. A strong wind seaward kept blowing until Coney Island was entirely out of danger.

The last big fire at Coney Island was on July 6, 1908. This fire destroyed Pabst's Loop Hotel and the Vanderveer Hotel, in Surf Avenue and Fifth Street. Four alarms were turned in for this fire, calling engines from many parts of Brooklyn. The blaze was the first one which ever attacked Coney Island at its eastern end, that portion having escaped the fires which have twice before destroyed the other parts of it. The loss was estimated at about $200,000. Pabst's Hotel was one of the landmarks of Coney Island, as was also the Vanderveer.

TEST OF FIRE APPARATUS.

New Automobile Engine Proves Disappointing, but Will Be Tried Again.

A new model hose nozzle holder for high pressure, invented by the Bureau of Repairs and Supplies of the Fire Department, was tested yesterday at Fifty-eighth Street and Eleventh Avenue. The holder, which was named the "Waldo," in honor of the retiring Fire Commissioner, satisfied Acting Chief Kenlon, Battalion Chief Howe, and Capt. Demarest, the Testing Committee. It will cost $7 to manufacture. The department has been paying $92 for patented holders previously used. In making the test the new automobile Engine 58, known as the "Big Bear," was employed.

There was also tested at the same time an automobile engine differing from "Big Bear" in that its pumps are operated by a six cylinder ninety horse power gasoline engine instead of by steam, as in the older type of horse-propelled engines and in the "Big Bear." The new engine was expected to pump 700 gallons of water a minute, but succeeded in pumping only 600. The test was brought to an end when the packings of the engine were ignited by back-firing of the motor. The Board of Examiners decided to allow the new engine another test before finally deciding upon its merits.

Several out-of-town fire Chiefs were present. Among them were J. E. Sloan of Newark, B. P. Bowker of Passaic, John Stagg of Paterson, Andrew Jennings of Plainfield, H. J. Groom of Irvington, F. C. Decker of Westfield, William Hines of South Orange, H. L. Stanton of Norwich, and E. T. Stanton of Nutley.

OPPOSE B. W. B. BROWN.

Disgruntled Republicans Want to Oust Him from District Leadership.

About half a score of the disgruntled Republican members of the General Committee of the Twenty-seventh Assembly District met last night at the Hotel Cadillac and drew up plans for a primary fight this Fall against B. W. B. Brown, the present Republican leader of the district. Herbert Parsons's old Congressional district includes the Twenty-seventh Assembly District, and the greater part of the talk last night was against him. The various speakers declared that he should be ousted from the control of the local organization for the reason that he has brought about more defeats than victories.

It was decided to open up headquarters at Forty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue, from which the campaign against Brown will be made. The men present said that this movement is the first of many which will be started in the next few weeks in other Assembly districts against the Parsons leaders.

ACCUSES POLICEMAN IN COURT

Boy Peddler's Father Charges Persecution and Magistrate Believes Him.

After Magistrate Krotel in Night Court had fined Michael Levinson of 282 East Fourth Street $5 on the charge of Policeman Cohen of the Mercer Street Station that he had refused to move from the Fourteenth Street subway station, where he was peddling candy yesterday afternoon, Samuel Levinson, the boy's father, began abusing the policeman and caused such an uproar that the Magistrate ordered a complaint made against him. Levinson was called before the Magistrate and instantly declared that his son was being made the victim of persecution.

He said that on Tuesday Policeman Abramson had arrested the boy and afterward let him go when the youngster refused to give the policeman $3. Levinson carried the matter to Headquarters and yesterday he and his son were witnesses there against Abramson. Commissioner Waldo reserved decision, he said. It was because of this complaint, Levinson charged, that Cohen had arrested his son again.

"I believe you," said Magistrate Krotel, "and I will discharge both you and your son."

Cohen tried to explain to the Magistrate, but the latter cut him short and ordered him to remain in the courtroom until Levinson and his son had left. To reporters the policeman declared afterward that he had known nothing about the case against Abramson until he heard of it in the courtroom.

LUCKY TO HAVE A TWIN.

When He's Arrested In Your Stead and You Both Go Free in Court.

Because he has a twin brother, Joseph Cunningham, who is a bartender in a saloon at 134 Greenwich Street, was discharged without a fine by Magistrate Herrman in the Tombs Court yesterday. Bernard Holzer, an agent for the Society for the Prevention of Crime, said he had succeeded in getting a drink in the saloon on May 14, which was Sunday. As a result a man, answering the description of the bartender, was arrested on a John Doe warrant and brought before the court yesterday.

The man who was arrested, however, was not Joseph Cunningham, but his twin brother, Christopher, and twelve witnesses went on the stand, one after the other, to testify that he had gone to Bayonne to play ball the day he was supposed to have served the drinks. Holzer and his witnesses swore just as positively that he had waited on them.

Magistrate Herrman was more or less at his wit's end when Christopher Cunningham, on the stand, called his twin brother from the back of the room. They were as like as two peas, and, of course, Holzer was unable to say which of them had waited on him, as it was shown that they were both bartenders in the same saloon.

Joseph Cunningham admitted that he had been in the saloon when Holzer came in. He said that Holzer had asked for drinks, but he had refused to serve any. Magistrate Herrman decided that as Holzer could not pick out the man who had served him there was no case and he discharged both men.

MUST SUPPORT HIS SONS.

Engineer D. H. Darrin Ordered to Pay Each $10 a Week.

The Appellate Division ordered David H. Darrin, President of the Automatic Switch Company and a member of the Engineers' Club, to pay $10 a week for the support of each of his sons, Lawrence, 17 years old, and Howard, 15. Mrs. Darrin remarried after she obtained a divorce. So did her husband. The boys lived with their father after their mother's remarriage, but left him to rejoin her, after he followed her example. Mrs. Darrin is now Mrs. Beatrice Whitmore Jackson of 2,790 Broadway.

In an affidavit filed with the Appellate Division, Lawrence Darrin tells o fa conference in the Hotel Astor in which he and his brother decided to leave their father. He says:

> I remember the night in the Hotel Astor (the day his mother remarried.) My brother, Howard; my mother, Mr. Jackson, and myself were there, and we were trying to argue. We did not want to go with my father. We wanted to go to a boarding school next to going to my mother. My father said he was lonesome and wanted some one with him, and was tired of living at the club, and at last we consented to live with father for a while.
> Then we found out he was going to get married, and that changed the subject altogether, because if he was married he would not want anybody to keep him company. We asked mother to get a home, and mother did, and we told him (father) we were going, and he got mad and said it would be a fine thing for us to live on somebody else's money.
> My father was going to take a houseboat at Nyack, and come down in his motor boat to work, and told us he would give us a fine home and a nice time next Summer and send us to college if we went to live with him, and if we didn't he would not do anything for us except what the law made him do. I wouldn't be happy living with anybody but my mother.

Howard Darrin made an affidavit corroborating his brother, and added that his father had threatened to cut them out of his will.

G. P. SHELDON, JR., DIVORCED.

Father-in-Law Attributed His Drinking to Father's Misfortunes.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., May 26.—In the Superior Court at Bridgeport a decree of divorce was granted to-day to Mrs. Mary Sheldon from George P. Sheldon, Jr., on the grounds of habitual intemperance. Mrs. Sheldon is a daughter of George Rowland of New York, and a sister-in-law of Commodore George Lauder, Jr., of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club.

Mr. Lauder and Philip Jones, a chum of the defendant, were in court, but were not called to the stand. Four witnesses, including Sheriff Rich, testified that Sheldon was habitually intemperate.

Mr. Rowland said that Sheldon was a gentleman, and was once a general favorite, and when his permission for the wedding was sought he put Sheldon on probation for three years, and in that time he did not drink to excess. When his father, who was President of the Phoenix Insurance Company of Brooklyn, became ill and was involved in an insurance scandal, the young man took to drinking heavily, he declared.

NEVER SAW A DRUNKEN JEW.

Justice Giegerich So Asserts in Separation Suit Against a Cantor.

"In all my years of acquaintance with people on the lower East Side, I cannot remember ever having seen a drunken Jew," remarked Supreme Court Justice Giegerich yesterday, approving the assertion of counsel for Harry Bloom, a cantor, that the stories of his wife, Ida Bloom, who is suing for separation, seemed improbable.

Mrs. Bloom's lawyer insisted that Bloom's alleged deterioration from the standards of his race was attributed to the fact that he managed a wine cellar for six months. Justice Giegerich reduced Bloom's ball from $1,500 to $500 to permit his release to appear at Jewish festivals next week.

TWICE INDICT NEGRO SLAYER.

John Cain, the negro, who on May 18 killed three persons and wounded nine, was indicted yesterday for murder in the first degree, and assault in the first degree as a second offense. The first charges Cain with stabbing and killing Saxson Surrell of 53 West 106th Street, the second with stabbing Policeman Chauncey De Graff of the West 100th Street Station, and states that Cain had previously been convicted of killing Richard L. Bell, a newspaper man, in 1900.

Cain will be arraigned on Monday before Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions to plead to the indictments, and an effort will be made to bring him to trial in the latter part of June.

PARIS-MADRID RACE IS WON BY VEDRINE

French Airman Covers Final Lap of 140 Miles in Two Hours and Forty-five Minutes.

WINS $30,000 IN PRIZES

Rose 6,500 Feet Over Peaks—Like Gibert, Was Attacked by an Eagle—Gets Roses and Kisses from Women.

MADRID, May 26.—Pierre Vedrine, the French aviator, arrived at the Spanish capital from Burgos at 8:06 o'clock this morning, being the first contestant to complete the third stage of the Paris-to-Madrid aviation race, thereby winning prizes aggregating $30,000. He covered the distance of 140 miles between Madrid and Burgos, where he landed yesterday from St. Sebastian, in 2 hours and 45 minutes. Gibert and Garros are still stalled in the mountain fastnesses and it is not thought probable that they will be able to finish within the time limit.

Vedrine on landing at the Getafe Aerodrome was so tired after his hardy voyage that he jumped from his aeroplane and flung himself on the ground to rest. An ardent crowd rushed up, however, and bore the victorious aviator on their shoulders to the tribunal. On reaching the judges' platform he was showered with roses and kissed repeatedly by the women.

Later, on complaining that he was still numb from his flight, he was removed to an infirmary, where he received medical attention and a short but much-needed rest. On reappearing at the Aerodrome the Frenchman smilingly delivered the messages which he had brought with him from Paris and was congratulated on his magnificent flight by the Civil Governor of Madrid on behalf of King Alfonso.

At Bocequillas, where the airman was greeted by a great crowd of enthusiastic peasants, Vedrine buckled down to the task of crossing the dreaded Somosierra Pass, which rises 4,980 feet. Higher and higher he climbed until he had attained an altitude of 6,500 feet. The aviator then, straight as an arrow, flew over the crags and snowcaped peaks until he reached the immense plains of San Augustin. Having left the mountain ranges behind him, Vedrine dropped closer to the earth and finally reached the Aerodrome at Getafe.

Vedrine said that he, like Gibert, was attacked in midair by a large eagle. The incident happened while the aeroplane was passing over the Sierra de Guadarrama, a chain of mountains in Castille, one of the peaks of which attains an elevation of 7,900 feet.

The eagle, which was a huge creature, seemed furious with the aviator, and swooped down again and again trying to reach his face with its powerful beak. Vedrine's greatest fear was that his attention would be diverted, which would cause him to lose control of his machine. Finally the aviator outmaneouvred and lost his feathered foe by swiftly dropping and rising to new levels.

The Civil Governor of Madrid to-day sent a telegram to M. Lepine, the Prefect of Police at Paris, announcing the safe arrival of Vedrine at Madrid and deploring the catastrophe which occurred at the start of the Paris-to-Madrid race. The Governor also called the attention of the French Prefect to the enthusiasm throughout Spain aroused by Vedrine's success.

The official time for Vedrine's flight of 1,163 kilometers (721 miles) between Paris and Madrid is given as 8? hours 27 minutes. This includes several delays in transit due to making repairs, waits for fogs to clear away, &c. His actual time of flight, however, was 12 hours 18 minutes, which is at a rate above 60 miles an hour.

The Paris-to-Madrid race began on May 21 under the auspices of The Petit Parisien, which offered a prize of $20,000. In addition the Spanish Aero Club gave prizes amounting to $10,000, and King Alfonso offered a special prize for the fastest speed over the Spanish section. The journey was divided into three stages—Paris to Angoulême, Angoulême to St. Sebastian, and St. Sebastian to Madrid, a total distance of about 600 miles.

Twenty machines were entered for the race, but on account of the tragic accident when the start was made from the Issy-les-Moulineaux aviation field, which resulted in the death of M. Berteaux, the French Minister of War, and in serious injury to Premier Monis, all but three of the aviators withdrew. Of these three Pierre Vedrine, who reached the Spanish capital this morning, was the favorite. He covered the first stage of the contest, 279 miles, in 3 hours and 39 minutes, breaking all records for a long-distance cross country flight. The running time of the Southern express between Paris and Angoulême was beaten by Vedrine by 1 hour and 39 minutes. On the second stage, between Angoulême and St. Sebastian, Vedrine had a narrow escape from death. One of the planes of his machine grased the peak of a huge rock, near the Spanish town of Puenterrabia. Although the plane was bent Vedrine continued his flight and safely reached St. Sebastian. The distance of the second lap of the contest was about 200 miles.

The third stage of the journey, St. Sebastian to Madrid, was the most difficult of the entire flight. The 266 miles of the route was almost entirely over desolate ranges, the crags varying from 1,000 to 5,000 feet in height. A fall meant certain death, and it was practically impossible to make a fresh start in the mountainous country.

WINS 360-MILE AIR RACE.

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, May 26.—Aviator Hirth, in a German monoplane, arrived here to-day, winning the Upper Rhine reliability flight. The race, in which there were four competitors, covered a total distance of 360 miles, including the Cities of Freiburg, Mulhausen, Strasburg, and Mannheim.

Prince Henry of Prussia made his début to-day as an aeroplane repairer, wielding a hammer, saw, and screwdriver on Witterstaetter's aeroplane, which was damaged during the race while making a landing in the open country near Worms. The Grand Duke of Hesse assisted the Prince in repairing the machine. The Prince followed the route of the entire circuit in an automobile, and repeatedly warned the contestants against attempting dangerous feats such as that which resulted in the death of Aviator Laemmlin, who fell from a height of 200 feet at Strassburg May 23.

BRIDGE JUMPER DIES.

His Leap from Manhattan Span Proves Fatal to Despondent Printer.

The man who committed suicide by jumping off the Manhattan Bridge into the river at 2 o'clock yesterday morning was identified later in the day as John Garrity, a printer. The identification was made by his sister, Mrs. Arthur Willard, of 271 Tompkins Avenue, Brooklyn, with whom he boarded until a week ago.

Garrity was despondent because he was out of work and because of the death of his wife a month ago. Before jumping he took off his hat, coat, and shoes and left them on the north roadway, about fifty feet west of the Brooklyn tower, from which point he leaped.

His body was heard to strike the water by Arthur Watkinson, a deckhand on a tugboat which was towing a barge out of a slip near Catharine Street Ferry Watkinson jumped overboard and managed to reach Garrity as he was sinking for the third time. The tug drew alongside the two men and they were pulled on board. Garrity was alive then, but died two hours later in the Emergency Hospital at Washington and High Streets.

INDICT BOSTON MILK MEN.

New Haven Road Also Accused of Rebating to Alleged Combine.

BOSTON May 26.—Indictments were returned to-day by the Federal Grand Jury against four Boston milk concerns and one individual milk dealer, as well as against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, for alleged violations of the Sherman anti-trust law and the Elkins act. It is charged in the indictment that the violations have extended over a period of six years.

The firms indicted for violations of the Sherman Anti-Trust act, in which, it is alleged, they formed a combination for the "undue" restraint of trade, are D. Whiting & Sons, composed of Isaac, George, and John K. Whiting, H. P. Hood & Sons, composed of Charles and Edward J. Hood; William A. Graustein of the Graustein Company, and William A. Hunter of Worcester, who is Secretary of the Milk Producers' Union.

The violations of the Elkins act are charged against the New Haven Railroad and the Elm Farm Milk Company of Boston, rebating being alleged. The Government officials have been investigating the milk situation for some months, and the Federal Grand Jury has been at work on the matter since April 22.

The Whitings, Hoods, Graustein, and Hunter are charged with controlling 86 per cent. of the milk supply of Boston, Cambridge, Somerville, Lynn, Salem, Beverly, and Worcester in the matter of delivery, obtaining their supply from Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and New York. The indictment against the New Haven road and the Elm Farm Milk Company alleges that the latter paid a rate which permitted it to ship milk from Willimantic, Conn., to Boston, in lots of 840 cans per car, but that in reality the railroad company supplied the Elm Farm Company with cars that had a capacity of 1,240 cans without charging a different rate.

The penalty for violation of the Sherman law is a maximum imprisonment for one year or a maximum fine of $5,000 on each count, while for violation of the Elkins law the penalty is iprisonment for not more than two years or a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $20,000. Inasmuch as the indictments under the Elkins law are against corporations only, the imprisonment penalty will not figure in those cases. There are sixty counts covering thirty separate offenses.

It was announced to-night that the individuals indicted would be arraigned about the middle of next week.

The investigation resulting in to-day's indictments was undertaken at the direction of Attorney General Wickersham and was conducted by William S. Grigg, special assistant to the Attorney General, assisted by Charles Connor, special agent of the Department of Justice. Mr. Connor assisted in the preparation of the case against the Standard Oil Company in Chicago.

BANK DEPARTMENT REFORMS.

New Superintendent Says He Intends to Look Out for Depositors.

George C. Van Tuyl, Jr., the recently appointed Superintendent of Banks, intimated yesterday that he intended to put the methods of the Banking Department on a new basis.

"I shall proceed on the theory of prevention rather than cure," said the new Superintendent, in reply to a question as to whether depositors in the State institutions were to receive better protection. "This department was organized to look out for the depositors, to safeguard their interests, and that I propose to do.

"The law provides that when banks are found unsound the department must step in and take charge of them. I propose to carry out the exact letter of that law," he added.

Mr. Van Tuyl declined to answer any questions as to reforms contemplated, on the plea that he ought to be allowed a week in which to become familiar with his work. He said he had not read the full record of the Carnegie failure and did not know what action he would take in the matter. He has requested depositors in the failed Union Bank of Brooklyn to appoint a committee of three, which in turn will be asked to name a committee of one, to consult with him and to present grievances. He promised that he would do all in his power to facilitate liquidation of the institutions which have been closed.

The new Superintendent will return to Albany to-day, but will be in New York again next Thursday, and plans to devote a large part of his time to this office. He has appointed an Albany newspaper man to be his secretary.

SEVEN HURT IN AUTO CRASH.

Taxi and Touring Car Collide Near Brooklyn Borough Hall.

Seven persons, one of them a woman, were injured in a collision between a taxicab and a touring car early yesterday morning at Fulton and Pearl Streets, Brooklyn. Both machines were wrecked. The accident tied up traffic on Fulton Street for a long time.

The taxicab, which was driven by William McClane, 28 years old, of 1079 DeKalb Avenue, with Edward Scott of 110 Willoughby Street as a passenger, was speeding down Fulton Street at 6.30 A. M. As McClane Approached Pearl Street he noticed the touring car turning into Fulton Street. Both chauffeurs quickly steered so as to avoid a serious crash. The taxi struck the touring car a glancing blow, pushed it along the pavement for several feet and partly overturned it. In the touring car were David Schor, living at 255 Bergen Street, who owned and operated the machine; David Lawson of 355 Bergen Street; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Rose and Samuel Dody, 26 years old, of College Inn, Coney Island. The last three are performing at the Island. Dody and Lawson were thrown out head foremost. Both were removed to the Brooklyn Hospital. Lawson has a broken left ankle, but Dody is suffering from internal injuries and his condition is regarded as serious. The other occupants of both machines were merely cut and bruised. They left for home after Ambulance Surgeon Reynolds of the Brooklyn Hospital had treated them.

CROWD SEES LINEMAN KILLED

More than three hundred school children and as many more men and women saw Fred Conklin, 32 years old, a lineman, shocked to death by electricity yesterday afternoon on a fifty-foot pole, at 165th Street and Prospect Avenue, Bronx. For several minutes his body lay across the live wires and his hands and clothing burned as the crowd looked on horrified.

John McGillivey of 60 East 127th Street, who had been working with Conklin changing wires, succeeded after some effort in lifting the body from the wires, and getting it across the cross pieces. John Havilin of 510 East 137th Street climbed the pole and helped McGillivey lower the body to the street. Conklin lived at 253 East 125th Street.

HOLD SIX FOR LABOR CRIME.

Following the Murder of Gentleman and Beating of Reporter in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Sudden police activity against alleged labor sluggers who have terrorized Chicago building trades for several months to-day resulted in the arrest of six men, none of whom, however, is charged with specific slugging. Four are held as the sluggers' associates and two for beating a newspaper reporter.

The arrests followed the killing recently in a saloon of an acknowledged slugger, William Gentleman. The reporter was beaten while calling at the Gentleman home after he had been killed.

Lawyer with Jail Record Disbarred.

SWAMI'S SPIRIT CAME OFTEN TO MRS. BULL

MRS. BULL'S TRIPS ABROAD

Special to The New York Times.

ALFRED, Me., May 26.—Miss Siri Edith Swanander of 629 Madison Street, Brooklyn, was called to the stand by Attorney Sherman L. Whipple to-day in the suit to break Mrs. Ole Bull's will, brought by Mrs. Olea Bull Vaughn, her daughter. Miss Swanander, who is a Norwegian, met Mrs. Bull at a series of Hindoo meetings in New York. She went to Green Acre in Eliot, Me., on Aug. 23, 1910, at the invitation of Mrs. Bull, who was ill at her Summer home there, and remained until Sept. 9.

Miss Swanander noticed that Mrs. Bull was very sick in mind and body. Mrs. Bull said it was not physical trouble, but that she was suffering from "malign influence."

"Did she tell you the source of this malign influence?" asked Attorney Whipple.

"No," said Miss Swanander. "Twice she promised she would tell me, but she never did so."

The witness told of having sittings at the Green Acre house nearly every day. Swami Vitekandi came to the house while she was there. Mrs. Bull's speech was affected while at Green Acre. She would start to tell something, but would not finish the sentence. She always spoke very lovingly about her mother and daughter. Miss Swanander said there was a meditation room at Green Acre similar to the one at Cambridge. Nearly every kind of food seemed to hurt Mrs. Bull, and she wanted a Norwegian cook. She engaged the witness's mother. Then she wanted a Norwegian physician.

"Swami came to me from the spirit land," said Mrs. Bull, according to the witness. "He stood by my couch under an apple or cherry tree in full bloom. He spoke to me and said, 'I have sent Siri to take care of you.' Edwina, my granddaughter, also come to me from that land. She came in a pink radiance and comforted me," said Mrs. Bull.

Miss Swanander also testified: "Mrs. Bull told me that the night Edwina Bull died in 1902 she was with Swami Vitekandi in India, and that Swami came to her and told her that Ole Bull had made him his son when Edwina died."

Mrs. Bull told the witness that Swami Vitekandi looked like her deceased husband, Ole Bull. When another Hindu, one Gandule, criticised Mrs. Bull's theories, she told him he had no right to criticise her belief as she was his grandmother. Miss Swanander described a Halloween surprise, which was arranged for Mrs. Bull by herself and Mrs. Vaughn. Harvest fruits and several pumpkin lanterns were placed about Mrs. Bull's bedroom, which was darkened. Mrs. Bull was then led in and was delighted at the surprise. Walking about, she addressed the pumpkins as if they were personified.

In the meditation room at Green Acre, the witness testified, were photographs of all whom Mr. Bull held most precious. There was photographs of Vivekananda, Fri Rama Krischna, and Edwina. There was an offering of flowers and fruit on the altar. Incense in the form of sticks was burned.

A large number of letters, which passed between Mrs. Bull and her brother, Joseph G. Thorp of Boston, beginning in 1901, were read at the forenoon session to-day. Their purpose was to show the domestic relations between Mrs. Bull and her only child, Mrs. Olea Bull Vaughn, the contestant of the will.

References to Prof. William James of Harvard and to Swami, lectures in Boston were made in a letter from Mrs. Bull to Mr. Thorp, dated Sept. 24, 1901. It read in part as follows:

> Dr. James's forbearance and chivalrous support of Miss Farmer's ideas to the very last makes me regret more truly her efforts to hurt him with her present statement of consideration which Olea reports to me. For myself, I feel that silence is the best course. So strong and true a man needs no defense from the line of attack made, and I feel that to discuss the matter now would be unworthy under the circumstances. One feels too deeply the sorrow and loss to spirits of the universe's unkind temper that made the last weeks of his work so difficult.

Mr. Thorp testified that he never had any communication with Mrs. Bull about gifts. At one time he had handled her financial affairs, but never communicated with her in the strange Hindoo faith. He had advised Mrs. Bull not to commit herself to any contribution to Green Acre work.

Using the letters written in 1901 in questioning Mr. Thorp, counsel tried to show that no change had begun to work in Mrs. Bull's mind from what had before been known regarding her feelings toward her daughter and Mrs. Abbie Shapleigh of Lebanon.

Mrs. Bull had taken especial interest in Dr. Jagardis Chunder Bose of Calcutta on account of his illness in London in 1900. She took care of him there, and the interest continued for some time. She was in England and France during that year. Mrs. Marion Briggs, Dr. Bose, Mr. Briggs, Miss Noble, and others were with her. She was in Norway from January until June, 1900, Dr. and Mrs. Bose and she returning to England later.

Mr. Thorp testified that Dr. and Mrs. Bose and Miss Noble returned to India the same year, (1900,) and in January, 1901, Olea, the contestant had an operation performed. Mrs. Bull remained abroad during Olea's sickness, he said. Mr. Whipple's questioning brought out that as far as he knew Mrs. Bull showed no disposition to go to her daughter when she was ill, but instead went to India.

OLD WOODEN HOUSE DOOMED

Its Condition So Precarious That Authorities Have Condemned It.

The two-story frame house at 56 Centre Street, which is said to be the oldest one constructed of wood in the lower part of the city, is about to be torn down. It is on the northeast corner of Pearl and Centre Streets. It has changed hands so often that little is known of its early history. It is occupied, on the first floor, by a machinery dealer and, on the second, by a German couple named Rath, who put up good lunches in neat pasteboard boxes and sell them to many of the lawyers who practice in the Criminal Court Building.

The house is so old that hardly any of the original interior woodwork remains. Recently holes began to appear in the floors and side walls and the Tenement House Bureau served notice on the proprietor and tenants that it must be demolished. Most of the tenants spent yesterday in moving out. The work of tearing down will begin the day after Memorial Day.

The B. R. T.'s Share.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's chief invasion in Manhattan will be from its proposed tunnel at the Battery up Church Street a short distance, tapping the lower Hudson tunnel at Cortlandt Street, thence up Broadway, again tapping the uptown Hudson tunnel at Thirty-third Street, and then on to Times Square, where it would switch off up Seventh Avenue to Fifty-ninth Street.

The plan gives the B. R. T. the Centre Street loop, with an extension from the City Hall to Beaver Street, connecting with the new Battery tunnel. This is all the foothold contemplated in the new plan for the B. R. T. in Manhattan.

The Fourth Avenue (Brooklyn) Subway would go to the B. R. T., and from the Brooklyn end of the new B. R. T. tunnel there would be an extension to connect with the Fourth Avenue line at Flatbush Avenue and Fulton Street. Another extension would be to Richmond Borough, from Sixty-fifth Street, if the connection is made with an elevated line, or from Fortieth Street, if connection is made with the Fourth Avenue Subway. This line is also to be extended in South Brooklyn to Fort Hamilton.

There is, furthermore, to be a link from Atlantic and Flatbush Avenues to connect with the Brighton Beach line, and another extension from City Line to Jamaica, Queens, along Liberty Avenue.

When the plan was laid before the Mayor he was invited to consider it, in the main, from the viewpoint of the advantages for rapid transportation to the greatest number of the city's people, while the financial prospects to the Interborough and B. R. T. were emphasized as an important but a secondary consideration. It was argued, however, that both demands were amply met.

It was conceded that to give the B. R. T. a line up Broadway, Manhattan, to Fifty-ninth Street, opening most of the shopping and amusement districts in Manhattan to that line would be a blow to the Interborough, which now receives this patronage from the B. R. T. at Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues, or at the Brooklyn Bridge. At the same time it would enable persons everywhere on the B. R. T. lines, elevated, subway, and surface (for free transfers from the surface to elevated trains are contemplated by the B. R. T. as soon as it gets the use of a tunnel and the Williamsburg Bridge) to reach the heart of Manhattan for a single fare, and, therefore, would be of immense advantage to Brooklyn residents.

It was to offset the B. R. T.'s Broadway extension cut into the Interborough's present territory that the plan proposes to give the Interborough its wide sweep through Brooklyn.

No Bronx-to-Coney Line.

As the plan was presented to the Mayor, it does not contemplate a single fare from Bronx to Coney Island, because it was drawn, its framers say, to the end that the great majority shall have the advantages of a five-cent fare rather than a few. It was argued that when a railroad brought a passenger from the outskirts to any point in the central distributing centre for a single fare, the passenger had his money's worth, and if he traveled further than this, that is, from one extremity to the other, through the centre, a distance of perhaps thirty-five miles, he was traveling, after he passed the centre, at some one else's expense.

Another put it this way: No one would expect to travel from the city line in the Bronx to the City Hall and back for a single fare, but many are asking to travel that far, that is, from the Bronx past the City Hall to Coney Island for a single fare.

With the Interborough protected and strengthened by its extensions in Manhattan, the Bronx, Brooklyn, and Queens; the B. R. T. protected and strengthened by its extensions in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Richmond, and Queens, the city, as it was presented to the Mayor, would get the best service from both, because they would be competitors, one of the other, and both of the Hudson Tunnels. It would be manifestly to the interests of the Interborough, it was argued, to induce population to grow rapidly in the many unbuilt-up sections of the Bronx and part of Queens, and it would likewise be advantageous to the B. R. T. to build in undeveloped sections in Richmond, Brooklyn, and part of Queens.

How It Would Work Out.

As for the financial arrangements and the engineering difficulties in this composite plan, those who have talked with the Mayor have not done more than suggest that neither ought to jeopardise the advantages to be derived by the city under it. It was suggested, as to the financial undertaking, that the city would treat both companies alike, and then neither could complain. Those urging the plan argue that it must surely be for the city's advantage, since both Mr. Shonts and Col. Williams pick holes in it, each from his own viewpoint.

President Shonts has declared that the B. R. T. should not be allowed to come above Fourteenth Street in Manhattan, and Col. Williams is much opposed to the Interborough invasion of Brooklyn and Queens, but neither Mr. Grout nor any one else familiar with the plan believed for a moment yesterday that Mr. Shonts and Col. Williams could not be brought together on such a compromise if the city acted firmly but tactfully. Discussing the matter last night ex-Controller Grout said:

"It seemed obvious to me that each plan offered certain advantages to the city or to localities of the city, which were not included in the other. For instance, it is obvious that if only one plan could be chosen the B. R. T. would be very much better for Brooklyn and the south side of Queens than the Interborough, while, on the contrary, with like limitation to a single plan, the Interborough seems to me obviously better for Manhattan, the Bronx, and the north side of Queens.

"Therefore, with no idea of a 'compromise' between the railroad companies or of any parceling out of the territory, but for the sole purpose of working out a scheme which would seem to give the city and all its parts the utmost advantages of both plans, this plan was worked out. It is the plan which Mr. Martin took to both Mr. Shonts and Col. Williams, and the best commendation of it in my mind is the fact that these gentlemen, each seeking for his own company the utmost he could get, seemed at first glance reluctant to accept this solution."

NEW INTERBOROUGH MAP.

Doesn't Mean a New Offer, but What It Could Do, if Asked.

There was a brief period of subway excitement in Brooklyn and Queens yesterday following the publication by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company of a new map of its proposed extensions, on which about fifty miles of new lines appeared, as compared with the company's map filed with the Public Service Commission, previously advertised in the newspapers and distributed in the Subway. The publication started argument at once, for Brooklynites who took Subway trains over to Manhattan found folders presenting the new map in all the stations, and found the new map advertised in the morning newspapers.

The official map and that contained in the pamphlets distributed throughout the Subway for the last few days designated lines which were to be "constructed by city and Interborough capital" by heavy black dashes, while "future extensions to subway system" were indicated by a series of circles. In the latter class were the Fort Hamilton and Coney Island and Fort Hamilton extensions of the Fourth Avenue (Brooklyn) Subway, the Nostrand Avenue extension of the Eastern Parkway Subway to Sheepshead Bay, the Livonia Avenue extension of the Eastern Parkway line, and all of the Woodside-Corona line in Queens beyond Woodside. As to all these future extensions the Interborough's offer stipulated that the company would operate them if the city built them with its own money, the company receiving a guarantee against any loss.

What stirred up the people of Brooklyn and Queens yesterday was that the maps advertised in the morning papers and distributed in a new folder indicated as "proposed subways, immediate construction, Interborough and city money," all the outlying lines just enumerated, and in addition showed several lines which had never figured on the company's prior maps. These were an extension of the Eastern District line under Bushwick Avenue from the junction of Lafayette Avenue down Utica Avenue to Eastern Parkway, and an extension under Nimrod Street and Cypress Avenue to Ridgewood, both lines in the heavy dashes indicating "immediate construction, Interborough and city money," besides a "future extension" indicated in circles from Ridgewood to Jamaica, which had not figured on any of the previous maps of the Interborough.

Under the new map it was set forth: "These are the lines which the Interborough proposes shall be constructed at once, and which it agrees to operate for a five-cent fare." It was also declared:

> The building of these subways will be commenced at the same time with those in Manhattan, and they will be operated in connection with the present Subway system, station by station, as completed. This will give Brooklyn the use of new subways in a little over two years and several years sooner than under any other plan.
> Passengers from Coney Island and Fort Hamilton branches can travel across Manhattan Bridge to City Hall, or they can go direct through Fulton Street and either of the tunnels, and up the east side or west side of New York.

The Public Service Commission promptly began to get inquiries as to whether the Interborough had filed an amended offer. Information came from the commission that no new proposal had been made, and that the Interborough had not changed its offer with respect to operation under a guarantee only of any of the lines previously classed as "future extensions."

The Brooklyn transit conference sought a meeting with officials of the Interborough company early in the afternoon at the Brooklyn Club. This meeting was secret, and not even the personnel of those attending it became known. At the Broadway office of the company, however, General Manager Frank Hedley consented to answer questions about the new map. His explanation was as follows:

"The Interborough has been asked by a number of Brooklyn bodies what could be done for Brooklyn under its offers of Dec. 5 and May 9. Our answer was that this can be done for Brooklyn and should be done for Brooklyn, the construction to commence immediately. The additional lines shown in black on this map could be built by city money, which will make the city's total contribution if all these lines were built as shown in the map in heavy dotted lines, $110,000,000. All of these lines will cost to construct $168,000,000. These lines shown in rings, will cost $90,000,000, making a grand total of $198,000,000. That is $28,000,000 less than will be required to build the lines shown on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit map."

"Has the Interborough put in any additional offer since the one of May 9 modifying and enlarging its proposition of Dec. 5?" was asked.

Mr. Hedley replied in the negative.

"That being true, why should not the lines in the Brooklyn map be the same as those shown in the pamphlet maps which are being distributed in the elevated and subway stations in Manhattan?"

Mr. Hedley hesitated a moment, and then replied:

"We were asked by the Brooklyn bodies to show what the Interborough could do on its propositions that it had before the city assuming that the city had about $100,000,000 to spend. This map is our answer."

"Has the Interborough ever formally proposed building a subway from the junction of Buffalo and Utica Avenues to Ridgewood immediately?"

"It has in its propositions of Dec. 5 and May 9 left it entirely for the city to decide when and where it shall build extensions to the Subway with the city's money for construction and the Interborough's money for equipment, and the Interborough must operate such lines under its proposition whereever and whenever built by the city for a single five-cent fare from one end of the greater city to the other."

"But your company has never formally proposed the immediate building of that line?" Mr. Hedley was asked.

"Why," he said, "I don't think that is a fair question."

"And the same applies to the Coney Island, Fort Hamilton, Nostrand Avenue, Sheepshead Bay, and Woodside and Corona extensions?" he was asked.

"Yes," replied Mr. Hedley.

Mr. Hedley confirmed the information obtained at the Public Service Commission that the Interborough had not withdrawn its demand for a guarantee against loss in operating any extensions which the city may build.

The Public Service Commission and Mr. McAneny received yesterday from Col. T. S. Williams, President of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, a letter confirming an agreement made at the last conference with the B. R. T. officials whereby the B. R. T. agrees that if the city wants it to build an elevated structure along its West End and Gravesend Avenue lines in South Brooklyn, the new railroads shall be considered as extensions of the Fourth Avenue Subway, title to vest in the city, subject to the reimbursement of the company in case the city acquired these lines after ten years under the indeterminate clause in the franchise.

TO ASK NEW EXTENSION.

Washington Heights Taxpayers Propose a Line to Riverdale.

After a long argument as to the relative merits of the Interborough and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Companies' subway offers, the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association at its regular monthly meeting at 558 West 158th Street last night decided to appoint a committee to confer with the Interborough officials and see if that company will include an extension of the Eighth Avenue Elevated Line under 168th Street and Fort Washington Avenue to Riverdale. It was argued that this extension would afford early relief by diverting to itself and the elevated system a certain amount of traffic now obliged to seek the Broadway Division of the Subway.

Neither of the pending offers, according to the speeches at the meeting last evening, will do much good for Washington Heights.

It was further decided at the meeting, which was stormy, that the committee should proceed forthwith to the Board of Estimate and favor giving the franchise to one or the other of the two companies at its own discretion.

1,000,000 BUSHELS IN MAY WHEAT DEAL

William Lanyon Credited with Holdings Worth $1,000,000 and Taking All That Is Offered.

SHORTS BEGIN TO WORRY

Deliveries Must Be Made by Noon Next Wednesday and Supplies Are Short at Present.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 26.—William Lanyon, a capitalist, is engineering one of the biggest wheat deals which has been attempted since the days of the great plungers, John W. Kauffman and Corwin H. Spencer.

More than 1,000,000 bushels of May wheat, valued at nearly $1,000,000, are involved in the transactions in which Lanyon through his brokers has played a conspicuous part in the last few days. Lanyon is on the bull side of the market and has been buying up all the wheat in sight in the St. Louis market, and at the same time has been keeping the wires hot between St. Louis and the Chicago Board of Trade.

As all the deliveries must be made to Lanyon by noon next Wednesday, the last day of the month, the traders who have sold the wheat are making heroic efforts to obtain a sufficient quantity of the grain to fill their contracts with him. If they cannot get the wheat by the end of the month they will have to pay Lanyon the difference between the price at which he bought it and the market price of the day.

Lanyon has been represented in the deal largely by the Hubbard-Moffitt Commission Company. Arrayed against him on the short side have been some of the leading cash grain and elevator interests.

Lanyon yesterday had an offer of 500,000 bushels of cash wheat. He took it all and paid for it. Since then 200,000 bushels more have been tendered to him. He paid cash for that also.

Only sales have been made of this wheat for the reason, it is said, that Lanyon will not sell or settle contracts except at the closing quotation on the May option. Recently, it is said, some big shorts tendered to Lanyon 100,000 bushels of No. 2 red wheat from public elevators. His expert grain inspectors examined it and turned it down as being below grade. The shorts were forced to go elsewhere for their supplies.

Lanyon said to-day he expected his deliveries before the last day of May to exceed 1,000,000 bushels, and he was prepared to pay cash for it all. When asked if there was a chance for a squeeze of shorts in the closing days of the option, he smiled.

"If there are any big short contracts outstanding," he said, "and they haven't got the grain to deliver, they will have to pay the piper."

Lanyon expects to dispose of the surplus by merchandising it to the milling trade.

Lanyon broke into the limelight on 'Change a year ago when he accumulated a heavy line of May corn. On a hot wind scare the price rose 4 cents a bushel overnight. Then suddenly the heat wave was broken and the weather turned ideal for the crop. Corn started on a decline from 64 cents in May. It never stopped until it sold at 40 cents in November.

Lanyon, it is said, was forced to take deliveries in May of close to 500,000 bushels. He merchandised his holdings.

GAMBLERS ON THE LUSITANIA.

Clean Up $14,000 from Unsuspecting Passengers, Says an Eye-Witness.

The story of how two card sharps cleaned up at least $14,000 during the voyage of the Cunard liner Lusitania, which ended at this port yesterday morning, was told by one passenger who watched the game. There were times during the four fruitful days at sea when as much as $1,000 at a time was in the jack pots. One man lost that sum in the hour during which he "sat in" and then in disgust at what he considered his ill-luck he quit the game. It was not luck that separated him from his money, according to the passenger.

The man who told the story asked that his name be withheld. He said that he had lived most of his life in the West where gambling houses flourished in the open, but never in his experience had he seen such quick action and such a passing of signals as had marked the game on the Lusitania. Hour after hour, he said, he sat and watched the game, but did not feel called upon to protest as the players appeared well able to pay for their experience. The play was fast, he said, because good hands were dealt—hands which, had the game been on the level, would have been worth every bit of the risk taken upon them. Three kings would go up against three aces and a "six full" against one which just topped it. He said the victims appeared to be without suspicion and on each hand dealt they bet with confidence.

There was no trouble on board over the games and many of the passengers did not know that gaming for high stakes was going on. The game ended when the vessel anchored at quarantine. The losers paid and the winners landed unmolested with their gains.

CAUGHT ON STOLEN STEEDS.

Police, in Auto, Run Down Thieves in Queens County.

From sunrise until sunset yesterday a large touring car in which were police officers from South Ozone Park zigzagged back and forth through Queens County in search of two horse thieves who had forced the stable door at David P. Leahy's home in South Ozone Park and had made off with his fleetest pair of saddle horses.

At 6 o'clock last night the pursuing police officers reached the Brooklyn Horse Market, where they had been informed two hard-ridden horses had been offered for sale. Two men on horseback were seen disappearing in the distance as the officers drove up. They went in pursuit and as the horses were thoroughly tired overtook them before the first mile had been completed.

The men on stepping down out of their saddles described themselves as John Wiedner, an electrician, of 688 Lexington Avenue, Brooklyn, and Theodore Beller, 18 years old, living at 672 Stockholm Street. They had offered the horses for sale for $150, the proprietor of the horse market said, and this fact aroused his suspicions, as the horses were easily worth twice that sum.

In the pockets of one of the men the police say they found a lockpick, while from their general description and that given of men involved in other horse thefts in Queens County they believe that they captured men for whom they have long been looking. The men were taken in custody to Jamaica after being arraigned and held on a charge of robbery in the Manhattan Avenue Court.

HOT WAVE OVER WEST ONE IS COMING EAST

SCORES OF PROSTRATIONS

May Records Are Broken, but Showers Are Expected to Bring Cooler Temperatures—Wyoming Has a Snowstorm.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Seasonal records were broken to-day by a hot wave that extended through the Middle West, the interior East, and the South, while Sheridan, Wyo., shivered in a snowstorm. The Weather Bureau's summing up to-night of conditions the country over showed that through the Mississippi Valley temperatures ran from 90 degrees to a little over 94 in Chicago, while 96 was common in the South.

The sweltering wave in the big area that includes Chicago, St. Louis, and other Middle West cities, is expected to be relieved immediately by showers, with a cooler wave, in their wake.

In South Dakota the official record ran to 92 degrees, when it dropped rapidly after a thunderstorm. The East to-day enjoyed a respite from extreme heat, but a hot wave that may send temperatures up into the nineties again is scheduled to arrive to-morrow or Sunday.

CHICAGO, May 26.—The second day of sweltering weather, with the thermometer equaling its May record of yesterday, 94.2 degrees, caused six deaths and scores of prostrations to-day. The suffering was more intense than yesterday, because the breeze was not so strong.

Many families made preparations to spend most of the night in the open air and as darkness came on the parks and the lake shore were crowded.

In the tenement quarters the suffering was intense. Thousands of pounds of ice were distributed by the city and county and by relief associations. In spite of this the police patrols and ambulances of the west side stations were kept busy taking prostrated persons to hospitals.

ST. LOUIS, May 26.—This was the hottest May day locally since the establishment of the Weather Bureau, the Government thermometer registering 94 degrees, while the mercury in a Government kiosk at street level touched 99 degrees. One death and seven prostrations due to heat were reported. All public schools closed at noon.

TOLEDO, Ohio, May 26.—Heat records in this city for the last thirty years were broken this afternoon when the mercury reached 93 degrees.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 26.—Two deaths and a dozen prostrations to-day were the result of the second day of sweltering weather in Cincinnati.

FRENCH DETECTIVE AT VITERBO TRIAL

M. Pauchon Testifies That Rapi Was Expelled from France for Being a Card Sharper.

ALFANO'S FIANCEE HEARD

VITERBO, May 26.—The entire morning sitting of the Camorra trial here was occupied with the interrogation of a French policeman, who testified regarding the antecedents of Giovanni Rapi, the supposed Treasurer of the Camorra Society.

Rapi, who is also known as 'o Professore Rapi, from the fact that he once taught school in Naples, is by profession a high-class gambler. He founded the Unione del Mezzogiorno of Naples, of which he forced the Duca di Noia to become President, and also conducted gambling establishments at Rome, Paris, and Ostend. In his Neapolitan resort Gennaro Cuocolo, the murdered member of the secret society, is asserted to have gathered information concerning its patrons, who later were victims of the Camorra.

The French witness testified that Rapi had been expelled from France because he was known to be a card sharper in gambling houses of that country.

Rapi denied the policeman's statement, saying that if it were true the French police would have denounced him to the judicial authorities.

Adele Esposito, fiancée of Enrico Alfano, alias Erricone, was then interrogated, and gave testimony most favorable to him.

"Erricone," she said, "was a most honest man, and quite incapable of committing crime."

The woman then told the court how she and Erricone were arested several days after the murder of Cuocolo and his wife.

The mother, sister, and brother of Adele also were questioned, but they added nothing new to her testimony.

The Vice Prefect of the police in Naples recounted minutely the details of the finding of the body of Cuocolo's wife, the condition of the apartment, and also how, a few days later, the police accused Erricone and his companions, who had stopped at the Mimi a Mare tavern on the night of the murders, of being instigators of the murder and arrested them.

The court did not sit on Thursday, that being the Feast of the Ascension. The French policeman called is the second witness for the prosecution to be heard, the first being Raffaele de Filippis, the examining Magistrate at Torre del Greco, who testified on Wednesday in regard to the finding of Gennaro Cuocolo's body by the carter who was passing through the Cupa Calastro at 6 A. M. June 6, 1906, the morning after the murder.

The French policeman who testified yesterday is Inspector Paucheron of the staff of M. Lépine, the Paris Prefect of Police. In defending himself at a preliminary interrogation, Rapi declared that while in France he had conducted himself like a gentleman, (un gentluomo,) and that he had always toiled there with "diligence and patience." When asked what his employment had been in Paris, he replied:

"My business was uncured ostrich plumes and champagne. There are those books of the police in which the exercise of my business is recorded."

But the prosecution did not confine itself to the Paris "Register of Foreign Merchants Doing Business," it also requested M. Lépine to send an official who knew all about Rapi; so M. Paucheron went to Viterbo.

There are two Parisian sojourns of 'o Professore Rapi in which the prosecution is particularly interested. One was from 1898 until 1902; the other was from January until August, 1907. The first dates from his flight to Paris after a certain Pasquino had been killed during a "dichiaramenti," or prepared quarrel, in a restaurant, for suspicion that Rapi had hired some assassins to quarrel with Pasquino was imparted to the police because Pasquino had, a few days before, assaulted Rapi while he was walking with a woman in the Piazza San Ferdinando.

In 1902 Rapi returned to Naples with several hundred thousand francs and founded the fashionable gaming club of the Unione del Mezzogiorno patronized by the aristocracy of Naples. It was here, as is stated in the foregoing cable dispatch, that Cuocolo as a "basista," or planner of crime for the Camorra, gained much information, but it was also here that, later on, Maresciallo Parris, the carabiniere detective, learned of the ramification of the Camorra among the "first families" of Naples.

Rapi's second Parisian sojourn covers the time when he was "tipped off" by some one that the carabinieri, or national military police, were investigating the Cuocolo murders until he was enticed back to Italy by an agent of the military police sent by Capt. Fabbroni to watch him in Paris.

Inspector Paucheron has a complete "dossier" of police reports covering both of Rapi's sojourns in the City of Light, and even his visit to England and Belgium, for the Pasquino affair had caused Rapi to be placed under the surveillance of the international police, even after the Questura of Naples had dropped the case. This French Inspector went to Viterbo to declare that to Professore Rapi was considered a "baro," or card sharper, and for that reason he had been expelled from France in 1902.

M. Paucheron has with him the following memoranda:

"Giovanni Rapi reached France in the beginning of 1898; at that time he declared himself to be a former professor of the University of Naples; we ascertained, however, that he was not even an elementary teacher there.

"He took lodgings at 45 Rue Richet, and passed himself off as a dealer in ostrich feathers. Immediately after his arrival in Paris he was noticed to frequent gambling houses, and was known to be a 'runner-in.'

"Later he lived at 48 Rue de Londres; and then—this was in 1902—he had no other occupation than to frequent race tracks and gambling houses.

"We suspected that he was a card sharper, and our suspicion became a certainty. In the police books he is designated as 'a card sharper and a cheater at cards by profession.'

"It is, therefore, permitted us to affirm in the most positive manner that the luxury in which Rapi lived while in Paris was due entirely to his profession as a sharper and the indirect profits from that profession, and for that reason he was ordered to leave France."

Rapi's contention that had he been regarded as a card sharper by the French police he would have been denounced to the judicial authorities does not hold, since no specific charge of breaking the laws had been brought against him. Rapi was simply asked to leave France as an undesirable alien.

FEARED MORGAN AS BUYER.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 26.—Fears that America, as represented particularly by J. Pierpont Morgan, would acquire the copy of Fox's "Book of Martyrs," owned by Bunyan, were responsible for a dramatic surprise at Sotheby's auction rooms to-day, when the work, which the author of "The Pilgrim's Progress" read and signed during his incarceration in Bedford Jail, was withdrawn from sale by order of the Attorney General.

The book was being put up at auction by the Bedford Literary Institute, which claimed to be its absolute owner, with the right to do what it pleased with it. The institute is in financial difficulties, and hoped to realise between £800 and £1,000 by the sale.

A few days ago The London Times printed a letter from Dr. Rendel Harris, a well-known connoisseur, asking whether it was "either decent or patriotic to throw such a book on what is practically the American market."

The next day a question on the subject was asked in Parliament. The Attorney General, Sir Rufus Isaacs, then said he could take no action to prevent the sale on the information he had available, but he would consider any further information he received.

Evidently further information induced Sir Rufus Isaacs to prohibit the sale, at least for the present. Representatives of the Bedford Institute claim their ability to demonstrate their right to dispose of the book, and say its sale will eventually be effected.

PORTUGAL ALERT.

Takes Strong Precautions to Repress Royalists—Arrests Continue.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 26.—A Daily Mail dispatch from Lisbon, mailed across the frontier, and telegraphed here from Paris, says:

"The Republican Government is taking great precautions here and all over the country to repress severely any royalist agitation. The newspapers say that the Spanish Government has ordered the removal to Madrid of Portuguese suspects residing on the frontier.

"There is the greatest anxiety here to get news from the north. The press continues to deny the existence of any cause for fear. Many important arrests continue to be made all over the country.

"Lisbon is empty. The streets are deserted. Hundreds of Carbonari members of the Great Republican Secret Society, sleepless and vigilant, parade the streets and barracks at night, all ready, at the first alarm, to give their lives for the republic.

BERTEAUX FUNERAL IMPOSING

All Paris Gathers Along the Route—Public Schools Close.

PARIS, May 26.—The funeral of Henri Maurice Berteaux, the French Minister of War who lost his life in the aeroplane accident that marred the opening of the Paris-to-Madrid aviation race on Sunday, was made the occasion of an impressive national demonstration here to-day.

All the active officials of the country, including both the civil and military branches of the Government were represented, as were all the foreign Governments, who either sent special envoys or commissioned members of the Diplomatic Corps to act in that capacity.

The public schools were closed and all Paris appeared to be gathered along the route of the procession, which moved between ranks of the military.

Eulogies of the dead statesman were delivered at the Ministry of War by Antoine Perrier, the Minister of Justice, (who represented the cabinet), A. Dubost, President of the Senate, and Henri Brisson, President of the Chamber of Deputies, (who spoke on behalf of Parliament), and by Gen. Michel, for the army.

Gen. Francois Goiran to-day accepted the portfolio of the Ministry of War, in succession to the late M. Berteaux.

So successful was the experiment that it is now announced that the British dependencies will be linked together by wireless, and plans to this end are now being made.

Between seventy and eighty new stations will be required.

LONDON, May 26.—A tin biscuit box containing thirty American and international money orders, ranging in amounts from $5 to $150, was picked up in the Thames by the master of a barge which arrived at Rochester, near London, this afternoon.

The money orders were issued at Stromsburg, Neb., and made payable at Paulpietersburg, Natal. A letter with the orders signed J. H. Rosene and addressed to Auguste Rosene at Paulpietersburg, referred to the sums of money enclosed in the letter. None of the money orders has been canceled, so evidently they have not been cashed.

OFFER OLIVE BRANCH TO UNION SEMINARY

Presbyterians Ask for a Conference to Restore Harmony with the Assembly.

COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED

Dr. Grant Convicted of Heresy and Suspended Until He Recants, by Unanimous Vote of the Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, May 26.—The Presbyterian General Assembly voted to-day to hold out the olive branch to the Union Theological Assembly, in an endeavor to end the theological warfare that has disturbed the church for fifteen years.

This action is regarded by Presbyterians as far more important than the finding of the Rev. Dr. William D. Grant guilty of unorthodox views and suspending of him for an indefinite period. Dr. Grant is a graduate of Union, and his views are those which have caused all the criticism of the seminary, and one ex-Moderator exclaimed when the peace offering was extended:

"They have chastised the pupil, but allowed the teacher to go free."

The Grant verdict was approved by the Commissioners, most of them holding that nothing else could be done. Charles S. Cairns, Moderator of the judicial commission, presented its report, which stated that Dr. Grant's teachings denying the mediatorial office of Jesus Christ and his statements impugning the credibility of the Scriptures had led to a reversion of the findings of the lower court and to his suspension.

"The commission finds that he taught in a manner that impugns the authority of the Old and New Testaments," announced Mr. Cairns. "In doing this he is guilty of an offense against the standards of his Church, as no minister is entitled to maintain his status in the Presbyterian Church who takes such a position."

The applause which greeted this announcement brought a sharp reproof from the Moderator, Dr. Carson, who reminded the Commissioners they were sitting as a court. Mr. Cairns announced Dr. Grant's suspension "until such time as he shall make manifest to the satisfaction of his presbytery renunciation of the errors he has been found to hold, and to promise to teach them no more."

Friends of Dr. Grant pointed out that there is nothing to prevent him from appealing to his Presbytery at its next meeting, and by recanting any views that might be taken to attack the basic doctrines of the Church be reinstated within a short time.

Dr. Grant was present when the report of the commission was read. Before the vote his counsel wanted to read a statement for Dr. Grant, but his request was refused. The statement, which was in the nature of an affirmation of faith in the great doctrines of the Church, follows:

Few men have suffered as much for their beloved church as I have suffered for the church of my fathers. I reverently and lovingly bow to its decision. I do now affirm, as I have many times affirmed during these proceedings, my unqualified faith in my blessed Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, in His Deity, Virgin Birth, resurrection, and mediatorial work, and in the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments, as the infallible rule of faith and life. I have never knowingly taught anything contrary to the above declarations.

Some of the statements I have made in my articles I can now see are subject to misconstruction, but if I cannot preach the great doctrines of grace, as given us in the New Testament, in the Presbyterian Church, I ought to leave her ministry, but I trust it shall be my privilege and joy to continue to proclaim those doctrines as long as God shall give me strength to do so.

The findings of the judicial commission were by unanimous vote.

The Union Theological Seminary resolution was by far the most important business of the day. As a result of long conferences by the Presbyterian leaders in the Hotel Chalfonte last night, and steam roller methods by the Moderator, the expected onslaught upon the seminary was converted into a love feast.

The Rev. Edwin J. Reinke of Philadelphia opened the proceedings by withdrawing his resolution presented yesterday, in which the assembly was asked to express its disapproval of "recent utterances of the Rev. Dr. William Adams Brown of Union Seminary," and admonish him to desist from disseminating such views.

"With the consent of the assembly, I shall offer a substitute," said Dr. Reinke. "I believe this whole matter can be harmoniously adjusted." And he read as follows:

Resolved, First, that the former doctrinal deliverance of the General Assembly be affirmed.

Second, that all ministers of the Church be admonished to refrain from utterances calculated to disturb its peace or contradict its doctrines.

Third, that no further action be taken on the overtures in question.

After these were passed the Rev. Dr. David Wylie of New York offered this resolution:

Whereas, the Union Theological Seminary in the City of New York was founded by the Presbyterian Church and has been largely endowed from Presbyterian sources; and

Whereas, for some years past there has developed a condition which led to the severing of the relations which have existed from the organization of the seminary between it and the General Assembly; and

Whereas, we are persuaded that there are in the Faculty and Directorate of Union Theological Seminary men who are in accord with evangelical Christianity as expressed in the standards of doctrine of the Presbyterian Church, and who are zealous in all good works for the growth of the kingdom of our dear Lord Jesus Christ and the world; and

Whereas, we believe that it would be a signal manifestation of the spirit of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, Who prayed that they all may be one, for Christian brethren under the gracious guidance of the Holy Spirit to remove all misunderstanding, alienation, and antagonism, and to become vitally and aggressively united in the doctrine and fellowship of our beloved Church in the work of bringing the Nation and the world to Christ; therefore be it

Resolved, That this General Assembly authorises the Moderator to appoint a committee of nine to consist of five ministers, of whom he shall be one, and four ruling elders, none of whom shall be connected with Union Seminary, to confer with the Directorate and Faculty of said seminary with a view to the re-establishment of harmonious relations between the seminary and the General Assembly on the basis of the standards of the Presbyterian Church, this committee to report to the next General Assembly.

In the midst of the assembly's deliberations a wave of applause drowned every other sound as William Jennings Bryan, escorted by the Rev. Dr. H. Tyrrell Lee, was seen going down the aisle. The Nebraska statesman was greeted effusively by the Moderator, who introduced him as "one of the honored Elders of the Presbyterian Church." Mr. Bryan briefly addressed the Commissioners, saying:

"Of late I have been planning to attend such meetings more frequently. I recognize the importance of these gatherings and the opportunity of speaking to leaders of Christian thought, the men who set up the standards of morality as well as the standards of our faith."

MONROE DOCTRINE AND PEACE

London Spectator Discusses Its Bearing on Anglo-American Arbitration.

LONDON, May 27.—The Spectator today comments on the indorsement by Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, of the Monroe Doctrine during his speech at the dinner of the Pilgrims' Society last Tuesday night as expressing the universal feeling of Englishmen on the subject. In his speech Sir Edward defined the Monroe Doctrine as meaning that no European nation could acquire more territory on the American continent, and added: "Our policy is in full accord with that doctrine."

The Spectator points out that as things are the maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine necessitates the development by the United States of naval and military strength equal to the carrying out of the responsibility she assumes, the only alternative being the abandonment or modification of her Monroe policy. The journal hopes this latter step the United States will never take, as "we believe the doctrine is for the peace of the world and that she should insist on it."

The Spectator adds that if the present movement toward arbitration continues the maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine by consent might be possible. It considers Sir Edward Gray's definite recognition of the policy a long step in that direction.

KING RECEIVES OUR ADMIRAL.

Egan Presents Badger and Battleship Captains to Danish Monarch.

COPENHAGEN, May 26.—King Frederick to-day received in audience Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger, who was accompanied by the members of his staff and the Captains of the four battleships composing the Second Division of the United States Atlantic Fleet, now visiting Copenhagen. Dr. Maurice F. Egan, the American Minister, made the presentations.

Royal gala carriages were provided to take the American officers to and from the palace. King Frederick expressed his great appreciation of the visit of the American fleet, and Admiral Badger informed his Majesty that President Taft had commissioned him to say that the coming of the American squadron was intended as the highest possible compliment to Denmark.

The King complimented the officers on the smart appearance of the American sailors now thronging the city, and promised to visit the warships to-morrow. If the weather is good Queen Louise probably will accompany his Majesty.

The vessel was bound from Boston for Queenstown and Liverpool with 728 passengers, none of whom was injured.

UNUSUAL PRAISE

When the Gimbel Building was completed and an entire city block of ragged structures had been converted into one of the greatest department stores in the world, Walter G. Oakman, Esq., President of the Greeley Square Realty Company (the Owner), expressed his appreciation of our work in a letter which we quote in full:

"The building, known as the Gimbel Building, which has been under construction by you for this Company, having been completed and accepted by the Lessees, it gives me great pleasure to write to you in acknowledgment of the very satisfactory manner in which the contract has been performed.

"The construction has been carried forward under most rigid inspection by the Architects, and the work has been thoroughly good and substantial throughout. Its completion some six weeks in advance of the contract date, notwithstanding a most serious delay caused by strikes of labor organizations entirely beyond your control, attest the efficiency of your organization.

"I especially wish to thank you for the broad manner in which you have construed your contract obligations and been willing at all times to recognize any suggestions. No differences have occurred and no questions of variance between Contractor and Owner remain to be adjusted."

Will you be good enough to read that last paragraph again?

FIREPROOFING JOKER FOUND IN NEW CODE

ATTACK HOLLOW-TILE WORK

Still Demand Comparative Tests Recommended Two Years Ago by McClellan After Vetoing Code.

The fight against the proposed new Building Code was continued in earnest yesterday before the Aldermen's Buildings Committee, of which Mr. Kepneally is Chairman. The fireproofing sections were taken up, and it was declared by several reputable builders, architects, and contractors that they were as vicious as those in the code which Mayor McClellan interrupted his vacation two years ago to veto.

It had been declared by the Alderman and the men who are supposed to have framed the new code with him that the restrictions against cinder concrete of two years ago, which it was contended gave a practical monopoly to the hollow-tile method of fireproofing, had been removed and that the two methods had been put on a parity. Yesterday's developments did not seem to bear this out, however.

William Butler, representing the Building Trades Employers' Association, wanted to know why the tests on the comparative efficiency of cinder concrete and hollow tile, recommended by Mayor McClellan two years ago, had never been held. "I understand that Chief Engineer Lewis of the Board of Estimate asked the Aldermen for $10,000 to pay the expense of carrying out these tests," he said, "and that the money was refused."

"Well, you have been misinformed," replied Kenneally.

"That may be," cried Butler. "But I would like to know who drew this code, anyway. I am told that you and Mr. Moore and Mr. Myers did."

"Did I tell you that?" asked Kenneally.

"No," replied Mr. Butler, "but I believe it is true."

John D. Moore is the engineer who sat at Kenneally's right hand in the fight to put through the code two years ago.

G. Edward Escher, representing the White Fireproofing Construction Company, declared that the provisions of the new code would increase the cost of installing cinder-concrete fireproofing from 25 to 50 per cent.

"It is easy to see in what direction the fireproofing business will go," he said. "The standard of cinder concrete in use in this city to-day has been established by thorough tests made by the Superintendent of Buildings and experts from Columbia University and other places. The cinder-concrete interests are most anxious that the tests recommended by Mayor McClellan be conducted. We are willing to contribute to the cost of holding the tests, and are confident that hollow tile and terra cotta brick will not stand up under them as we will.

"We will be practically forced out of business if this code becomes a law. This will be a great injustice not only to us, but to the building interests of the city generally. All that we ask is that cinder concrete have the same opportunity that it has had in this city for the last ten years."

A formal protest against the fireproofing provisions was filed with the committee by the Bell Fireproofing Company, the H. W. Bell Company, the International Fireproofing Company, J. Henry Nicholson & Co., the Keystone Fireproofing Company, the United States Gypsum Company, and the Ebsary Fireproofing and Gypsum Block Company.

Albert Oliver, representing the Clinton Fireproofing Company, registered a strong protest. "These sections are unjust, inequitable, and are so framed as to constitute a menace to the business of scores of large concerns," said he. "If adopted they will be destructive to business and mean the throwing out of employment of thousands of men. We cannot stand quietly by and see this attack upon our rights as men engaged in legitimate business."

"Furthermore, hollow tile is not a perfect method of fireproofing. It went to pieces in San Francisco. It failed in the Parker Building fire, as it has done dozens of times in this city. I will conduct a test on any floor of the new Municipal Building over there, and if the hollow tile does not fail I will pay the cost myself."

"We could not allow that," commented Kenneally. "You will have to build your building somewhere else."

"We will be glad to do so if you will give us the opportunity."

The Aldermanic Chamber, in which the hearing was being held, was very warm, and a man in one of the rear seats fainted. He was carried to the committee room and an ambulance was called. He revived before it came, however, and said he was Henry J. McCormick, representing the United States Gypsum Company.

Irving T. Bush, President of the Bush Terminal Company of Brooklyn, protested against the fireproofing sections. "The Bush Company is interested in this matter in more than a selfish way," said he. "We have brought many concerns from out of town into the city, and this code would increase the cost of the construction of our type of buildings fully 25 per cent. This money would benefit nobody except the hollow-tile people."

John Gill, walking delegate of the Bricklayers' Union, talked for nearly an hour against cinder concrete. Hollow tile is laid by his union. He was followed by Mr. Moore, and then came James A. Allen, representing several cinder-concrete and gypsum-block concerns, who attacked the provisions of the code.

At the close of the hearing Mr. Gill and J. J. O'Brien, an ex-policeman from Queens, who is known as "Constitutional O'Brien," got into an argument at the door of the Chamber which nearly resulted in fisticuffs. They were separated by Aldermen White and Kenneally. The latter told O'Brien that he "had better get out and not talk so much. Some of your work was thrown out by the Bureau of Buildings last week because you did not use proper material."

"That's a lie," cried O'Brien, and he and the Alderman came near resuming the fight.

rrection Commissioner, Rumor Says, May Take Waldo's Place.

Commissioner of Correction Whitney, it was learned yesterday, has a good chance of succeeding Fire Commissioner Waldo. He served as a deputy under Nicholas J. Hayes. Whitney's is the most thorough Tammany appointment which Mayor Gaynor has made since he has been in office. He is a boyhood friend of Charles F. Murphy and was for many years treasurer of the Anawanda Club, the organization of Mr. Murphy's home Assembly district.

The elimination of Deputy Fire Commissioner O'Keeffe was a result of Commissioner Waldo's request that the Mayor let O'Keeffe take Clement J. Driscoll's place at Police Headquarters. The appointment seems to stand now between Mr. Whitney and Deputy Fire Commissioner Johnson.

When the Mayor left town for his usual week-end at his country place at St. James, L. I., on Thursday, he said that he would not announce the name of the new Fire Commissioner until Monday.

Court Sanctions Carnegie Dividend.

The State Banking Department's application for permission to pay a dividend of 25 per cent. on approved claims against the Carnegie Trust Company was granted yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Dickinson. Algernon S. Norton was appointed referee to pass on State Treasurer John J. Kennedy's contention that his claim, of $138,850.00 is entitled to priority and payment in full.

ONLY BAR STEEL CUT.

Rumors of Other Price Changes Were Due to a Misunderstanding.

Although the cut in steel bar prices made by the Republic Iron and Steel Company have been met by all the leading independents, the United States Steel Corporation itself, the steel selling agencies in New York yesterday reported that no appreciable increase in business had resulted. It was stated that a buying movement could not be expected till the situation had cleared.

Included in steel bar quotations are a number of shapes which are always quoted on the steel bar "cards" at the basic price of bars, plus certain extra charges. These include some ten different products, such an angles, tees, channels, hexagons, and roundz, of sizes limited to a three-inch cross section, and the changed quotations on these products gave rise to a misunderstanding yesterday as to the extent of the price cutting. Some of these bar products had been spoken of as "structural shapes," and this misconception of their relation to the larger products of the mills gave rise to stories that the price cuts had been extended to structural business.

The Republic Iron and Steel Company does not manufacture structural shapes except the small bar modifications already described, and its output of small steel plates, shafting, plate bars, billets, tubes, and pipes is not sufficient, it is believed, to be a moving factor in the trade situation. The company has a rail mill which is not yet in operation, and its new open-hearth steel plant, which will enable it to manufacture larger plates than at present, is not yet completed.

The departure of John W. Gates for Washington yesterday to give testimony before the Stanley Committee of Congress, which is investigating the Steel Corporation, focussed attention in Wall Street on his part in bringing about the Republic Iron and Steel Company's rupture with the United States Steel Corporation and the leading independents. He is the dominant voice in the company's affairs.

NEW JERSEY CROPS SHORT.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, May 26.—According to a report just issued by Franklin Dye, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, present indications are that there will be a serious shortage in New Jersey, below an average good year, of some important farm crops. This condition is due to the cold and late Spring and continued lack of sufficient rain.

In the hay crop the shortage will probably be 23 per cent., which means a money loss to the farmer, a less amount for feeding stock, and a higher price. Strawberries also suffer. The prospect for wheat, peaches, and apples is said to be encouraging.

RUSH TO CONSOLE LADY DUFF-GORDON

SECOND ARREST IS MADE

Abraham Merritt Surrenders to Answer Charge of Undervaluation in Customs Cases.

Abraham Merritt, formerly Secretary of Lucile, Limited, Lady Duff-Gordon's dressmaking establishment at 17 West Thirty-sixth Street, surrendered himself at United States Marshal Henkel's office in the Federal Building yesterday afternoon to answer a warrant charging him with conspiracy to defraud the Government by undervaluation of imported dresses, in conjunction with Thomas J. Duggan, the Manager of Lucile, Limited. Meanwhile all day there drove up to the doors of Lucile, Limited, a steady stream of carriages and automobiles whose occupants gathered in the parlors of the establishment and discussed with much interest and many expressions of sympathy for Lady Duff-Gordon the Government raid. Even the footman at Lucile, Limited, seemed to accept the situation with properly refined glee.

Mr. Merritt, who is a newspaper man and now disclaims all connection with Lucile, Limited, and says he is merely a friend of Lady Duff-Gordon, appeared at the Marshal's office with his attorney. He was taken before United States Commissioner Shields, and after a brief examination released on bail of $1,500, which was furnished by a surety company.

Eugene V. Daly, attorney for Lucile, Limited, was unwilling to discuss the case further than in this statement:

"We think that when the ownership of the London house and of the New York house are shown to be practically identical, the District Attorney will not look seriously upon the charges of undervaluation which have been instigated by a discharged employe. The discrepancies, if any, are merely a matter of bookkeeping. The importations are models, so called, and we shall prove that the valuation placed upon them was ample. Any one familiar with the business knows that models always sell for less than it cost to produce them."

Who the discharged employe is or who are the officers of the London and New York houses of Lucile, Limited, he was unwilling to state.

United States District Attorney Wise, commenting upon this statement, said yesterday:

"We do not care who the officers of the company are, if it has been reorganized as stated. You can't jail a corporation. It is sufficient for us that both the defendants named in the warrant signed the false declarations. We are unwilling at this stage to tell who has been the informant on whose disclosures the complaint was made. Whether that person shall share in whatever restitution the Government may get will rest in the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury. We shall show our hand only when we take the matter into court."

The District Attorney intimated that no further arrests were contemplated on the basis of the evidence now at hand, but said that indictments in the present case would probably be brought before the trial. He was unwilling to say how much the alleged undervaluations amounted to, explaining that a thorough investigation must be made by the Government officials before he could tell whether it was only a few thousand or more.

At the Ritz-Carlton Lady Duff-Gordon denied herself to all inquirers. It was reiterated from her apartments that she had no part whatever in the management of Lucile, Limited, now, but was only an artist engaged to design models for the firm.

TWINS LEFT IN CHAPEL.

Month-Old Girl Babies Found in Trinity After Two Women Depart.

Two richly clothed girl babies little more than a month old were abandoned yesterday afternoon in Trinity Chapel, in Twenty-fifth Street, west of Broadway, by two women, who disappeared before the infants were discovered. The babes were taken to Bellevue Hospital.

George Jaeger, a sexton, saw the women, each with an infant, enter the church and take seats in a pew off a side aisle. He also saw them depart, but did not notice that the infants were missing. Later he heard a cry, and found the babes in the pew.

Jaeger said the two women were well dressed and each wore a large plumed hat. He said they were apparently young women, and thinks he could identify them. Both infants were clothed in white, alike except for blue ribbon in the coat and cap of one. This led Jaeger to believe they were twins.

Setback for Bingham in Gaynor Suit.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court denied yesterday Gen. Theodore A. Bingham's appeal from a Supreme Court order refusing him permission to examine Mayor Gaynor before trial in his hundred-thousand-dollar suit against the Mayor for libel. The suit grows out of Mayor Gaynor's criticism, in a letter to Mayor McClellan, of Gen. Bingham's conduct as Police Commissioner in the Duffy case.

LAWYER REMAINS DISBARRED.

O'Sullivan for $300 Agreed to Get Mrs. Meyer's Husband Out of Sing Sing.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court denied yesterday the application of Michael O'Sullivan, a disbarred attorney and former policeman and Deputy Fire Marshal, for reinstatement to the rights of a practitioner.

O'Sullivan was charged with having received $300 from Mrs. Emily Meyer for the release from Sing Sing prison of her husband who was sentenced to serve twenty years for arson. The agreement, according to the testimony, was that O'Sullivan was to return $250 if he did not succeed in getting Meyer out of prison. He failed to get Meyer out or to return the money, but alleged that he had paid all but $75 of the $300 to other attorneys. Justice O'Laughlin dissented from the decree of disbarment and recommended that O'Sullivan be suspended for six months.

O'Sullivan told the court that after he was disbarred he failed to get employment and went to Panama where he was engaged as an electrician by the United States Government in connection with the excavation work for the Panama Canal. The climate, he said, injured his health and he was compelled to give up his position.

WANTS TO WED, NOT STUDY.

School Girl Pleads in Court That She Is "Almost Engaged."

The relative importance of going to school and becoming engaged to marry were discussed yesterday in the Flatbush Court, when fourteen-year-old Angeline Feine, daughter of Mrs. Catharine Feine of 426 Lefferts Street, Flatbush, was brought to the court for failure to attend school. Her mother was named as defendant in the case, but the young lady did all the talking.

When the Magistrate asked why she did not attend school, Miss Feine assured him that she was "almost engaged," and that she and her mother feared that if she attempted to go to school she would not be able to induce the young man to propose.

The girl was dressed in clothes very evidently the property of either her mother or an older sister. The mother, who stood beside the young girl, nodded her approval of what was said.

Magistrate Harris decided that the case was too deep a one to be settled quickly, and so adjourned it until next Tuesday, paroling the girl.

RUSSIA TO ADMIT AMERICAN JEWS

DONE AT TAFT'S REQUEST

Treaty "Rights of Residence and Travel" Recognized—All Restrictions May Eventually Be Removed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Taft's policy of seeking recognition on the treaty rights of American Jews in Russia through persistent diplomatic pressure instead of through the abrogation of the treaty of commerce and navigation of 1832 has at last borne fruit, and this Government has received information to the effect that hereafter Jews with American passports traveling abroad on business will be admitted to Russia when their passports have been properly vised by the Russian Embassy or Consulates in the United States, and that Russian diplomatic and consular officials in this country will now vise passports.

It has long been the attitude of the Russian Government that properly vised passports would be recognized, but the trouble has been that Jews could not get the Russian Embassy or any Russian Consulate to act. The change that has occurred in the situation consists in the new order to the diplomatic and consular officials. This change in Russia's attitude comes in response to the constant effort of this Government to obtain full recognition by Russia of her obligation under the "rights of residence and travel" stipulations of the old treaty. Through the State Department President Taft has lost no oportunity to press upon St. Petersburg the view that that treaty covered the case of the Jews as well as other American citizens.

Russia has always refused to permit Jews to travel there, even when equipped with passports. Her contention has been that under the treaty of 1832 all foreigners coming to Russia were subject to the operation of the local laws, and that inasmuch as the local laws forbade the travel of Jews, the fact that they came as American citizens with passports did not alter their situation. As a matter of fact the Russian Government has on several occasions in the last few years expressed the opinion that the time would come when these restrictions could be removed. But it has been represented to this Government that it required time to remove the opposition manifested by public sentiment in Russia.

The Russian Government now has the Douma to deal with, and it has been represented to this Government that it was impossible to obtain any action by the Douma favorable to the admission of Jews to the empire. It has been suggested that there was a slight but growing change in sentiment on the question in Russia, and that with the election of subsequent Doumas that change would probably be such as to make the removal of the restrictions possible.

It was in view of these representations that President Taft and Secretary Knox have been unwilling to adopt the course urged upon them by various committees of American Jews, who have sought to have this Government renounce the treaty of 1832. The position taken by the delegations of Jews who have called on the President in regard to the matter was that by the abrogation of that treaty Russia's commerce with the United States might be made to suffer in such a way as to lead that country to agree to a new treaty in which the case of the Jews would be fully and satisfactorily covered. But the President and Secretary Knox have felt that in view of the internal situation in Russia it would be impossible to force that Government to remove these restrictions by any such method as the revocation of the existing treaty.

It is understood here that the modification of attitude now agreed to by Russia is not all that is desired by this Government, but it is a step in the desired direction, and it is felt at the State Department that it is a decided gain. The view is expressed that within a comparatively short time now the restrictions may be fully removed.

SIX INQUIRIES ON AT ONCE.

John W. Gates the Star Witness at Steel Investigation To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The activity of the various investigating committees authorized by the House of Representatives will begin to-morrow, and six investigations will be in full blast under one roof. In the large hearing room of the House office building the Stanley Committee will begin its inquiry into the United States Steel Corporation. John W. Gates will be the chief witness. He will be asked about the taking over of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company by the Steel Corporation in President Roosevelt's Administration. Mr. Gates was heavily interested in the coal and iron company. The House appropriated $25,000 to-day to defray the expenses of the investigation.

Around the corridor on the floor below the Ashbridge Committee will dissect Post Office contracts and Post Office appointments in the effort to discover why Postmaster General Hitchcock's administration should be so aggravating to Democrats. A few doors on down the corridor on the same floor the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice will be occupied for several hours with what information Attorney General Wickersham can furnish in response to a great deal of Democratic curiosity as to use and application of the annual $250,000 fund appropriated for the detective work and special counsel necessary in order to keep the wicked trusts on the run.

A little further on the Committee on Expenditures in the State Department will be informing itself as to Dr. Hollander's financial legerdemain in the refunding of the Dominican debt. Still further on down the corridor Chairman Cline of the Committee on Public Buildings will be inquiring into the policy and cost of putting Post Offices in every county seat throughout the land. In another hearing room the Hardwick Committee on the Investigation of the Sugar Trust will be in session.

WILL OUST NAVY OFFICERS.

"Plucking" Board, Headed by Wainwright, Must Provide 15 Vacancies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The navy "plucking" board, which is the cause of many sleepless nights this time of the year among officers, was announced to-day. It consists of Rear Admiral Richard Wainwright, aid for operations; Rear Admiral Giles B. Harber, President of the Naval Retiring Board; Rear Admiral S. P. Osterhaus, commandant of the Mare Island Navy Yard, and designated for Commander in Chief of the Atlantic fleet, and Rear Admiral T. B. Howard, commanding the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet.

The plucking board must find fifteen officers deserving of compulsory retirement, unless there are some voluntary applications, as there usually are. The aim of the plucking plan is to keep up the "flow of promotion." The list of retirements will embrace five Captains, four Commanders, four Lieutenant Commanders, and two Lieutenants.

Taft Puts Wheeler in Postal Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Taft to-day announced the appointment of Harry A. Wheeler, Vice President of the Union Trust Company, and President of the Chicago Commercial Association, as a member of the commission to inquire into second-class postal matters. Mr. Wheeler succeeds Lawrence Maxwell of Cincinnati, resigned. The other members of the commission are Associate Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court and President Lowell of Harvard.

TAFT WINNING VOTES FOR RECIPROCITY BILL

Done to Force as High a Price as Possible, Admits President of Pulp Association.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Taft is more confident than ever before that the Canadian reciprocity measure will pass the Senate practically in the same form as adopted by the House of Representatives. He so assured callers at the White House this afternoon. The President takes this view notwithtanding the complications expected from the Root amendment regarding the duty on print paper. As to the Root amendment, which the New York Senator, in spite of the President's urgings, has refused to withdraw, the President is of the opinion that the protectionists haven't votes enough to adopt it.

Just now this amendment seems to be the test of the whole measure. The opinion at the Capitol is that if the President has strength enough to prevent the amendment being incorporated into the measure he still has more than strength enough to pass it through the Senate. In a way the paper section as passed by the House is the strongest political asset of the agreement, but in the Senate the bitterest fight has been waged against it in favor of the Root amendment. The President has worked hard against the amendment, however, and the story told the Finance Committee by John Norris of the price manipulations of the Print Paper Trust has had its effect.

A week ago it was confidently asserted that the full Republican vote on the committee would be cast for the Root amendment, but the President has had many talks with Chairman Penrose, and Mr. Penrose seems now to be working with the President. As leader of the Republican Senate Mr. Penrose could hardly do otherwise, though it is no secret that the general theory of reciprocity is traditionally distasteful to him. There may be one or two other members whom the President can influence, but regardless of the action of the committee the big fight on this amendment will come in the open Senate, and it is there the President feels most confident of his votes.

The other proposed amendments are mostly of insurgent parentage. They will command no enthusiastic regular support in the face of the President's attitude, and because the regulars will enjoy to the fullest the absurd spectacle of the great opponents of the Payne-Aldrich protective system working against their own party in an effort to prevent that protection being curtailed. In so far as Canada is concerned, by the President's reciprocity plan.

Exactly how the insurgents will line up on the final vote after their abortive amendments have been tabled—remains to be seen. One prominent insurgent, who has planned a list of amendments, said to-day that he wasn't certain how he would vote on the final bill. Mr. Bristow of Kansas is in a still more embarrassing position, for he has been instructed by his Legislature to support the President. Other insurgents shade off in both directions.

Vice President Sherman left the White House this morning and with his usual smile announced that a vote on reciprocity would be reached by June 15. As the direct election of Senators will not be decided until June 12, the Vice President's guess, if he meant it seriously, means nothing unless it indicates that some "frame-up" is planned for killing the measure on a series of amendatory votes. But the Vice President's smile was very broad when he made his forecast and in the House he was known as "Sunny Jim."

Meanwhile the hearings before the Senate Finance Committee continued. At to-day's session acknowledgment was made that the American Paper and Pulp Association at times had advised its members to curtail their production of paper and that its purpose was to educate the paper manufacturers of the country to get all they could for their product. The admission came from Arthur C. Hastings, President of the association. He denied, however, that any attempt had been made to fix arbitrarily the price of paper by gentlemen's agreement or otherwise.

Mr. Hastings acknowledged in reply to a query by Senator Stone, that he had sent out letters last July to the members of the association, advising them to reduce their product because of over-supply of the market and that at other times he had advised storing part of their product until supply and demand were more nearly equal. He denied that he had suggested to them the price they should demand or at what price they should sell.

Senator Bailey suggested that Mr. Hastings in appearing before the Finance Committee might be seeking immunity from being called as a witness in case the Government should investigate the so-called "paper trust." Mr. Bailey said that if there was such a trust he wanted to see it prosecuted. Mr. Hastings announced that he would waive any immunity he might secure as a result of his appearance to-day.

In answer to the charge that the International Paper Company controlled the paper industry of the country, Mr. Hastings said the company owned only about 30 or 40 per cent. of the 800 paper and wood pulp mills of the United States.

When Senator Stone asked if there was not some sort of understanding between the paper manufacturers as to curtailment of production when they were so advised by the American Paper and Pulp Association, Mr. Hastings said the Senate "seemed to be suffering from the disease of suspicion."

"Then I come to you as a physician to cure me," retorted Mr. Stone.

Mr. Hastings would not acknowledge that there was any fixing of prices. He attacked the newspapers, declaring that they were "not fit to read half the time."

"And yet you are willing to furnish the paper on which to print this bad news?" asked Senator Stone.

"I am not in business for a moral purpose," answered Mr. Hastings.

Senator Stone is preparing to examine closely John H. Allen and Whidden Graham of the firm of Allen & Graham of New York, charged with having been employed by the National Grange to "manufacture sentiment" against the Reciprocity bill. They were summoned yesterday by the committee to appear before it on Monday to tell of their connection with the propaganda of opposition, and to-day they notified the committee that they will be present. Senator Stone accused the firm yesterday of being "promoters," although the committee had been informed that Allen and Graham were acting as attorneys for the National Grange.

The House to-day adjourned until Tuesday. As that is Memorial Day, no business will be done, and another adjournment will be taken until next Friday, when the Wool Tariff Revision bill probably will be ready. The measure will be considered by the Democratic caucus on Thursday.

CANADIAN ELECTIONS LATER.

Voting on Reciprocity More Likely in November Than September.

OTTAWA, Ontario, May 26.—Stories printed in conservative papers throughout Canada asserting that party leaders had received trustworthy information that a general election would be held in September on the reciprocity issue, are not credited in official circles. There is practically no change, it is said, in the outlook since Parliament adjourned. Although generally expected that the Government will appeal to the country this Fall, it is improbable that an election will be held before November.

When Parliament reassembles on July 18 the Government, backed by a majority of forty, will make a final effort to put the reciprocity agreement through the House. If it is found that no progress can be made on account of obstructive tactics and the United States Senate meantime has passed the bill, there will be an appeal to the electorate.

GORE FOR WILSON TO LEAD IN 1912

FORECAST OF BRYAN'S STAND

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—T. P. Gore, the blind Senator from Oklahoma, and counted one of the straight-out Bryan men, has declared unequivocally for the nomination by his party of Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey for the Presidency in 1912. His expression comes in a letter regretting his inability to attend a Wilson meeting in Baltimore. Mr. Gore does not refer to Mr. Bryan, but it is known here that the peerless leader has in many private communications to his friends expressed his approval of Mr. Wilson's candidacy.

Mr. Gore's letter says:

"If it be the purpose of the proposed meeting to advance the prospects of Mr. Wilson for the Presidency I am in hearty accord with that motive and object. I have canvassed the political situation and outlook with some care, and have concluded to support Mr. Wilson for the nomination. Several distinguished and deserving Democrats are being strongly urged for the Presidential nomination. It must be owned that the Democracy has a wealth of material for the Presidency. It is easier to nominate a Democrat who deserves to win than to nominate one who is able to win. We must seek a leader in whom these two qualities are united. I believe that Mr. Wilson answers both requirements.

"In saying this I disparage no one who is or may be an aspirant. If the collective wisdom of Democracy should select another leader I should follow him with unfaltering fidelity. To illustrate my feelings, if the brilliant Speaker of the House should be nominated I should follow him with as much devotion as the French soldiery followed the white plume of Navarre.

"Our nominee should be chosen without prejudice or partiality. He should deserve to win. He should receive the unanimous support of a united party. When Democrats divide Republicans conquer. Harmony is indispensable to success. We should impose a prohibitive tariff on the 'apples of discord.'

"I believe that every Democrat could support Mr. Wilson without compromising his conscience or his convictions. In respect of principle he is a Democrat of the ancient and accepted order. Democracy means the rule of the people. He believes that the governed should govern. He trusts the people; the people can trust him.

"In respect of legislative policies he is abreast of the times. He is in harmony with the spirit of enlightened and rational progress, and yet he is wise enough to know that 'too swift arrives as tardy as too slow.'

"We must not overestimate our own strength or underestimate that of our adversary. With New Jersey and New York, Democratic success is possible. Without those States defeat is inevitable. If any one can carry those States Wilson can. If he cannot, no one can. In point of availability, therefore, he outranks his Democratic compatriots.

"Public sentiment is to a nation what conscience is to an individual. Public sentiment to-day demands a leader who has been weighed and has not been found wanting. As Governor of New Jersey Wilson has made good. He has redeemed the State. He has fought a good fight. He has kept the faith. He has borne fruit. He has been faithful over a few things. The Democracy should afford the American people an opportunity to place him in authority over many things. For my own part, and I speak for myself alone, I shall do what I can to bring about a consummation so devoutly to be wished."

WILSON ON STATE RIGHTS.

Governor Says States Are Full Partners with Federal Government.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 26.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey addressed the Commercial Club of this city at its annual dinner to-night. He said in part:

"When we discuss the powers of the States in our day we are not reviving the old academic question of 'State rights.'

"Almost of a sudden, it would seem, the States have stepped forward and reasserted themselves as full partners with the Federal Government in the inspiriting programme of progressive reform.

"The Federal Government can in the nature of the case go no further than the broad outlines of regulation, the establishment of those conditions of law which will fit the country as a whole, which will prevent the collision, the undesirable rivalry, and opposition of its several parts. It can only sketch in broad outline the economic and political regulation which is necessary for the life of the country. The States must fill in the detail.

"For the daily convenience and freedom of our people the control of trolley lines, of gas companies, of electric light and power companies, is even more important than the control of great railways. The way in which these local public service corporations are managed has a vast deal to do not only with the convenience and comfort of our several communities but with their development, with their actual existence, with the whole question of the congestion of population and the maintenance of wholesome and sanitary and convenient conditions. Their control is necessarily a question for the States."

RAISING OLD GHOSTS AT CASTLE STEVENS

Alumni Day Will Usher in a Great Celebration in Hoboken by All Classes of the Institute.

STREET PARADE A FEATURE

The ghosts of olden days will be seen in Hoboken streets this afternoon when Alumni Day of Stevens Institute of Technology will be observed and the "old boys" of Stevens will formally take over Castle Stevens, an historic manor of ante-bellum times, which stands on a tall bluff overlooking the Hudson, opposite Twenty-third Street. These ghosts, so called by the "old boys" of Stevens, are models of engineering of the Stevens family and impersonations of the original faculty in the classes between 1873 and 1883.

The models of engineering of the old Stevens family will be carried on floats in the pageant which the graduates of Stevens Institute have arranged for Alumni Day, and the taking over of Castle Stevens, which has been evacuated by the Stevens family and acquired as an alumni headquarters.

The parade, which will be the first feature of the programme, will form at the college building in Hoboken and will follow a line of march through the principal streets of the town and enter Castle Point athletic field about 2:45 o'clock in the afternoon. The classes will be arranged according to the chronology of the events they will portray and not in the order of their graduation. Every class, from the earliest graduated, in 1873, to the most recent in 1910, will take part in the pageant. The present senior class of Stevens Institute, 1911, which will graduate during the week following Alumni Day, will march in cap and gown as an escort to the "Old Guard" classes which were graduated prior to 1884.

Several of the classes have already announced their definite selection of subjects. The Old Guard will represent, in appropriate costume, the members of the original Stevens faculty under whom they studied. Those of the Old Guard not thus costumed will march as a guard of honor to the others.

The classes of 1887-1889 will have a float representing Col. John Stevens's twin screw boat of 1804, which was invented by the Colonel and designed before Fulton had the Clermont on the water. This craft was built, together with its engine, by the Stevens family's own efforts in their own shop in Hoboken, and was operated on the Hudson River until Fulton's monopoly of steam navigation on the Hudson drove the Stevens family to experiments on the Delaware River at Philadelphia. Fulton's boat was built in England, while that of Col. Stevens was constructed by home labor and of home materials. Members of the classes who will march beside the float and will man the model steamboat will wear sailor's costumes of that period.

The class of 1890 will reproduce the steam locomotive built by Col. John Stevens in 1826 and operated by him on a circular track on the Stevens estate. This class will have a replica of the early locomotive, which was the first to be propelled by steam along a track in America. A circular track will be laid in the centre of the Castle Point Field, not far from the exact spot where the original track was placed and where the original locomotive ran eighty-five years ago.

The famous old "Stevens Battery" will be reproduced by the class of 1891. This battery was suggested to the Government by Robert L. and Edwin A. Stevens in 1841, and was commenced in 1854. It was the first iron-clad owned by the Government, and was a potential defense of New York Harbor for several years.

The Stevens Battery was brought to a state of near completion in twenty months and could have been launched at short notice had occasion arisen. In it were embodied many of the fundamentals of war vessels of to-day, which were pioneer inventions of the Stevens family of engineers. More than $1,000,000 was expended by the Stevens family in this work. The members of the class will accompany the large float as sailors.

Andrew Carnegie, who has made several gifts to the institute, will also figure in the parade by proxy. The class of '92 will endeavor to portray Mr. Cargenie humorously. They will wear Scotch costumes and will ride astride of floats representing T-rails and I-beams and other structural steel shapes typifying Mr. Carnegie's connection with the steel industry.

The class of 1893 will strive to represent three books on how to think in different languages, written by one of the members of the original faculty, who has always been very popular with the alumni and undergraduates.

Another float will be the "Spirit of Hoboken," with Dutch settler scheme, produced by the classes of 1894-96. The classes of 1897 and 1898 will appear as a squadron of Continental soldiers mounted. The boys of 1899 and 1900 will wear costumes to represent twenty or thirty of the athletic sports played in Hoboken during the early days. The class of 1901 will have a float representing John C. Stevens's yacht "America," which won the America's Cup from England. The class is endeavoring to obtain the original cup for the pageant.

The graduates of 1902 will represent more Dutch settlers and will carry a portable model brewery, from which real liquid refreshments will issue. No trouble with the excise authorities is anticipated, however.

A model of the Lackawanna ferryboat "Hamburg," the first of the Hudson River fleet of screw propelled ferryboats, will be carried by the class of 1903. The graduates of '04 will represent various phases of engineering taught at Stevens and the class of '05 will present a tableau called "The Battle of Castle Point."

A float model of Robert L. Stevens's "Phoenix," the first ocean-going steamboat in the world, will be carried by the class of '06. It was in the "Phoenix" that Mr. Stevens made a trip from New York to Philadelphia in 1809. A mammoth T-rail, several hundred feet long, will be carried by the graduates of 1907 and the class of 1908 will represent "Indians on the March."

The class of '09 will strive to typify the very latest achievement of engineering science—aviation. They will have an aeroplane in line and a large number of gliders. A feature of this part of the procession will be an ascension of 300 balloons. The class of 1910 will represent the walking beam which was the first applied to marine engines by members of the Stevens family.

Directly after being reviewed on Castle Point Field, the procession of alumni will go on to Castle Stevens, where the dedicatory exercises will be held. Meanwhile the throng on the field will be watching the lacrosse contest between the Stevens twelve and the team from the Carlisle Indian School. Between 5 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon the castle will be open for inspection by those having cards to the field. At 6:30 o'clock a dinner will be served to the alumni and their friends, and later there will be a night illumination of the castle grounds, a concert by the combined Stevens musical clubs, and dancing in Castle Stevens.

PARSONS LOSES A POINT.

Must Be Examined Before Trial in Suit Over Kissena Park Land Deal.

Samuel Parsons, Jr., the landscape architect who was dismissed recently by Park Commissioner Stover, and who appealed from the findings against him by Raymond B. Fosdick, Commissioner of Accounts, lost his appeal yesterday to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court from an order of Justice Blanchard requiring him to submit to examination before trial in an $18,000 suit against him by Charles A. Grant and Samuel Miers.

Grant and Miers say they bought property, in which they charge Parsons was interested, on his alleged representation that the city was about to acquire it for park purposes. Mr. Parsons has replied that he had no interest in the land, which was near Kissena Park, and that he made no such representations to Grant and Miers.

Cottonseed Men to Entertain Taft.

President Taft will be entertained at a dinner of the Inter-State Cottonseed Crushers' Association in the Hotel Astor on Thursday evening, June 8. The date was set originally for the following night, but the President found it inconvenient to be here at that time. The Entertainment Committee of the Produce Exchange has arranged an extensive programme for the delegates, including trips up the Hudson, an auto ride around the city, a reception on the Kaiser Wilhelm II., a dinner at Coney Island, and a ball and band concert in the Produce Exchange on Friday evening.

OSCAR STRAUS WOULD PROHIBIT WAR LOANS

TAFT TREATIES INDORSED

MOHONK LAKE, N. Y., May 26.—The representatives of fifty-one commercial organizations attending the seventeenth annual meeting of the Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration to-day sent telegrams to President Taft and Senator Cullom, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, saying that they "heartily indorse treaties of unlimited arbitration with Great Britain, France, and other countries and wish speedy success with such treaties."

Oscar S. Straus, member of The Hague Court and former Ambassador to Turkey, addressed the conference on "Business and International Arbitration."

A great step forward, he declared, would be to make it unlawful for neutral nations or their subjects to issue war loans or sell munitions of war to belligerent powers. In part he said:

> When commerce was identified with piracy, and subsequently with the utter disregard of neutral rights, it was continually a source of irritation and aggravated the militant spirit between nations, but with the growth of modern industrial development and the extension of foreign trade nations no longer find it profitable to be hostile to one another because of their prosperity.
> It is largely due to the vast extension of commercial intercourse between nations in our times, which rest upon reciprocity, that the standard of public morals has been lifted from the lower sphere of international expediency to the higher sphere of morality and law. The Russo-Japanese war would certainly have come to an earlier end if neither belligerent could have borrowed money from the subjects of neutrals.

The conference adopted, with slight modifications, the Kirchwey resolution, reported Wednesday evening, creating a National Council for Arbitration and Peace.

President Garfield of Williams College said that after all the swords were beaten into plowshares some might covet their neighbors' plowsnares, and there still would be work for a good-will, if not a peace, society.

J. Allen Baker, M. P., of London, expressed the "profound gratitude" of the British Parliament to President Taft for his proposal of unlimited arbitration. He urged a world peace league of churches.

A feature of the session was the adoption of a supplementary resolution appealing to President Taft to use his best effort to bring about international agreement binding the nations of the earth from extending their system of armaments to airships.

"The President of the United States," the main platform reads, "in his declaration favoring the reference to arbitration of every difference not settled by regular diplomacy and in negotiating with Great Britain and France general arbitration treaties without reserve, has taken the highest and most advanced position."

The conference called upon the people for such earnest co-operation as should insure the execution of the treaties, and urged that this country offer similar treaties to all nations ready to conclude them with the United States.

The conference expressed its gratitude over Congressional action in authorizing the President to create a commission to consider the limitation or armaments, and expressed the belief that if this country once set about such a solution with resolute initiative it would win the practical co-operation of other powers.

The platform urged that the programme for the next Hague conference should consider the limitation of armament, the immunity of ocean commerce in time of war and the prohibition of loans to belligerent nations by neutral countries. The platform urged "such comprehensive plans for the coming celebration of the centennial of peace between Great Britain and the United States as will make the commemoration a notable landmark in progress, not only for these two nations, but for the family of nations."

The recent gifts by Andrew Carnegie and Edwin Ginn constitute "larger contributions for our cause during the past year than in all the world during the whole preceding history of the peace movement."

FUN FOR FARMERETTES

Will Be Among the Chief Features at Outing of Mrs. Belmont's Club.

The political outing of the Fourteenth Assembly District Club, of Mrs. Belmont's Political Equality Association will be held, upon Mrs. Belmont's invitation, on her grounds at Hempstead, L. I. A special ferryboat will take the party across the river, where special cars will be reserved for them. The dinner will be cooked by the Thirty-fourth Street chef and carried down in big baskets. It will include cold boiled eggs, laid by the hens of the Belmont farmerettes at Hempstead, and perhaps some of their fresh vegetables.

Belmont farmerette potatoes will figure in the potato races, in which the farmerettes themselves will take part. They have begun to practice already on the farm, seeing if they can carry a potato on an outstretched hand running at double-quick over furrowed ground; and if they can do that they think they will win out over the ordinary contestants for a silver cup on the day of the race. There are to be egg races as well, the eggs carried in spoons; hammer throwing, three-legged and wheelbarrow races for the men, and whoever can tell in a suffrage speech the best way to subjugate irate politicians and formulate a campaign for the coming Fall will also receive a silver cup. No names can be taken in for the festivities later than June 15. Tickets are $2.

The farmerettes have already made good on the farm. Their fresh vegetables and fruit will soon be seen at the Thirty-fourth Street restaurant, where they will be on the bill of fare, and will also be for sale in their natural condition. There may be a Belmont farmerette in bloomers to sell the vegetables on rainy days. In pleasant weather the farmerettes are hard at work outside.

The APOLLO Touches DOWN On the Keys

Do You Know WHY Correct Touch Can Be Secured ONLY By the Player Striking DOWNWARD on the Piano Keys?

If you are a pianist, you do, of course. For generations, piano builders have been perfecting the delicate balance of each individual key, for each has its own special work to do.

One key strikes a thin treble string; another strikes a thick, heavy cable in the bass; and for decades, manufacturers experimented and devised means to overcome this differentiation of power, so that a touch could play every key. And the marvelously balanced keyboard of the modern piano is the result.

Then, in a moment, makers of player-pianos HAVE DESTROYED THE LABOR OF HALF A CENTURY. The delicate mastery of the balance of the keys has been lost.

All But the APOLLO Piano

The One Instrument that Excels All Others in the Low, Dreamy Notes. And You CANNOT Make Noisy Music on the APOLLO.

For the APOLLO Plays DOWN on the Keys—just as Paderewski, or any other pianist does. The TOUCH is perfect, in the Apollo, and it is mechanical in all others.

The Apollo Is the Only Player Piano That Touches Down on the Keys

All other manufacturers would make inside players with a downward stroke on the key if they could; but the Apollo is protected in the exclusive right to do this by U. S. patent No. 795,817.

Come and learn about the solo device, the self-acting motor, the transposing device, the accompaniment player—all exclusive features of the Apollo

These things are being demonstrated daily in our salesrooms. Terms of payment to suit your convenience, and we will take your piano in part payment. Piano Salons, Eighth Floor

TRAVERS AND KIRKBY REACH GOLF FINALS

Champion Herreshoff Plays Poorly in Semi-Final in Metropolitan Tournament.

Two New Jersey golfers, Jerome D. Travers, representing the Upper Montclair Country Club, and Oswald Kirkby of the Englewood Country Club, will fight it out for the metropolitan title in the thirty-six-hole final at Garden City today. Kirkby survived the third and semi-final rounds at the expense of Max Behr, the New Jersey champion, and Fred Herreshoff, the Metropolitan Golf Association title holder. Travers defeated M. N. Buckner and James R. Hyde in successive matches.

It had been expected that Kirkby and Behr would put up a great match, but, as subsequent events proved, the dashing golf of the Englewood crack simply smothered the Morris County man. Getting great distance off the tee, Kirkby even with a cleek frequently outdrove the other when Behr used wood.

With a brilliant outward journey in 37, Kirkby was able to turn for home 4 up. Thereafter Behr never had a chance, though he did manage to carry the match as far as the sixteenth green.

In the meantime Herreshoff, playing at his best, always had command of the situation against H. A. Steiner of Inwood. So fast did the defending title holder go that 4s at the eighth and ninth holes would have given him a 35 out. He slipped up on his putting, however, taking 5 for each hole, so that his outward total was 37, good enough to place him 4 up. From there on the Garden City man held his advantage, and won by the comfortable margin of 4 and 3.

Though one-sided, the Travers-Buckner match claims attention because of the fast pace of the first named. Playing sound golf, the former National champion made scarcely a slip going out, his only mistake being a sliced drive to the eighth, which cost him a 5. That placed Travers 3 up, and he made it 4 by popping in a twelve-foot put for a 3 at No. 10.

After winning by a 6 and 4 margin Travers played out the byes and came back in 36 with a 4 at the short home hole. This 73 is one of the best rounds ever made in competition here. The card was:

Out	3	3	4	5	4	4	5	5	4—37
In	3	4	3	5	4	5	4	4	4—36—73

In the meantime Hyde was making things uncomfortable for John M. Ward. The former baseball star won second and third holes and stood 2 up at the turn, going out in 40. Hyde then got two back by winning the tenth and eleventh and he drew level with a 5 at the thirteenth. Ward took three puts on the sixteenth green and losing that became 1 down with 2 to play. He sliced to the rough at the seventeenth and also found the sand on his third shot. Hyde then won the hole in 5 to 7 and the match by 2 and 1.

The surprise of the day came in the crushing defeat of Herreshoff at Kirkby's hands. There didn't seem to be anything the Garden City man could do right, whereas Kirkby appeared at his best.

The match was won and lost at the outset, when Kirkby took the first five holes, Herreshoff making a mistake at every one. The only hole the Englewood man lost going out was the seventh, where he fell screen shy on his approach and took 6. Even then he reached the half-way point in 38 and stood 5 up.

A stymie enabled Kirkby to win the tenth, but a tee shot to the sand cost him the twelfth. Kirkby won the match with a 5 at the thirteenth, the margin being 6 and 5.

Travers had to work like a Trojan to defeat Hyde. First one and then the other would have the advantage going out, Hyde finally turning up for home 1 up. He laid Travers a stymie in the thirteenth green and, winning that hole, became 2 up. A sequence of 4s then enabled Travers to win the next four holes, thereby turning seeming defeat into victory by 2 up and 1 to play. Aside from his display of grit when in difficulties, Travers played indifferent golf. He acted tired toward the end. Opinion is divided as to the probable outcome today. The summary:

Championship Division—Third Round.—James R. Hyde, Westbrook, beat John M. Ward, Garden City, 2 up and 1 to play; Jerome D. Travers, Upper Montclair, beat M. N. Buckner, Garden City, 6 up and 4 to play; Oswald Kirkby, Englewood, beat Max Behr, Morris County, 4 up and 2 to play; Fred Herreshoff, Garden City, beat H. A. Steiner, Inwood, 4 up and 3 to play.

Semi-final Round.—Travers beat Hyde, 2 up and 1 to play; Kirkby beat Herreshoff, 6 up and 5 to play.

Beaten Sixteens—Championship Division—Second Round.—D. B. Fuller, Jr., Midland, beat George Abbott, Dyker Meadow, 6 up and 4 to play; R. C. Watson, Westbrook, beat G. C. Greenway, Jr., Garden City, 1 up (19 holes); Walter T. Travis, Garden City, beat A. M. Reid, Garden City, 5 up and 4 to play; W. R. Simons, Garden City, beat Oscar Woodward, Montclair, 1 up.

Semi-Final Round.—Watson beat Fuller, by default. Travis beat Woodward, 6 up and 4 to play.

Third Sixteen—Semi-final Round.—W. I. Hicks, Nassau, beat F. C. Jennings, Nassau, 6 up and 5 to play; A. De W. Cochrane, Ardsley, beat W. D. Vanderpool, Morris County, 4 up and 2 to play.

Fourth Sixteen—Semi-final Round.—Fred Snare, Englewood, beat E. A. Thomson, Garden City, 3 up and 2 to play; Maurice Molloy, Garden City, beat E. L. De Forest, Midland, 1 up.

Will Enforce Golf Handicap Rule.

The handicap rule which has been adopted by the Metropolitan Golf Association will be enforced at the eighteen-hole handicap which concludes the annual Metropolitan Golf Association tournament at Garden City to-day. This rule calls for a player not rated in the handicap list to present a letter from his club handicapper. Unless this is done the player is subject to a low handicap. The rule is as follows:

"Any player not rated on the printed M. G. A. handicap list must present, before starting, a letter from his club Secretary or club handicapper, stating how many strokes he receives from some player from his club who is rated on the printed M. G. A. handicap list. If no such letter is presented, or if said information is not sent in by his club Secretary with his entry, the Tournament Committee reserves the right to give any such unrated player a very low handicap, or even place him at scratch."

MISS HYDE RETAINS TITLE.

For the second year in succession Miss Lillian B. Hyde of the South Shore Field Club won the championship of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association by defeating Mrs. V. M. Earle of Wykagyl, 2 up in the final over the links of the Scarsdale Golf and Country Club yesterday. Miss Hyde was 4 up at the tenth hole, but from the eleventh to the sixteenth hole Mrs. Earle played with great dash and judgment, doing the six in twenty-eight strokes, and squaring the match. Miss Hyde, although perhaps worried, did not look it, and finished with a 5 and 4 to win the match by 2 up.

The cards were:

Miss Hyde	5	3	5	7	5	4	5	6	3—43
Mrs. Earle	6	4	5	7	4	5	6	4	5—46
Miss Hyde	3	5	4	5	7	7	6	5	4—46—89
Mrs. Earle	4	5	4	4	5	5	5	6	6—44—90

The summary follows:

Second Sixteen, Final.—Miss E. Whitney, Morris County, beat Mrs. E. S. Bayer, Century Country, 6 up and 5 to play.

Mixed Foursome, Handicap.—Mrs. W. J. Faith, Wykagyl, and George E. Morse, 36, 8—77; Mrs. N. P. Rogers, Baltusrol, and E. O. Rogers, 15, 8—77. The tie will be played off.

Miss Osgood Defends Golf Title.

BOSTON, May 26.—Playing close to the bogey score of the course, Miss Fanny C. Osgood of Hopedale, Mass., ably defended her title to the championship of the Boston Women's Golf Association on the links of the Oakley Country Club to-day by defeating Miss Harriot S. Curtis of Boston in the final round by a score of 4 up and 3 to play. Both players hail from the Country Club of Brookline.

Evans Ties in British Golf.

LONDON, May 26.—Charles Evans of the Edgewater Golf Club of Chicago, who is a competitor in the tournament for the golf championship of Great Britain, showed fine form in the tournament at Troon, Scotland, to-day when he tied with C. C. Aylmer of the Sidmouth Golf Club. The lowest score was 76. Michael Scott, the Australian champion, did the course in 77.

BOXER MATT WELLS HERE.

Matt Wells, the English boxer, who recently annexed the lightweight title by defeating Freddie Welsh, arrived in New York yesterday on the Hamburg-American liner Cleveland to take part in several bouts. Wells was met at the pier by his manager, George McDonald, and several delegations of Englishmen representing various societies. He was accompanied on the trip by his mother.

Nothing definite has yet been done regarding the bouts in which Wells will figure during his stay in America. It is planned to match him with Jack Goodman, Knockout Brown, and other lightweights, and two or three clubs are bidding for his services, but Wells decided to wait at least a day before making any agreements to fight. Harry Pollok, matchmaker of the Twentieth Century A. C., stole a march on the other promoters by boarding a revenue cutter early yesterday morning and meeting the Cleveland down the bay. He had a conference with Wells and feels confident that his club will be the scene of Wells's activities in New York.

A conference was arranged and Pollok will meet Wells and his manager to-day and try to arrange a bout. It is expected that Goodman will be taken on first, as Wells would hardly care to stake his reputation in his first bout with a rugged youngster like Brown. The English champion did considerable training during his trip across the ocean and stated that he was in fine shape. He seemed a bit smaller than when he was here before and confessed that he found no trouble making the English lightweight figure, 135 pounds, at 3 o'clock. After a short visit in New York he will go to Allenhurst, N. J., where he will work out for his bouts at Jimmy De Forest's training quarters.

WOLGAST STRONG FAVORITE.

Lightweight Champion Bets That He Will Defeat Challenger Burns.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 26.—Champion Ad Wolgast of Cadillac, Mich., and Frankie Burns of Oakland, Cal., the youthful challenger, who are to fight for the world's lightweight pugilistic championship in an open-air arena to-morrow afternoon, rested to-day, after an irksome siege of training. The eve of the contest finds both eager to begin the twenty-round bout. Jack Welsh will referee.

Lack of condition will not be offered as an excuse by the loser. Confidence in the outcome is a drug on the market, particularly on the part of Burns.

The jingle of the pool sellers' coin would indicate that Burns is in for a trouncing. He is on the short end of a 10 to 4 book. Even money that Wolgast will win in eighteen rounds found a ready market.

Wolgast has placed heavy commissions to be wagered on himself at any price, while Burns and his manager are reported to have staked much on the outcome. Wolgast believes that he will win by a knockout. Burns says that he is not worrying.

Amateur Boxing Tournament.

The international amateur boxing tournament will be decided to-night at the National Sporting Club. The management announces that all those holding reservations for last Friday night at the Garden will be welcome if they present their coupons. To-night's tournament is even better than that planned originally, inasmuch as it will be a real international affair. The American champions clash with the title holders of Great Britain and Canada. The programme consists of eight bouts, as follows:

125-Pound Championship.—Frank Hufnagle of Brooklyn, National American champion, vs. Alfred Roffe of Toronto, the Canadian champion. The winner of this bout will box Ralph Erskine, the English champion, and also champion of all the public schools throughout Great Britain.

Star Boxing Bouts Arranged.

BOXING AND WRESTLING.

The Fairmont A. C. has arranged an all-star card for its week-end stag this evening, the programme consisting of three ten-round bouts between six clever bantams and featherweights. In the opening number Artie McGovern will exchange punches with Jimmy Ambrose, and in the second bout Art Edwards will oppose Young Reilly. Reilly outpointed Edwards in a six-round bout last week, and at Edwards's request a return bout was arranged. The final will bring together Young Salsberg of New York and Frankie Fleming, the Canadian featherweight champion.

The usual Saturday night stag will be held at the Sharkey A. C. to-night, with several preliminary bouts between novices, a six-round semi-final, and a ten-round final. The main bout will be between Tom Garver of the west side and Jack Lango. These boys put up a hurricane bout in one of the preliminaries last week, and were immediately matched up for a longer bout. Young K. O. Brown and Young Johnny Daly will clash in the semi-final.

JOHNSON AND WHITE HOPES FRATERNIZE

With Jack Johnson sitting in a box at the ringside, calmly viewing the proceeding, eleven prospective white hopes battled for supremacy at the National Sporting Club last night. Ten bouts were necessary in the elimination process before Al Palzer of New York was declared the winner of the tournament. Palzer had two hard bouts before he was declared the winner over Sailor White of New Jersey, who had disposed of opponents in the first round of each of his bouts up to the final. For real fighting there was more crowded into the entertainment than has been seen in any evening in New York this season, but there was nothing uncovered by any of the prospects that will cause John A. Johnson to lose any sleep.

Johnson himself proved one of the big features of the evening. When he entered the clubhouse during the Palzer-Rodgers bout there was a craning of necks from all sides of the house, and at the end of the bout there were calls for the champion. He received an ovation when he climbed into the ring and there were calls from different parts of the house for a speech. A stray voice shouting, "How about Sam Langford?" gave the champion a subject to talk about after he had thanked the members for his ovation, and he declared that he had never yet received a bona-fide offer for a match with the Boston negro. He stated that he was ready at any time to cover any forfeit which Langford or any other heavyweight might put up for a bout with him. "Whenever the money is really put up, John A. Johnson will be there," was the way the champion explained it. In speaking of the reports about matches with other heavyweights before the bout with Jefferies was arranged he alluded touchingly to Stanley Ketchel as "our old friend, dead but not forgotten," this statement being greeted with cheers. Johnson's closing words that whoever he fought for the title "may the best man win," was the signal for another ovation. The champion talked for five minutes and his remarks were listened to intently by the large crowd.

Twenty-three heavyweights entered the tournament, but only eleven presented themselves for bouts. They ranged in weight all the way from 280 down to 165 pounds. Joe Rogers and Joe Lawrence, both of New York, holding the extreme positions. Five States were represented and Canada sent one contestant. Only one real knockout was delivered, that being in the Sailor White-Benedict bout in the semi-final. White was nearly knocked out in one of the other rounds, but survived because his opponent, Bob Young of Massachusetts, quit. Young had previously won in one minute over Joe Lawrence of New York, who was neither a heavyweight nor a boxer.

Al Benedict of New York survived to the semi-finals, although the big majority of the members considered that he had been defeated by Arthur Pelky of Chicopee, Mass., in the preliminary round. The judges, Joe Humphries and Jimmy De Forest, disagreed at the end of four rounds, and an extra round was ordered. At the conclusion the announcement was made that the judges had agreed on Benedict. Catcalls and hisses from all parts of the house greeted the decision, and it was continued for two minutes in spite of the efforts of Referee Haley and Manager O'Rourke to check it. As Benedict climbed from the ring the jeers and hisses were renewed. Pelky was given a noisy ovation from the time he climbed through the ropes until he reached the door leading to his dressing room. McCloskey won in the second string of bouts, but lasted less than one round in the semi-final. The summaries:

DE ORO'S EASY VICTORY.

Pool Champion Defeats Weston, 600 to 377, in Three Nights' Play.

Alfred De Oro, the pool champion, after three nights' play with Charles Weston, the challenger, retained his title by winning the last block by the score of 200 to 160, and in winning hung up a new high run record of 96.

The new figure was started near the close of the second night's play when the Cuban finished the game with a high run of 58. This was carried into the final game and after opening ran up another continuous tally of 38, which coupled as one continuous run, netted him a score of 96 at one time at the table. The former high run mark was also held by the champion and was made last Fall against Keogh in a similar match.

The Westerner was outclassed in the first two blocks by good margins, but in the final night showed marked improvement in his play and held his opponent at bay for a greater part of the night and at one stage of the game was leading in the night's score.

4 MORE DAYS ARE LEFT

At Least 150,000 Americans, perhaps as many as 200,000, will subscribe for The Encyclopaedia Britannica, Eleventh Edition, some time. While it is quite impossible even by publicity in the broadest sense of the term to reach the whole of this large public, it is hoped in the few days that remain so to extend the area of newspaper publicity that the obligation of the Cambridge University Press to bring the terms of the offer to the notice of as large a section of the public as possible will be fulfilled so far as circumstances will allow.

THE INCREASE IN PRICE

Instructions have been received from London with regard to the new prices at which the 11th Edition will be sold after May 31st.

The prices will be increased in the case of all bindings, except Full Morocco, at the rate of 50c per volume, or $14.50 per set. In the case of the Full Morocco bindings the new prices will be at an advance of 75c per volume.

Those who wish to reap the benefit of the present prices should make application immediately.

Until Wednesday, 31st

The New Britannica (29 large quartos of 1,000 pages each) is the largest book ever in the press at one time. It is essential for manufacturing reasons that it shall be known definitely how many sets will be required to fill orders at the lowest prices. The first distribution will apply only to orders registered by the 31st.

OWING TO AN UNPRECEDENTED DEMAND for the new (11th) edition of The Encyclopaedia Britannica, the publishers are compelled to limit their contractual obligation in the matter of shipments entirely to orders registered by May 31st. For the present no provision can be made to fill applications mailed after that date and no more copies will be printed or bound now than are called for under the present "previous-to-publication" offer. Belated orders will be filed, and, after this first distribution is effected, will be executed at prices which will be 50 cents a volume, or $14.50 per set, higher than those in force for FOUR MORE DAYS.

THE BOOK and THE OFFER

Some Considerations For The Perusal of Those Who Have Not As Yet Registered Their Applications.

SIMPLY in light of the fact that 450,000 copies (authorized or "pirated") of the 9th—the last completely new—edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica were sold and that 25 years have elapsed since it was issued, the accumulated demand for the 11th edition (by which it it is entirely superseded) must eventually be very great. What is pertinent at the present moment is that although orders are coming in at the rate of 350 to 400 a day and the lists for the first distribution of the work already contain 27,515 names, there are many thousands of prospective subscribers who have not made application because they have not as yet seen fit to investigate the merits of the book and the exceptional features of the present offer.

The usual method of selling the Encyclopaedia Britannica has been through agents or canvassers. In the case of the Eleventh Edition publicity—i. e., advertising and circularizing—is the method employed, and it is and will continue to be the only method.

The Cambridge University Press, founded nearly four hundred years ago with the object of publishing works regarded by the University itself as of enduring value, is anxious that as many subscribers as possible shall profit by the current concession, but the manufacturing department is confronted with the difficult problem of adjusting their obligations in the matter of forward deliveries. Owing to the magnitude of the technical production of 29 volumes of 1,000 pages each, no provision can be made at present for the execution of orders received after the 31st instant, nor will they be accepted to be filled even when this first distribution is complete except at rates 50 cents per volume, or $14.50 per set, higher than those still in force.

A Final Authority

THE three points on which the reader will naturally seek to assure himself before subscribing are the merits of the book, its utility to him personally and its cheapness.

(1) The Encyclopaedia Britannica has always been unique among works of universal reference in that it is not merely based on the best authorities but constitutes a final authority in itself. The Eleventh Edition, written by the leading scholars and specialists of 21 countries (including 200 Americans) represents the best efforts of the men who are identified with progress, and with the most advanced knowledge in every field of human endeavor, and who have here interpreted that knowledge for the general reader. The endorsement of the new edition by the University of Cambridge, its acquisition by the leading colleges, libraries, educational foundations, institutions and universities throughout the United States, and the unreserved commendation which it has earned from the experts who have studied its articles from their special viewpoint, are so many guarantees to the subscriber that the high standard of the past has in the present edition been fully maintained.

Its Utility

(2) As to the utility of the work to the individual reader it is perhaps sufficient to say that the new edition has now been "tested out" by thousands of subscribers in every profession and walk of life and that for every reasonable purpose it has proved equal to the demands laid upon it. Thus the purchaser of the new Britannica will bring into his home a possession which he can rest assured will never fail him for reference or for study, and, in the easy-to-read India paper format, will be an endless intellectual delight. For no other book, he will find, can compare in interest with this one in which the whole world, all its great men, its history, its divers countries; its activities in science, art, industry; its speculations and its faiths, are described by the authorities whose word upon the subject he would most desire to hear.

$4.00 a Volume as Against $7.50

(3) The utility and scope of the Encyclopaedia Britannica are so truly in a class by themselves that the only standard by which the money value of the new edition can be gauged is the price paid for the 9th (1875-1889). A great many Americans purchased that edition when it was first issued in this country and paid the London price of $7.50 or 30 shillings a volume, Cloth Bound. The Half Russia volumes of the 9th Edition cost $10 each. The 9th Edition volumes contained about 850 pages to a volume as against an average of 1,000 in the 11th Edition.

The literary contents of the 9th Edition cost £60,000 or $300,000, and the expense of typesetting, maps, plates, etc., brought the total expense of production up to $500,000.

The literary cost of the new 11th Edition was $815,000, and the total cost of production before a single set was offered for sale was in excess of $1,150,000.

From another point of view the new 11th Edition is low-priced. Since 90 per cent. of the American subscribers have preferred their volumes printed on India Paper, which is not produced in this country, it has been necessary to import large quantities of this paper upon which customs duty at 15 per cent. had to be paid. It takes 60 pounds of India paper for one set of books.

Finally, the leather for the Full Sheep and Full Morocco volumes with flexible backs is of English make and the skins for the bindings of the American edition are all imported, and on these customs duty has to be paid at the rate of 15 per cent. ad valorem for Sheepskin and 20 per cent. for Morocco.

Yet the American price for the work is practically the same as the London price—viz. $4.00 a volume (Cloth) as against 15 shillings 10 pence, and $5.25 a volume (Full Sheep, India paper) as against 21 shillings.

"This Niagara of Information"

(From Subscriber 862)

When I got the first 14 volumes I felt greatly disappointed and wanted to send them back right away.

I suppose unconsciously I was really asking myself this question: "How can these 14 small volumes contain the enormous amount of information that is claimed for them?" You see, up to this time cyclopaedias had always spelled "Big Books" to me, and to all others, I expect.

It is very much like going to Niagara for the first time. It does not come up to your expectations, you think, and you are utterly disappointed; but stay long enough and the majesty of the Falls overpowers you.

So it is with the Encyclopaedia Britannica. Delve into the Niagara of its information and you are lost in wonder, love and awe.

The new Encyclopaedia Britannica in the flexible India Paper format adds new hours to the reader's measured limit of efficiency, not only enabling him, but tempting him, to make a valid addition to the day's work. To read, in comfort, an article which may have some close relation to the scope of his accustomed occupation, but that in any case will stimulate his mind, is the best form of recreation he can find.

The convenience of the new format is not therefore an advantage added to the advantages possessed by the new Encyclopaedia Britannica, but a quality that pervades the whole work, making every page of it of greater usefulness.

THE NEW 11th EDITION

THE new edition has been written on the same lines of comprehensiveness and unquestioned authority which have given the Encyclopaedia Britannica a world-wide reputation since the issue of the First Edition in 1768-71.

It constitutes an entirely new survey of universal knowledge to 1910. No completely new edition has appeared since the issue of the Ninth (1875-1889).

The entire contents of the work have been under editorial control before a single page was sent to the printer, so that all the volumes are practically of even date.

The contributors number more than 1,500, including scholars, specialist authorities, and practical experts in all civilized countries; £230,000 ($1,150,000) has been paid (to contributors and editors, as well as for plates, maps, illustrations, type-setting and corrections, office expenses, etc.) before a copy was offered for sale.

The new work combines comprehensiveness with brevity; many thousands of short articles having been introduced for the first time.

Among the new features are dictionary definitions (dealing with technical or scientific words), biographies of living celebrities in all countries, a complete history, under alphabetical headings, of classical antiquity, bibliographies of all important subjects, exhaustive accounts of all new countries, the first connected history of modren Europe, detailed and authoritative articles on industries and all practical subjects, and the latest results of archaeological research, of exploration and scientific discovery.

The new work contains more than twice as much information as the Ninth Edition, but in the India paper format occupies about one-half the space.

The Novel Format

India Paper Volumes 1 Inch Thick

THE compactness of the novel format in which the new Encyclopaedia Britannica is offered is an advantage which cannot be fully appreciated unless it is considered in connection with the nature and the uses of the work. The general idea of the improvement would be useful in its application to any object. The saving of two-thirds of the weight and bulk of anything that is used in a house would be welcomed. Every cause of fatigue and delay that can be abolished leaves so much the more energy available. Every cubic foot of space that can be left free means so much more diffused light in a room, as well as so much more air to breathe. But arguments based upon these and other as obvious facts might be used in relation to any object in common use.

In the case of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica the results of the innovation are much more important.

The slightest difference in the frame of mind of the reader directly affects the usefulness of the page he reads, just as the least difference in his bodily condition affects the nutritive value of his diet. The absorbing of information, the stimulating of original thought, by reading is not a mechanical process. The influence of some of the most famous among books is due quite as much to the agreeable style in which they are written as to the essence of their contents; the reader gets the utmost benefit of the writer's ideas because while reading he is pleased and feels at ease. The clearness, the conciseness and the vital interest of an article in the new Encyclopaedia Britannica are directly increased when a set printed on India paper and bound in flexible leather is employed. A volume that can be comfortably held between finger and thumb, while the reader sits at ease in an arm chair, is a powerful factor in the increasing struggle between the mind's hunger for more knowledge and the fatigue produced by constant work. "The hand does not now get tired before the brain."

A library of reference—or, more accurately, the ideal library of reference, for the new Encyclopaedia Britannica is unique from every point of view—is unlike any other convenience of daily life. Its usefulness is as clearly defined as that of any appliance, and yet it demands only the surplus moments of its possessor's time and the remnants of his attention. The fascination of the fresh subjects of thought it gives him, and the obvious utility of the information he acquires from it make it not only possible but agreeable for him to use his mind when he is so tired that any further routine work would be impossible. But under such conditions, even the interest of the novel information vividly presented by the 1,500 distinguished writers should not be obscured by the sense of discomfort and fatigue that inevitably accompanies the reading of a cumbrous volume. The only book that a tired man can read to advantage is a book that imposes upon him no muscular effort.

NEW YORK GROWING FASTER THAN LONDON

BIG SUBURBAN INCREASE

While London "Hub" Shows Loss—Growth Here Is Healthy in the Main City Itself.

The thrill that residents of New York had seven months ago when the census figures were made public, indicating the remarkable growth of the city, was emphasized yesterday when the figures from London made it clear that New York is gaining nearly two and a half times as rapidly as its greatest rival. To those who care for speculation in averages and futures, the London figures gave a busy afternoon.

There was general agreement that since London lost near its heart, and lost heavily, and New York gained near its heart, and gained heavily, the increase in New York was much more positively a real increase to the city proper. London's only gains were in the far suburban regions, "the outer rim" of the circle of Greater London.

"I should say we will pass London well before the ten-year period is exhausted," said Albert Falck, the lawyer who took the New York census last year, after he had figured a little at his home, 315 West Seventy-ninth Street, last night.

"London's loss near the hub—in the 120 square miles comprising London City and County, of 13,306 individuals—is the most serious item in the list against the old leader's supremacy. While London proper has been dwindling New York proper had a healthy gain of more than 10 per cent.

"In Greater London there is an area of 690 square miles. Take the same area lying about New York City in a circle with Times Square, say as a centre and Tottenville on the southern point of Staten Island as the southern circumference. In this circle would lie the entire commuting zone—the zone whose people may fairly be said to centre about the Hudson's mouth for purposes of trade and social intercourse and residence.

"It would contain, as figured from the last census, approximately 7,000,000 people and that leaves us mile for mile through the commuting zone, only 252,000 behind London at the present time, and we are growing well over twice as fast. The result is certain and inevitable."

	Pop. 1911.	Incr. 10 yrs.
Westchester (part)	185,000	70,000
Nassau (part)	61,000	24,000
Essex Co., N. J.	512,886	153,883
Bergen Co. (part)	90,000	40,000
Total	6,153,000	1,768,697
Greater London	7,252,963	671,561

Mr. Falck expressed regret that there could never seemingly be a grouping under one "greater" city government of the natural population area centring at the Hudson's mouth. The fact that so large a part of it lies in New Jersey will act as a permanent bar, Mr. Falck considers, to any population figures that are fair to New York while they are confined to the actual city limits, however much these may be expanded.

The habit of London's population of seeking the outer rim of the circle including Greater London is duplicated somewhat in New York, Mr. Falck holds, but not to anywhere near the extent manifested in London.

"The phenomenal growth of certain parts of New Jersey and of Yonkers and the Bronx indicate this," he said, "but in our case the stream of immigration more than filled the places of those who went to the suburbs, while London had no such influx to keep the totals up."

That New York will actually go ahead at two and a half times the London rate and reach or pass London within a decade is seriously doubted by many of the statisticians, among them Dr. Walter Laidlaw, who has made many estimates of New York's probable growth. Dr. Laidlaw was absent in Atlantic City yesterday, but data collected by him was given out by his secretary.

According to this data many elements will contribute within the next ten years to break the speed of New York's growth. Among such forces the most potent, according to Dr. Laidlaw, are these:

1. The slacking down of the stream of immigration due to the strenuous efforts of Jewish and other leaders to divert the immigration to other American seaports and to the Argentine, and also to get it headed toward the open country instead of the overcrowded slums.

2. The continuous decline of New York's share in the foreign commerce of the country, the present total being only 47.7 per cent. against 54.9 per cent. thirty years ago.

3. The development of Canadian canals and intelligent and determined efforts of the Canadians to develop their ports.

4. The efforts of Providence and Boston to secure whatever import and export trade the Grand Trunk of Canada will handle in American territory.

5. The new developments in Baltimore, Philadelphia, and other Southern exporting ports.

6. The "coming back" of New Orleans as a great port due to the development of the Mississippi waterways.

7. The release of a large amount of labor in 1914, due to the probable completion of the barge canal.

As conservatively estimated the figures for 1920 show these results, when based upon the rate of growth for the past ten years:

Greatest New York	8,614,200

The question among the doubters as to New York's future then seems to be to figure how much of the margin Greatest New York should normally have over Greater London in 1920 will be lost through a slacking up of New York's speed in growth.

COL. THOMPSON ASKS EARLY TRIAL, IN VAIN

DISGRACE, SAYS DEFENDANT

Never Met Other Alleged Conspirators, and the Delay Is for Political Effect, Cotton Broker Declares.

Col. Robert M. Thompson, who was indicted with seven other financiers in the cotton pool investigation last Summer, made a determined effort yesterday, through his counsel, Adrian H. Larkin, to have the date for his trial set for the immediate future. Mr. Larkin's motion was made to Judge Martin in the latter's chambers, and United States Attorney Wise opposed it.

Mr. Larkin urged that there had been undue delay in handling Col. Thompson's case, particularly as demurrers to most of the counts in the indictments against other defendants had been sustained. Mr. Wise replied that the Government had made every effort to bring Col. Thompson to a speedy trial, and had even requested the United States Supreme Court to consider as soon as possible the appeal from the decision sustaining the demurrers made on behalf of the other defendants. Mr. Wise added that the Government had not been able to get enough Judges to sit here during June to handle the jail cases awaiting trial.

Judge Martin denied the motion, and afterward Col. Thompson made this statement:

"I was indicted for conspiring with men, the most of whom I have never met. The indictment was based upon alleged acts which took place while I was absent in the centre of Africa. All transactions for my account were made by agents of mine, in whom I had intrusted great discretion, while at the same time expressly directing them that they must make no contracts which would make me liable for others' acts, or others liable for acts of mine.

"As soon as I learned of the indictments and could move my invalid wife I returned to New York, to find that the first indictments had been quashed and second indictments prepared. Against the advice of my lawyers I insisted upon appearing before the Grand Jury and submitting to them all letters and telegrams which, during my absence abroad, had passed between my office and myself. Said letters and telegrams contain all the evidence which could by any possibility connect me with the alleged offences. The Grand Jury, however, turned in an indictment, and ever since that hour I have been pressing for a trial.

"As soon as the facts are established the Government's case will disappear, because it will become immediately apparent that every allegation of fact set forth in the indictments is untrue, and that in not dismissing the indictment they are simply behaving oppressively and for political effect."

The Gamblers

A dramatic story of American Life. By CHARLES KLEIN and ARTHUR HORNBLOW, authors of "The Lion and the Mouse," "The Third Degree," "John Marsh's Millions," etc. This powerful novel deals with the insensate extravagance of our women of fashion, the general laxness in the ethical code of the big business interests, reckless stock exchange speculation and crooked banking methods which threaten to undermine our social and industrial life.

The Man Without a Face

By ALBERT BOISSIÈRE

FLORENCE CREWE-JONES

All Paris has marvelled at this story. European critics have dissected its subtleties. It is a wonderful dual personality, worked out to a remarkable conclusion, as only the French can develop a story.

Not since the days of Poe has there been a story more absorbing in its fantastic and gripping hold on the reader. It is full of dramatic situations and will create a sensation beyond anything in French fiction of the present time.

The First Law

By GILSON WILLETS

Author of "The Double Cross," etc.

The strongest instinct in every human being is self-protection. "The First Law" is a powerful, stirring and dramatic presentation of the evil a cultured and good woman will do to retain her liberty and to save her life when acting in obedience to the first law of Nature—self-protection.

This book, like the successful novel, "The Double Cross," is an intensely human and highly romantic drama, involving a love most intense. It is a series of thrills and wonders. Illustrated. 12mo. Cloth. $1.50.

Members of the Family

In "Members of the Family" Mr. Wister returns again to the types portrayed in "The Virginian." No other Western story has ever rivalled that in popularity, and now here again is the very life of Wyoming; here are even some of the same people who made "The Virginian" a novel to have and to hold and to rave over.

Here is the same power to etch a picture of blinding sunlight on alkali plains. The same rollicking humor in sudden flashes that make one laugh aloud. All in all an admirable book—a book to make Scipio Le Moyne as popular as his friend "The Virginian."

Mrs. Maxon Protests

By Anthony Hope

This is pre-eminently Anthony Hope's novel of modern life. In it he wittily and sympathetically expresses his inmost feeling about the social pageant. The crisp speeches are like "The Dolly Dialogues," but the theme is much deeper. Here is the real world, its respectability, its narrowness, its curious codes of morality, as they look to a man so sensitive to the romantic side of life as Anthony Hope. Mrs. Maxon is married to a cold, stern man who doesn't understand her. Finding that she can no longer endure her life with him, she decides upon a separation. He will not divorce her. So she is left in her false position. How she works out her destiny is a story of great human appeal.

Miss Gibbie Gault

By Kate Langley Bosher

Woman's intuition recognized Mary Cary and drew the child into the hearts of thousands. So many thousands, in fact, that the rest of her story had to be written. And here it is in this new book, "Miss Gibbie Gault." There will be a charm for every woman in the surroundings of Mary Cary—the story of her environment as she grows up in Yorkburg—its society, institutions, the Needlework Guild, the town council, the subtle-tragic influence of gossip. Gibbie Gault is a woman in a thousand. And romance also touches Mary Cary as she grows and blooms into young womanhood. This new story is a book to read and to love.

Keeping Up With Lizzie

By Irving Bacheller

"The story is brimful of chuckles."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"A keen satire—witty, humorous, poetic and pathetic—with a deep insight into human nature and strong characterization."—Brooklyn Eagle.

"Mr. Bacheller tells with shrewd humor * * * the whole story of the mad rush for wealth, display, pretence * * * that characterizes our age. He does it pleasantly, lightly."—N. Y. Tribune.

"'Keeping Up With Lizzie' serves a purpose in ethics which takes rank with 'The Man Without a Country' and 'The Man Who Corrupted Hadleyburg.'"—Rochester Herald.

Essence of Honeymoon

By H. Perry Robinson

"When a married couple leave a hotel," I said to Euphemia, "the wife should walk quite independently of the husband. You need not cling to me." "But I wasn't going to," interrupted Euphemia—"walk straight on to the front door and strive to convey the impression that you are accustomed to having a husband around."

Everybody who has ever indulged in a honeymoon will laugh over the delicious humor of the situations, and everybody who hasn't been honeymooning would better steer clear of the book altogether—it is too fine, too dainty, for the uninitiated.

MR. ROBERT HICHENS is planning to come to this country in the early fall, it is said, to superintend the stage production of "The Garden of Allah."

ELEANOR HALLOWELL ABBOTT continues on the list of the six best sellers with her "Molly Make-Believe." In the fall there will be a new book by her, in which will appear two stories which won two of the Collier thousand-dollar prizes, "The Sick-a-Bed Lady" and "The Very Tired Girl."

MR. MARK LEE LUTHER has gone to Boston for a several weeks' visit. He has finished revising the proofs of his story, "The Sovereign Power."

MR. HARRY FRANCK is at work on a new book, "Four Months Afoot in Spain," to be published in the fall. He is planning now to start on a long trip afoot through Mexico, Central and South America. If he carries out his plan he will be gone for a year or longer.

MR. MAX PEMBERTON lives in an old country house in Suffolk where Thackeray was wont to visit. A Wordsworth wood is hard by, and the mansion contains an authentic portrait of its former royal guest, Charles II.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM FARQUHAR PAYSON have just sailed for England, where they will see what is to be seen at the Coronation and spend their summer vacation.

MR. ERNEST INGERSOLL has just recovered from an attack of appendicitis, and is at work on the proofs of his new book, "Animal Competitors."

MRS. ALICE WILLARD SOLENBERGER, who died last December, has left a work, "One Thousand Homeless Men," which is written from her experiences as head of the Central District of the Chicago Bureau of Charities, an office which she filled for four years. These experiences were supplemented by the work which she did with her husband in the social movements in Minneapolis and Philadelphia.

MISS BEATRICE GRIMSHAW, whose New Guinea novel, "When the Red Gods Call," will shortly appear, is again in the New Guinea gold fields, where she is writing a series of articles for The Sydney Morning Herald. Miss Grimshaw writes her publishers that she expects to have material "for the most sensational and original set of stories I have ever done. California in the forties cannot have been a finer field for the writer of strange tales than the New Guinea gold fields are to-day." When Miss Grimshaw was in the South Seas before she had some startling tales to tell of what she saw of the cannibalism of the natives.

MR. JOHN JAY CHAPMAN has given several public readings of his play, "The Treason of Benedict Arnold," and is said to have had most appreciative audiences, especially at a recent reading in Cambridge, given under the auspices of the Dramatic Society of Harvard University.

MR. CLAYTON HAMILTON, author of "Materials and Methods of Fiction," has been appointed to finish out the year in the chair of Comparative Literature in Columbia University formerly held by Prof. Spingarn.

PROF. ARCHIBALD HENDERSON, whose "Interpreters of Life and the Modern Spirit," "Mark Twain," and "George Bernard Shaw" have appeared almost simultaneously this season, is thus described by a writer in Black and White: "Prof. Archibald Henderson is the modern counterpart of the old chroniclers; they saw the romance and significance of events, he sees the romance and significance of ideas; he is a Hakluyt of ideas, of personalities. How he contrives to be so, taking into account what he is physically and professionally, is about as easy to fathom as how he contrives to be an American professor living coincidentally in London, Berlin, Paris and a half dozen other places, or how he publishes, almost simultaneously, three books covering the whole range of modern thought. For physically you would rank his long, lean body among the things that are frail; but that cannot be so; no frail man could withstand his output of energy; he would consume himself in no time."

MR. REGINALD W. KAUFFMAN, with his wife, has settled in Sussex, England, where he is at work on a new novel to be published in the spring. "This Is Our Son" is the title. The subject is one chosen by ex-President Eliot of Harvard, in a recent lecture and is of special interest to parents: is ignorance innocence?

MISS AGNES REPPLIER writes to the publishers of Molly Elliot Seawell's "The Ladies' Battle" as follows: "Pray accept my sincere thanks for 'The Ladies' Battle,' which I hold to be the best argument yet offered in opposition to woman's suffrage. It is a good tempered, well written, rational little book. The ninth and last chapter I do not like; but the other eight (a very big majority) I read with pleasure and profit. It is always agreeable to escape from exuberance and sentiment to such a reasonable piece of work as 'The Ladies' Battle.'"

MR. CHARLES BATTELL LOOMIS, who has been at his country home, Torringford, Conn., gaining strength for a third operation, now finds that the operation will be unnecessary. He has just finished a long fairy-story, "The Dream Princess"—his first "creative" work since he fell ill in December last.

MR. J. D. BERESFORD, in "The Early History of Jacob Stahl," which was published in this country on May 6, has dealt with the youth of a man who, despite physical weakness and early mistakes, possesses moral strength. The story is one of the season's literary successes in England. The Morning Post says it should place its writer at once in the forefront of modern novelists, and recommends the book to all who like a brilliant psychological novel.

The Letters of Robert Louis Stevenson

The new letters include some of the most characteristic and delightful Stevenson ever wrote. All of them, practically, are addressed to very intimate friends. Sufficient time having passed to make it fitting and proper, it was decided to publish these letters; and for the convenience of the reader it seemed better to rearrange the entire collection, not to retain the separation into groups, and therefore, the Vailima letters to Sidney Colvin, hitherto forming a volume by themselves, are here distributed in their chronological order among the others.

The Revolutionary War and the Military Policy of the United States
With Many Detailed Maps
By General Francis Vinton Greene

The distinguished soldier and man of affairs here contributes a work of highest importance in military history. He traces in detail, from a military point of view entirely, the history of the War, describes accurately and clearly all the operations of the British and Colonial armies, and supplements his description with many elaborate maps which alone give the volume a great military interest. He then attempts to show how Washington and his experienced officers inaugurated a permanent military policy for this country based on the principle of maintaining a small standing force as the core of a great volunteer army.

Esther Damon
By Mrs. Fremont Older

This is the story of how a woman—Esther Damon—and a man—Robert Orme—cast out from the society of a provincial up-State village for real offences, were gradually drawn together, not so much by a common disaster, as by the fact that each under great trouble, grew to a level of spirit and intellect far above those who banished them. But while Robert Orme is interesting, Esther Damon is unforgettable.

MEXICO WITHOUT DIAZ.

With the resignation of President DIAZ and his entire Cabinet, including Vice President CORRAL, the first stage of the Mexican revolution ends. The pathos and dignity of the old Dictator's message of renunciation are indisputable. If he does not quite overlook, however, the most significant fact, he modestly avoids laying emphasis upon it. He is personally responsible for the new political régime and, in a sense, the father of the revolution which has overthrown him. The old man declares that the people who proclaimed him their leader, and patriotically assisted him in building up the nation, now demand his withdrawal, and he bows to their will, but he "does not know of any fact imputable to him which could have caused this social phenomenon."

Yet the fact is obvious to others, and he must be aware of it. After the suppression of the empire, both JUAREZ and his successor, LERDO DE TEJADA, failed in constructive statesmanship. DIAZ came forward, at a critical moment, and with steadfast purpose and far-seeing wisdom encouraged the building of public works, the development of commerce, and the spread of free education. The sound finances of Mexico, its vast industrial progress, and the schools of all grades in all parts of the republic attest the ability of DIAZ. But he governed as dictator; the State officers were merely his lieutenants, and the will of the people was held in subjection. A grupo cientifico surrounded DIAZ, and some of its members grew wealthy at the expense of the State, and of foreign investors who sought an outlet for capital in Mexico. The sway of the Cientificos, the inefficiency and corruption of the courts, the high-handed manner in which criminals and offenders against the Government were dealt with, served in time to disaffect the people whom DIAZ himself had been educating for self-government. That middle class which he had fairly created and developed turned not against DIAZ the man but against his Government. And he had grown too old, too firmly set in his ways, to read the writing on the wall, and adapt himself and his policy to the new conditions.

For the same reason he has delayed the public announcement of his withdrawal in the last few weeks. He might have averted the bloody battle of Ciudad Juarez. He might have spared his beautiful capital the rioting and bloodshed of Wednesday. The idea of Mexico without DIAZ was hard for him to comprehend. Is it not difficult for the whole world to comprehend it today? The pathetic closing paragraph of his message of resignation will never be forgotten:

> I hope that when the passions which are inherent to all revolutions have been calmed a more conscientious and just study will bring out in the national mind a correct judgment, which, when I die, I may carry graven on my soul as a just estimate of the life which I have devoted and will devote to my countrymen.

That is an attempt to render into English sentiments expressed originally in a language from which it is always difficult to translate; but even in its somewhat clumsy English form it must touch the hearts of all who read it. PORFIRIO DIAZ will be remembered with honor. He has been a great and daring soldier, within his limitations a great constructive statesman and a patriot. His private life for full half a century has been blameless. The accusations against the Cientificos have never touched him. He has gone into exile now, bearing the good-will of many of his enemies, the affection of hosts of his compatriots.

Mexico without DIAZ enters upon a new era. Mr. DE LA BARRA, as provisional President, with MADERO as his unofficial adviser, exerting the largest power of any individual in the country, and with a wholly untried Cabinet, including two of the Madero tribe, must restore peace to the country, rebuild the telegraph and railroads, administer all the public affairs, and prepare for a general election within six months. The conditions will all be new and strange. A host of small revolutionaries must be conciliated. An electoral system must be contrived and put in working order, and the Governors and [illegible] must be compelled to refer[illegible]. Men who have [illegible] must be taught to vote. It is a difficult experiment and will test the fitness of Mexico for real self-government. The outlook, thus far, is good. The conquering party behaves well, and shows a disposition to restore the conditions of peace as quickly as possible, and to treat foreigners justly.

USE TEN MILE RIVER.

In the midst of a dry season, with the water in the Croton reservoirs lower than ever before, and the probability that, with all the prevention of waste that Commissioner THOMPSON can effect by the exercise of his authority and his appeals to the public, there will be a strict limitation of the supply before the Summer is over, it seems the height of folly to delay the work of securing a temporary additional supply. Why is there a disposition among the authorities to belittle the plan to pipe water from Ten Mile River in Connecticut? Engineers who have studied the subject say that pipes and pumps could be constructed and an ample extra supply of water turned into the Croton reservoirs within three or four months. It is admitted that only a comparatively small amount could be obtained from Brooklyn, and that with difficulty.

There are important preliminaries to the use of Ten Mile River, which would require some time. Therefore, all needless delay should be avoided. You cannot make the people of Manhattan and the Bronx believe that the people of Connecticut would refuse to save them from the danger of a water famine. No mill owner, surely, would dare to make objections if he were amply protected by bond against pecuniary loss. The Ten Mile River is there, its water is good, and New York will need the water for use until its Catskill aqueduct is finished. This plan should be carried out without further delay.

JUSTICE HARLAN'S DISSENT.

Justice HARLAN is no longer in the confident morning of life. He is well content with what is understood, sanctioned, and established, but distrustful of all that is new and unfamiliar. The opinion in which two weeks ago his eight associates upon the Supreme bench concurred fills him not only with regret and pain but with grave forebodings. He insists that the judicial department has trenched upon the prerogative of the Legislature. He has "a strong conviction" that the decision in the Standard Oil case "will throw the business of the country into confusion and invite widely extended and harassing litigation." It appears to have been the well-nigh universal judgment of the "business of the country" that Chief Justice WHITE'S opinion put an end to confusion and harassing litigation, but Justice HARLAN fails to see, or is unable to bring himself to admit, that endless confusion and harassment were possible under that construction of the law to which he has so often assented. He fails to see that Justice WHITE'S opinion makes the law workable, makes it a statute capable of enforcement. As Justice PECKHAM construed it, as Justice HARLAN has construed it, it was impossible of enforcement in anything like its full rigor. Justice PECKHAM'S interpretation was applied only in a few conspicuous cases. Any attempt at a general enforcement of the law as he read it would have destroyed not merely the business of the country but the Government itself. It was Justice PECKHAM, not Congress, that made the statute revolutionary.

We are convinced that Justice HARLAN would take a very different and much more cheerful view of this decision and of the future of the country's business if he would abandon, in his reasoning and in his writing, that rooted misusage of the phrase "restraint of trade" which is the real cause of the profound misunderstanding of the Sherman act that has so long prevailed. He asks why it was necessary to make elaborate arguments to show that "the act as passed by Congress should be interpreted as if it contained the word 'unreasonable' or the word 'undue'?" There is not the slightest reason why any such argument should be made. The Sherman act is a criminal statute, and there can be no reasonable crime. But, certainly, an argument may be made to show that acts complained of, being reasonable and not criminal, do not fall within the scope of the law, do not belong to the classes of acts forbidden by the law. The whole country has been kept in this frightful muddle over the Sherman law because of its failure to understand that what the law forbids is restraint of trade, not restraint of competition. We have pointed out often enough that Congress deliberately struck out prevention of competition from the list of offenses forbidden. To determine whether a given contract or agreement falls under the ban of this law it is necessary, first of all, to inquire whether the effect of the contract is actually to restrain trade or only to restrain competition without restraining trade.

In judicial processes definition, we suppose, is as useful as in any others. What constitutes restraint of trade, the thing forbidden in the first section of the Sherman act? We suppose everybody will agree that if half a dozen corporations should enter into a combination for the purpose of driving their competitors out of business and of securing for themselves a substantial monopoly in order that they might be enabled to advance prices to an extortionate figure they would be guilty of restraint of trade. But would the two expressmen engaged in an inter-State traffic—whom we used as an illustration the other day—who, by combining their capital, were able to increase their equipment and so do more express business, giving better accommodation to the communities they serve, be also guilty of restraint of trade? Is not the true test supplied by the language Justice HARLAN uses when he says that Congress "manifestly proceeded upon the theory that inter-State commerce could not be restrained at all by combinations, trusts, or monopolies, but must be allowed to flow in its accustomed channels, wholly unvexed and unobstructed by anything that would restrain its ordinary movement"? The two expressmen would, not vex or obstruct the flow of commerce, they would promote its flow in greater volume, by combining. They would restrain competition, not trade. But a trust or combination that kills off its competitors by ruthless methods, that practically obtains a monopoly and controls prices, would, we suppose, be held by any court guilty under the act. Between these two extremes lies the field for the exercise of that judgment which, as Chief Justice WHITE declared, "must in every case be called into play in order to determine whether a particular act is embraced within the statutory classes," and whether, if so embraced, its nature and effect are such as to cause restraint of trade.

Now that the act has been clearly interpreted in the sense intended by Congress, is it possible that the exercise of such acts of judgment by the courts will, as Justice HARLAN gloomily predicts, throw the business of the country into confusion and invite harassing litigation? It seems to us that the effect of the court's right reading of the law will be just the contrary of that.

GET RID OF THE LORIMER CASE.

No sooner does it seem probable that the case of Senator LORIMER will be taken up again than the various interests involved last Winter begin again their schemes and manoeuvres to protect the politicians concerned and prevent a square and conclusive treatment of the whole matter. Unfortunately there is some of this petty management among the opponents of LORIMER, who ought to act throughout in a manly and open fashion. Mr. LA FOLLETTE, with the extreme partisanship of which he appears unable to free himself, has proposed to name the committee of investigation in the resolution ordering it, and three of the names are those of new members of the Senate. This arouses a good deal of not unnatural antagonism among the older members, and of this the friends of LORIMER are making the most.

A new investigation will be held, and it is sure to be more thorough and satisfying than that of last session. It is to be hoped that the Senate will now set a precedent for a different rule as to the effect of corruption. Last Winter practically it was decided that a Senator would not be unseated unless he received enough bought votes to determine the election. A far sounder rule would be that any purchased votes should vitiate an election unless the Senator could show affirmatively that neither he nor his managers and agents had anything to do with it. This, of course, would involve proof that the Senator and his friends took all pains to ascertain the existence of corruption and to expose, foil, and punish it. On the evidence given last Winter there is not much ground for the theory that LORIMER and his friends acted in this spirit. In a new inquiry they should have ample opportunity, and should be required, to testify fully as to their information and the action they took on such information.

Although the revelations in Illinois furnish the occasion to open the Lorimer case, the investigation should not be confined to new evidence; it should go thoroughly into all the facts, and especially it should receive the benefit of the testimony of LORIMER himself, whose attitude heretofore has been such as an honest, self-respecting man would hardly be expected to take. The Senate should now dispose of the case in such manner that there can be no doubt of the entire justice of its action. The reputation of that body has been smirched and the smirch should be completely removed.

PEGGING RAILWAY RATES.

A schedule of lower differential rates westward from New York is proposed at a time when the united commercial bodies of New York are protesting against any differential rates whatever, and on the day that the Inter-State Commerce Commission approves the principle of differential rates in the case of several Western cities. The cases together show that rates are not open to criticism because they are on a differential scale, and that they are not above objection because they are low. Before the days of legal regulation of rates they could be reduced at will, but now the same principle that prevents agreement for the maintenance of rates prevents individual action for the reduction of rates.

It is a curious operation of the law against agreements in restraint of trade and unreasonable increases of rates that it compels the railways to act together against reductions of rates. In the Standard Oil case the court declared that in all its decisions it had applied the rule of reasonableness to agreements which it had condemned. The decision dissolving the Joint Traffic Association therefore is affirmed at the very time that the railways are resorting to the Inter-State Commerce Commission to attain like results through its prohibition of separate action by the roads wishing to reduce rates. The lower rates are the result of an agreement between the several carriers composing the new route. Surely an agreement for cheapening rates is not in restraint of trade, either of the carriers or of the shippers. If it restrains the trade of other carriers surely that is one of the results of competition in the railway business which the law was not designed to check and ought not to check, from some points of view.

On the other hand there are shippers who cannot avail themselves of the new rate because the route is not available to them, and they naturally join the railways whose trade stands to be lessened in opposing a privilege which the "cutting" railways desire to grant. Nominally the lower rates are merely from New York westward, but New York is the gateway to the West, and the steamship lines to the South are threatening to reduce their rates to restore the differential which they enjoy through this city. In the bad old days we should have been in a good condition for an open market on railway rates. As the case stands we are likely to experience an object lesson in the maintenance of rates by operation of the law designed to reduce them.

The outlook is not entirely clear. The law contemplates maximum rates only. There is no provision for establishing a minimum rate, that being left to competition below the maximum. But we now see that competition has been abolished by one law just as agreement has been abolished by another law. The law provides that when new rates are filed the Commission shall inquire into their "propriety" and shall suspend them until it has made up its mind. It takes this action of its own motion, just as it used to act after complaint, and it establishes a new maximum accordant with its own ideas. Theoretically it deals with the relations between any one road and its customers. Practically it finds itself compelled to take a view as broad as that of all the railways together, and to consider the relations of rates, the relations of commodities, the relations of markets.

It is even truer of railways than of men that none of them live to themselves alone. There is no telling what may be the result of so innocent an act as reducing rates. So delicate are these matters that not long ago in another rate case affecting this city the Commission refrained from making an order, but allowed the roads to reduce rates in a manner which implies a promise to allow them to raise them again. The alternatives are that the law is dispensed with in hard cases, or that the law fixes rates in a manner different from any that we have previously experienced as the result of the recent dentistry designed to increase its biting power. The theory of the regulation of rates by law is excellent, but its application is difficult, and at best there is a reduction of that flexibility which commerce demands.

Borough President GEORGE MCANENY has by no means abandoned his plan for a Bureau of City Information. If the plan is realized, Manhattan will have a more comprehensive bureau than that established a year ago by President MILLER of the Bronx, the purpose of which was to inform property owners about local improvements in that borough. President MCANENY would develop elaborately the idea of getting within easy access to residents the sort of information they usually want. Not only an actual bureau, where inquiries may be received and answered, is wanted, but some sort of permanent museum of municipal plans and other exhibits of current work, a year book of the city's statistics, and a more enlightened series of departmental reports are extremely desirable. Mr. MCANENY tells us that he will try to get them.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Battle or a Collision?

Credulity is a good deal strained, it must be admitted, by the statement of GIBERT, the aviator, that while he was crossing the Apennines he had a battle in the air with a presumably jealous and certainly indignant eagle.

Counting against the plausibility of this thrilling tale is, among other things, its obvious utility in attracting to a beaten man the attention and sympathy which he would otherwise lack. GIBERT might have hoped to be able to say that even though he didn't get to Madrid first, he nevertheless won a place in history as the man who fought and conquered the king of birds in the domain where that monarch had never before encountered even opposition to his will. VEDRINE, however, also had an encounter with an eagle, according to Madrid dispatches, though his early arrival at the goal is so much the more important achievement that the bird does not loom largely in his tale. The details of GIBERT'S encounter, as related, impress one as rather those of an imagined than of an actual fight with an eagle, for they contain nothing of the unexpected or the unconventional, and as for the loss of the aviator's cap, that could have occurred in so many ways that it would be called evidential by hardly anybody except a psychical researcher.

And yet the tale may be true—credulity, though strained, need not break. The eagle, while a vastly overrated bird as to character and having nothing of even physical nobility about him except the crook in his nose—as is shown by the ridiculous figure he cuts in realistic portrayal on our new twenty-dollar gold pieces—may well have had the courage to attack anything he encountered in the upper air, since never did one of his innumerable ancestors meet there anything which it couldn't and didn't rob and maltreat. There is a large chance, moreover, that the eagle was simply overtaken by the aeroplane and that what GIBERT called a battle was merely the big bird's efforts to escape from the entanglement of wire in which he found himself. Acceptance of that theory would clear up the whole matter and elude the painful necessity of assuming, or even of suspecting, that GIBERT invented his eagle or only saw one and allowed suggestion and imagination to submerge veracity.

Some basis there really must have been for this wild narrative. Where all is unknown, anything may be true and confidently can be called so—a phenomenon to which all mythologies have been vastly indebted. Moreover, as we have noted, the winner of the flight met his eagle, too.

A Question for Cats and Others.

Our careful consideration has been demanded—and our readers might as well give theirs—for the case of a man who found himself suddenly compelled by changing circumstances to find a new abiding place for the family cat. She was an estimable cat, as cats go, and several of the people who had found symbiosis with her as a partner something more than tolerable were much concerned lest she fare worse when she went further. So the man was vehemently ordered to find a good home for her—to intrust her to nobody who would not feed her well and treat her gently.

Now a cat is not of easy disposition on any terms, and particularity in defining the terms vastly increases the difficulty. The man's efforts, therefore, were long unsuccessful. Of the people whom he approached, even those who had or pretended a liking for cats declared passionately that they wanted no more, while the large remainder of his friends and acquaintances exulted in their present catlessness and with vehemence declined to change that blessed state. At last, however, the man announced that he had terminated his quest triumphantly—had found the good home, the place where the cat would be appreciated, respected, generously nourished, mildly entreated.

But a tendency toward reticence was manifested by the man when asked for exact details, and when, after much questioning, he said that he had given the animal to a man over in Jersey who raises cats for their fur, he found himself instantly involved in a hot controversy as to whether he had performed well or ill the task set for him. He had to admit that the cat's new owner would not love her for herself alone, that in due time—not her due time, but the new owner's—she would be killed and skinned, and to little purpose he insisted that nevertheless the home was good, since in it food would abound and life, as long as it lasted, would be made easy and comfortable; to as little he dwelt on the happy change—for a cat—from city restraints to country liberties, on the painlessness of the final asphyxiation, on the insignificance of death to a creature that does not know of death's existence and cannot dread it.

He made out a pretty fair case for the goodness of the home he had found for the cat, but he argued in vain. The family convicted him of cruelty and of breach of trust. Was he guilty? Our own vote is for acquittal, on the ground that a cat is a cat, not a human being, and that cats "raised for their fur" have at least an average share of feline happiness.

Spanish Phrases and Ideas.

Every reader of the Diaz resignation, as presented in the official English translation from the Spanish, must have been struck with the queerness of the phrase "permitting, though not admitting, that I may be unwittingly culpable."

As Spanish is a language no less lucid than sonorous, the translator evidently made a bad choice when he lighted on "permitting" as an equivalent for whatever the Spanish word may have been. What DIAZ apparently meant to say, and what he presumably did say, was, "of course, if I have been unwittingly culpable, which I do not admit, I am the worst judge as to the reality of my culpability." That does not clear up all of the puzzle, since the conclusion is not logical or necessary, but it helps a little.

The notable detail in the Corral resignation is its reference to the Vice Presidency as "so useful in the United States and so discredited in Latin countries." Señor CORRAL may be right about the Latin countries, but where did he get the illusion that the office of Vice President is here of high utility or of any special consideration? It ought to be, doubtless, but the lesson of experience is not to that effect.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I suggest that much of New York's population is made up of foreigners, people who do not read the English newspapers? Is anything being done to make these people realize their responsibility?

I happen to live in a so-called model tenement, occupied by about fifty families, all Italian except myself, and so far as I can ascertain they have not even heard that there is a threatened shortage of water in this city. We have a population of over half a million Italians, and a million more of other nationalities who cannot or do not read the papers printed in English. What are the score or more of foreign newspapers circulated in Greater New York doing to warn this alien population of the consequences of wasting the city water? CITIZEN.

Marshall on the Right to Tax.

It is not, as Prof. Seligman and others seem to think, on the special message of Gov. Hughes alone that much of the opposition to the proposed Sixteenth Amendment rests. Chief Justice Marshall, in 1829, speaking in the court, said, in Weston vs. The City Council of Charleston, 2 pet., 449,468:

> The right to tax the contract to any extent, when made, must operate upon the power to borrow before it is exercised, and have a sensible influence upon the contract. The extent of the influence depends on the will of a distinct Government. To any extent, however inconsiderable, it is a burden on the operations of government. It may be carried to an extent which shall arrest them entirely.

The principle is, of course, the same whether the power be given to the States over the instrumentalities of the National Government or vice versa.

THE INCOME TAX.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of Prof. Seligman in this morning's issue induces me to make an humble addition to the babel of voices in respect of the proposed income tax amendment. It is indeed marvelous how easily many able, acute, and learned men get enmeshed in their own refinements or sophistries. It would seem as if they too often followed the example of us little folk in our methods of ratiocination. There be two ways of reaching conclusions. The one is to look at both sides of a question and weigh well the arguments pro and con before forming an opinion. The other is to jump to the conclusion first and then look around for arguments to support it. The latter is the course which many men, little and big, too often pursue, and naturally leads its followers into mazes of sophistry and refinement sometimes heated white hot by the fumes of anger or vituperation.

The advisability of the words "from whatever source derived" depends upon two very simple questions. The answer to the first disposes of Senator Root's legal sophistries. The answer to the second gets rid of Prof. Seligman's economical refinements.

1. If it were the intention to confer power on Congress to lay its taxing hand on city, county, and State bonds, what clearer, simpler, more effectual general phrase could be found than "from whatever source derived"?

2. Which is the more important consideration, the economical side of the question or the determination whether Congress shall be given the power forever to hamstring the State Governments?

Grant that power, and you must give up the definition of the Union as formulated by the Supreme Court, "an indestructible Union of indestructible States." In place of it you must substitute another, an indestructible Union of destroyed States.

The fate of this country, its line of development, its ultimate form of government, hangs upon the adoption or rejection of those four words, "from whatever source derived." They who wish to increase the centralizing forces of the Nation at the expense of the States will favor their adoption. They who desire to preserve the present equilibrium will stand for their rejection. Let us not deceive ourselves or be deceived by others. That is the real issue, so stated that he who runs may read:

DEFENDS ELLIS ISLAND.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of May 26 you publish a letter signed by "A Daughter of the American Revolution," in which she charges that immigrants at Ellis Island receive brutal and harsh treatment. Permit me to say that this charge is entirely unfounded and that the contrary is the fact, as every one can observe who will take the trouble to come here. To reduce to a minimum even the possibility of any one maltreating an immigrant the following order has for over a year been conspicuously posted at numerous points:

> Immigrants shall be treated with kindness and civility by every one at Ellis Island. Neither harsh language nor rough handling will be tolerated. The Commissioner desires that any instance of disobedience of this order be brought immediately to his attention.

As a matter of fact no violations of this order occur. If the writer above referred to thinks otherwise I shall be glad to have her come here and point out to the Commissioner how it is violated, so that the offender may be punished. I write this upon the assumption that you do not wish your columns to be used as a means of disseminating false information concerning a Government office, especially one engaged in a very trying work.

BATHING IN POLLUTED HUDSON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note an inquiry from "A Swimmer" in your issue of yesterday asking whether the Hudson River is so polluted at the 148th and 155th Street beaches as to subject bathers at those places to danger of typhoid infection.

If "A Swimmer" will but recollect that all the sewage of Manhattan as well as of the Bronx and Yonkers, which drains to the Hudson, is discharged without treatment of any kind; that typhoid germs will survive for from several days to as many weeks in the open water; that infection of typhoid is by way of the mouth and the alimentary canal, and that it is practically impossible for a swimmer to avoid taking water at times into the mouth, I think he will find his question answered.

In 1909 the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission traced the course taken by the sewage from various sewer outlets through most of the public baths of the city by coloring the sewage as discharged with a strong dye. The evidence was easily obtained and convincing. At that time no public baths were located at the places mentioned, but it may be of interest to know that sewer outlets exist at West 142d, 143d, 144th, 145th, 146th, 147th, 148th, 149th, 152d, 155th, and 158th Streets, so a fair degree of contamination is certain.

To illustrate the pollution of bathing establishments in this way, "A Swimmer" may see a model now on exhibition on the ground floor of the American Museum of Natural History, Seventy-seventh Street and Central Park West. K. ALLEN.

FEARS TAXPAYERS' SUITS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have studied the two propositions now before the Board of Estimate in relation to subways, and I cannot see where the offer made by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company is anything more than an invitation for the City of New York to guarantee dividends on the present inflated capital of that corporation.

What right has the City of New York to make any such agreement? A taxpayer's suit would stop any such use of the public money and in the meantime the whole subway question would remain in the air and New Yorkers would be the losers.

The way to give the public the relief demanded is for the city to make a contract with some responsible corporation that will put enough of its own money into the enterprise to safeguard the city against exhausting its credit.

For example, contemplate the wreck, havoc, and financial disaster that would follow in the wake of a water famine if this city was not prepared financially to cope with such a situation, should we be so unfortunate, as now seems to be the case, to have the water supply of New York reduced to the danger point.

I visited the new Public Library this morning. While mentally felicitating my native city on this evidence of its munificence, I noted something which I desire to call to your attention for suitable action. I refer to the giving of gratuities, unknown so far as I am aware, in the old quarters. I feel that such practices will tend to discrimination against the non-givers in favor of the givers. The spirit of democracy rebels.

PLENTY OF WATER TWO YEARS HENCE

Since it became known that there is a possibility of a water famine in Manhattan and the Bronx the public has begun to take a lively interest in the great Catskill Aqueduct and the prospect for its early completion. Mayor Gaynor has stated conservatively that it would be far enough along to add to the supply in two and a half or three years. The question has been raised whether, in view of the threatening situation, this time could not be shortened by rushing the work. This suggestion was laid before Commissioner Charles N. Chadwick of the Board of Water Supply yesterday, and he was asked if any plans had been considered for putting on an extra burst of speed.

"No," he replied, "for the very simple reason that the work of building the Catskill Aqueduct has been rushed from the start. The shortage of water from the Croton watershed, which the public is just beginning to realize, was foreseen by engineers and others a dozen years ago. It took as long to get even the authorities interested and the plan undertaken as it will to complete the construction. As early as 1897 I made a report to the Manufacturers' Association, as Chairman of its Committee on Water Supply, urging the necessity for taking measures to prevent just such a situation as we have now. The same need was repeatedly emphasized in reports of various engineers and boards, but it was not until June 9, 1905, that all the objections raised had been overcome and the necessary legislation obtained and the Board of Water Supply was appointed by Mayor McClellan.

"Three months later the department had been organized and the chief engineer was instructed to submit plans for obtaining water from Catskill sources. Two months later our report was ready for the Board of Estimate, which approved it, and on May 18, 1906, favorable action was taken by the State Water Supply Commission. On April 10, 1907, the first contract was signed.

"I mention these things to show you that there was no lack of realization on the part of the commission that all speed must be made and that speed has been and is being kept up at the top notch.

How the Work Is Progressing.

"The work is divided into more than forty principal contracts, which include grade tunnels, cut and cover work, siphons, and reservoirs. These were let with the time limits arranged so as to bring their completion together in a harmonious whole. There are three main divisions of this whole. The first is the system from the Catskills down to the Croton watershed. This alone will relieve the necessities of Manhattan and the Bronx, and the contracts have been let in such a way that this part can be finished first of all. These contracts were let at different times and with different time limits in order that this part of the work might be finished in all its divisions in the Summer of 1913. The work on these contracts is ahead of schedule in several cases and is fully met on the average, so that the prospect is that we shall have the additional water in these two boroughs in two years.

"The second division of the work is to bring the Catskill water into Manhattan without reference to the Croton system, and that is to be done by 1914. The third is the system to carry the supply into Brooklyn and Staten Island, which is to be done in 1915. This will give those boroughs plenty of water before there is any shortage there.

"All this work, at the rate at which it is progressing, will be finished on or ahead of schedule time. This will bring 250,000,000 gallons a day into the city in ten years from the time the plan was authorized and that was just what we figured on. An additional 250,000,000 gallons will be brought down by 1920 or 1925, before which it will not be needed. This will, of course, be in addition to the supply we are now getting from the Croton watershed, about 480,000,000 gallons.

"The men employed on the construction work numbered, on May 3, 13,340. It will approximate 15,000 during the Summer. This is in addition to our engineering and other departmental force of 1,200. The workmen are kept going in three eight-hour shifts except on some parts of the job, where this is not practicable. On some of these two and on others one shift is used. If it were possible to increase the force on these sections nothing would be gained, as the rest of the work would not be done, and you can't have an aqueduct with any missing links.

"So far as inducing the contractors to use greater speed is concerned, they have every inducement now to beat the schedule, and that's the reason some of them are so far ahead. You must understand that the sooner they get through the sooner their plant and men are released for other work. On one section the contractor invested $800,000 in the plant alone. He is a year ahead of the schedule.

"Never in the history of the world has a work of this magnitude been planned and put through so rapidly or economically."

The Board of Water Supply announced yesterday the award of two of the four contracts for the construction of the system from Yonkers to Fort Green Park, Brooklyn. The first section, from Yonkers to Burnside Avenue, in the Bronx, went to the Mason & Hanger Company for $3,709,372, and the fourth, from Union Square to Fort Greene Park, to the Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins Corporation at $5,272,495. These were the lowest bidders. The lowest bidders on the other sections were: Second section, Burnside Avenue to Ninety-ninth Street and Central Park West, Pittsburg Contracting Company, $5,590,225; third section, Ninety-ninth Street to Union Square, Grant Smith Company & Locker, $4,512,605. These contracts will probably be awarded in a few days.

No Loss in the Reserve.

Henry S. Thompson, the City Water Commissioner, got his weekly reports yesterday and found that the water in storage in the Croton reservoirs had shown practically no reduction in the last week. This is due partly to the vigorous measures he has taken to stop waste and partly to the rain of last Friday, which measured nearly an inch in the watershed. The amount on hand is 52,500,000,000 gallons, as against 80,000,000,000 or 90,000,000,000 last year.

Commissioner Thompson announced yesterday that he had effected a compromise of the $4,800,000 damage suit brought against the city in Water Commissioner J. Hampton Dougherty's administration by the Croton Magnetic Ore Company for $235,000. The company has mines at Brewsters and Croton Falls and claimed damages because of the construction of a diverting channel from its source of supply to a feed stream of the Croton system.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Following Mr. W. W. Hallock, something impels me to add this little tribute to the dignified excellence of the brightest daily in New York:

> Sums up the situation well?
> Through its pages daily glint
> Nothing trashy, nothing vile,
> There's "a something" in its style
> That appeals to all the "ages."

As an Irishman who never had much use (or respect) for the Saxon fellow of your name, your newspaper commands my admiration.

HARRY I. MILLER TO WED MISS NEFF

FRIEND OF GEORGE J. GOULD

That Harry Irving Miller, who was made a Vice President and member of the Executive Committee of the Missouri Pacific Railway several days ago, and who is a friend of George J. Gould, is to be married on June 10 became known yesterday. The bride-elect is Miss Florence Neff of Chicago, where the ceremony is to take place.

Mr. Miller, who is to supplement the work of Mr. Gould, Chairman of the board, during Mr. Gould's absence abroad this Summer, now has an office in the suite set apart for the Goulds' road, at 165 Broadway. He is 49 years old, and is a widower. He is said to have been Mr. Gould's personal choice for the Vice Presidency.

Recently Mr. Miller made an inspection of the Missouri Pacific and affiliated lines, and expects to have his report on the needs of the property ready to submit to the Board of Directors next week. After this he will make preparations for his wedding, although it is believed that he will work up almost to the last minute before leaving for Chicago. After a short bridal tour Mr. Miller will bring his bride to New York.

Mr. Miller is receiver for the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railway, and was formerly President of the Frisco subsidiaries, the Evansville & Terra Haute, and Chicago & Eastern Illinois. He was born in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1862, and is a graduate of Cornell University. He entered the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad as a clerk in the office of the Superintendent at Richmond, Ind. Later he became assistant engineer of the Pennsylvania lines. In 1901 he was made manager of the Vandalia line, and has lived in St. Louis, Mo.

TALKS TO MAYORS ON GRAFT.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 26.—"A dishonest public official by intent is a rarity," said C. R. Hall of the State Controller's office before the Mayors' Convention to-day. "Most of the violations of the law are reported by State Examiners of municipal accounts and result from a blind following of precedent. Most municipal officers are capable and are giving valuable service for small compensation."

"The mere fact of holding public office," said Mr. Hall, "is not sufficient evidence on which to base an indictment. The fact that a man holds an official position is prima facie evidence that he serves it. Yet a large portion of the public believe that a close relation exists between public office and graft, and that honest public officials are rare. This sentiment has existed because people believe slander more readily than they do sermons and scare head lines sell papers. When you expect a man to be a grafter you help to make him one."

The Mayors passed resolutions indorsing Gov. Dix's plan of absolute local home rule for cities and urging the enactment of a general municipal law leaving to cities all municipal powers pertaining to local affairs. They further recommend the organization in police departments of classes in first aid to the injured.

Two bills now pending in the Legislature were indorsed and their passage urged, one requiring the true consideration of every deed to be made known to assessors and the other providing for uniform rule for county equalization and the assessment of real property against the property itself and not against the owner by name.

The State farm for tramps was approved.

W. G. McAdoo in his letter of regret read to the convention wrote: "We Americans do not yet know the meaning of really good government, because we have never experienced it in anything like its fullness."

It was voted by the Mayors to hold their next convention at Utica in 1912. Tomorrow the Mayors will close their business and take a trip to Ashokan dam, where they will hear addresses by Seth Low and Walter McCulloh, consulting engineer of the New York State Water Supply Commission.

Mayor Gaynor was unable to keep his appointment to address the delegates. He sent the following telegram to John L. Hinkley:

> Dear Mr. Hinkley: I regret to say that my tongue and throat are in such a condition that it is impossible for me to speak at the Convention of Mayors. I am obliged, in spite of myself, to take a couple of days' rest. Please make this announcement for me. WILLIAM J. GAYNOR.

Opposition to charter tinkering was voiced by Speaker Frisbie of the State Assembly. He favored uniform charters for cities of all classes with the exception of New York.

PLAN WHITE GOODS STRIKE.

Girl Operatives Organize and Hear Gompers Discuss Labor Conditions.

With Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, as the principal figure, there was held last night at Cooper Union a mass meeting at which the White Goods Workers' Union was organized as a member of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. Most of the operatives on this kind of work are young girls, and before the evening was over the full capacity of the large auditorium was taxed.

Strike talk was freely indulged in. Almost all the speakers, who with the exception of Mr. Gompers used Yiddish, advised the girls to strike. They pointed out that the girls worked fifty-six and sixty hours a week and their best wage was $8 or $9.

"The advisability of your striking has been mentioned here to-night, and, in fact, discussed beforehand," said Mr. Gompers. "Now I will say, as I have said before—and may my tongue wither away when I will not say it—that all through the long years that I have been connected with the labor movement I have tried to avoid or prevent strikes whenever possible. But if there is no other way of getting better conditions, I say strike, and strike hard!

"Your employers will not welcome your organization at first. But later they may change their view. I was told only an hour ago that the employers now admit that the shorter hours obtained as a result of the recent cloak strike in this city were a benefit to them as well as to the workers. You see, the trouble with us is we have not only to educate our fellow-workers, but we have to educate the employers."

O'Reilly's Fate Deferred.

The sentencing of Daniel J. O'Reilly, the lawyer, who was convicted last Wednesday of criminally receiving stolen property in connection with the robbery of $60,000 worth of securities from Aaron Hirschfeld, was postponed until June 5 by Justice Davis in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday. Abraham Levy, O'Reilly's lawyer, informed the Justice that he would like to have more time in which to prepare certain motions that he wished to make.

Mrs. Porter Home to Injured Husband.

After being delayed in the fog all night, Mrs. William Porter of this city was one of the first passengers to land when the Lusitania came alongside her pier yesterday morning. She had hurried home from abroad to be at the bedside of her husband, whose skull and leg were fractured in a recent automobile accident. Mrs. Porter came home with Mrs. H. W. Nichols. She was not told of the severity of her husband's injuries, and left the pier to go to him at once.

McADOO'S RECOVERY SLOW.

Brought to St. Vincent's to Have Broken Ribs Radiographed.

William G. McAdoo, who with Mrs. J. Borden Harriman was injured in an automobile accident near New Brunswick, N. J., a week ago, was brought to St. Vincent's Hospital here yesterday from St. Peter's Hospital in New Brunswick. Mrs. Harriman also came to her Manhattan home yesterday.

Mr. McAdoo had three ribs broken in the auto smash, and his recovery has not been as rapid as his physicians hoped for. It was determined to bring him to this city and have an X-ray photograph of his ribs taken. He reached St. Vincent's Hospital about 11 o'clock yesterday morning and the photograph was taken in the afternoon. To-day Mr. McAdoo will be removed to his home.

WHITNEY HAS MORSE HOUSE.

Harry Payne Whitney is the purchaser of the former residence of Charles W. Morse at 728 Fifth Avenue, sold recently by John E. Berwind.

The house adjoins Mr. Whitney's former residence at the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, which occupies a plot 73.5 by 125. With the Morse house the purchaser now controls a plot fronting 100.5 on Fifth Avenue and 125 feet on Fifty-seventh Street.

Mr. Whitney sold the house to Charles W. Morse about four years ago with a 10-year residential restriction. John E. Berwind bought the house under foreclosure last year for $375,000.

TOO MANY DOCTORS, HE SAYS

HARTFORD, Conn., May 26.—Describing the legal profession as "the most selfish, self-satisfied and self-seeking of all the learned professions," and declaring that the medical profession was deservedly criticised for the over-crowding of its ranks with inefficient practitioners, Dr. Frank Hallack, retiring President of the Connecticut Medical Society, declared both professions were failing to perform their proper duty to the public.

Dr. Hallack advocated greater activity on the part of both in general public welfare movements. He urged that the readers of newspapers should have some source of medical information "other than the perverted statements of advertisements." He favored more rigid requirements by medical exempting boards.

WANTS FOOD LAW ENFORCED.

Miss Lakey Tells Women's Clubs It "Has Been Betrayed."

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 26.—An attack on the alleged lack of enforcement of the National pure food law was made by Miss Alice Lakey of Cranford, N. J., in an address before the annual convention of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs in this city to-day.

"The food law has been betrayed," declared Miss Lakey. The speaker charges that this "betrayal" has been accomplished partly by the appointment of a referee board "with power to set aside all conclusions arrived at by the Bureau of Chemistry as to the harmfulness of certain articles used in the preparation of food products." She complained of the permission granted to use "unlimited quantities of sodium benzoate in food products" and to "label glucose as 'corn syrup.'"

HARRY ASKIN THE MANAGER

House to be Modeled After the La Salle Theatre, Chicago, and the Same Policy to be Pursued.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Boston is to have a new theatre built by Charles P. Taft, brother of President Taft, and Charles Webb Murphy, the Chicago baseball and theatrical promoter, and where the Chicago kind of musical comedy stock will be shown first-hand to the New Englanders who have heretofore had to be content with traveling companies.

Harry Askin, Manager of the Grand Opera House and La Salle Theatre, announced to-day that he had practically completed negotiations for a site in Boston and within a month work would be begun on a playhouse modeled after the La Salle Theatre, Askin's local playhouse. Musical comedy would be installed, and house policy similar to the Chicago house will prevail.

A site on Boylston Street, between Washington and Tremont Streets, opposite the Hotel Touraine, has been selected. The seating capacity of the new theatre will be 800. It probably will be called the Puritan, although the name has not been selected.

Several innovations new to Massachusetts will be installed in the playhouse. Stairways will be done away with, and inclined planes similar to those at the Nixon in Pittsburg will be installed.

The English custom of having fireplaces in the theatre lobby will be followed, and an attempt to make the entrance especially attractive will be made.

Back of the curtain will be made as comfortable as the front of the house. Each of the twenty-five dressing rooms will have a shower bath attached. The stage will be only forty feet deep, but will be exceptionally wide. There will be only twelve rows of seats, but the house will also be unusually wide.

Mr. Taft and Mr. Murphy, who are back of the enterprise, are both financially interested in the La Salle Theatre, Chicago.

The success of Chicago productions in Boston, after many of them had failed in New York, and the annual long Summer runs of Chicago shows at the Tremont and Colonial Theatres first called attention of Chicago managers to Boston as a good show town for musical comedy. "The Burgomaster," "The Explorers," "The Wizard of Oz," "Babes in Toyland," "King Dodo," and the various La Salle shows all were tremendous hits in Boston. Both Askin and Mort Singer, manager of the Princess Theatre, have been seeking an entrance into Boston for several seasons.

WOULD WAIT TEST OF LAWS.

Three Committeemen Only Report on Proposed Indemnity Legislation.

Francis Lynde Stetson, William J. Moran, and P. Tecumseh Sherman, members of a subcommittee of the National Civic Federation on uniform State legislation for workingmen's compensation, made a report yesterday to August Belmont, Chairman of the Federation's department on compensation for industrial accidents and their prevention. It was not signed by Otto M. Eidlitz or James L. Gernon, and Launcelot Packer expressly dissented. All three are also members of the subcommittee.

The report recommends that no present effort for legislation or constitutional change be made either in New York or elsewhere until after a test has been made of the laws enacted during legislative sessions now closed or closing, but that discussion be continued as to the wisdom and the form of constitutional amendment in New York and that support be given to Congressional legislation within constitutional limits.

The report criticises the amendment pending before the New York Legislature, and submits a substitute which it declares is only tentative. Exception is taken to the word "well-being" in the proposed amendment as defining one of the objects for which the Legislature may impose conditions on contracts of employment.

"'Health' and 'safety,'" says the report, "have already a fairly definite meaning in law. As yet 'well-being' has none in this relation, for no State has yet ventured to inject so loose a term into the list of legislative powers. 'Well-being' covers a limitless range of legislative activity in respect of the rights and duties of both parties to the labor contract. If to-day the 'well-being' of employes is foremost, to-morrow, a season of depression, with men clamoring for work on any terms, may provoke harsh laws for the 'well-being' of employers. The rule will work both ways, despite the evident notion that it will work only to the benefit of the workman. The existing constitutional rights of the workman are no less jeopardized than are those of the master."

The report also urges provision whereby the employer may relieve himself of personal liability through insurance, saying:

"In no other way can a petty employer who has done his best to comply with the law, be assured that he will not be embarrassed, perhaps ruined, by an accident for which he is blameless."

On the question of relief by a new statute, without constitutional amendment, the report says, there is such diversity of opinion as to render action impossible before the adjournment of the present Legislature.

ROOSEVELT AT THE ZOO.

Finds Himself in the Hall of Fame and Watches the Trained Chimpanzees.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt felt the call of the wild yesterday afternoon, and, Africa being a bit far off, went up to the Bronx Zoo instead. It was the first time in seven years that the Colonel had visited the Zoo, and he declared himself full of admiration for the changes that had been made. Archie Roosevelt accompanied him.

They were met at the Concourse gate by Curator Raymond Ditmars, Dr. W. Reed Blair, the Zoo veterinary surgeon, and Ellwin Sanbourn, the Zoo photographer. Col. Roosevelt shook all hands and then headed straight for the Administration Building. Here, in what is known as the Hall of Fame, he found his own face among those of other distinguished contributors and animal slayers. He found on the walls, also, several stuffed heads of animals he had transplanted from rich to happy hunting grounds, among others the head of a white rhinoceros he killed in Africa and sent to the Zoo.

The party visited the monkey house, and saw Susie and Baldy, the two prize chimpanzees, perform, to the great glee of the Colonel and some two-score children, who had recognised him and clustered around him. When he wasn't roaring at the chimpanzees he was pinching the future Presidents under their chins. Next came the lion house, and it was nearly evening when the Colonel left the Zoo.

"A bully afternoon," he said.

G. A. R. OBJECTS TO SPORTS.

Thinks They Encroach on Memorial Day—Would Imprison Offenders.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, May 26.—Declaring that Memorial Day is now taken to mean a day of general funmaking by the larger part of the American people, the Grand Army of the Republic of Cincinnati tonight passed resolutions asking the Ohio General Assembly to make it a penal offense to hold or attend any outdoor games on that day.

Baseball, automobile, motor cycle, bicycle, or horse races are particularly mentioned as objectionable sports.

SERIES OF PLAYS AT BIJOU.

Julius Hopp to Produce "Youth" on June 8 for an Indefinite Run.

Julius Hopp has arranged to give a series of performances of dramas and comedies at the Bijou Theatre this Summer. The first play will be given on Thursday, June 8, for an indefinite run, and others will follow, according to the present plans.

The first play will be Max Halbe's "Jugend," translated into English by Herman Bernstein and called "Youth" in the adaptation. The drama was purchased originally for Mme. Bertha Kalich, who has transferred her rights to Mr. Hopp.

"Youth" has been one of the successful German plays of recent years, and has been presented more than 1,500 times in Berlin. A few performances have been given in the German theatres in New York, but it has never been done here in English.

DUPED CHICAGO MANAGERS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 26.—Chicago's theatrical world is admitting that it has been bitten, and the police are looking for a young New Yorker who introduced himself as H. G. Frohman, nephew of Charles Frohman, and H. G. Klaw, son of Marc Klaw.

In the two days he was in Chicago "Mr. Frohman" gave Sam Lederer, manager of the Olympic Theatre, a $20,000-a-year position with the syndicate and borrowed 25 cents car fare; got three meals from George Kingsbury, purchased six costly hats and parasols from a fashionable milliner without paying cash, borrowed several hundred dollars in "taxicab change" from various theatrical men, and then left for parts unknown.

He also ordered twenty theatrical trunks for a "Frohman production" and borrowed $5 from the trunk manufacturer.

Midland Beach, S. I., will open for the season on Decoration Day. During the Winter many new features have been added and the old ones have been renovated. The bathing pavilion has been equipped to accommodate nearly 10,000 persons at one time.

Suffragette Police for Victoria Roof.

William Hammerstein, in carrying out his "suffragette farm" idea for the Victoria Roof Garden, has engaged Miss Gertrude Malloey of 1,115 Amsterdam Avenue as chief of a suffragette police force that will keep order on the roof and act as special watchmen. Miss Malloey is selecting a force of able-bodied policewomen, and plans to dress them in private police uniforms of gray, perhaps with harem skirts.

Schoolboys to Give "Julius Caesar."

The pupils of Riverdale School, at Riverdale-on-Hudson, will give a performance of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" in the open-air theatre on the school grounds next Wednesday afternoon. The tragedy will be given with only slight abridgments, and the oldest actor in the cast will be 14 years of age. The boys of the school have given several Shakespearean plays in this way, notably "As You Like It" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The young actors have been drilled by the masters of the school, with the assistance of William C. De Mille, who has directed several rehearsals.

250 Swiss Singers of Chicago to Sail.

Two hundred and fifty members of the Swiss Männerchor of Chicago will arrive in New York at 8 o'clock this morning over the Lehigh Valley and will assemble at the Union Square Hotel. At 3 P. M. they will sail on the French Line steamship Chicago for Havre. They will go to Paris for a two days' visit and then proceed to Switzerland, where a national reception awaits them under the auspices of the famous Basler Männerchor. Several bands and five Swiss singing societies from this city, Brooklyn, and New Jersey will march with them from Union Square to the Chicago.

Woman May Legally Play 'The Piper.'

Edith Wynne Matthison, or any other woman, may appear in the title rôle of "The Pied Piper," a Winthrop Ames, Director of The New Theatre, may present the play on the road under the auspices of the Theatre without interference, so Supreme Court Justice Hendrick ruled yesterday. Justice Hendrick denied the application for an injunction by Walter Hampden Dougherty, who assigned the American rights of the play to The New Theatre. Dougherty asserted that his rights in the play were injured by featuring a woman in the title rôle and by the presentation of the play on the road with an inferior company.

Dion Boucicault Arrives.

SUFFRAGISTS LEASE NEW UP-TOWN HOME

MET MUCH OPPOSITION

A four-story house at 120 West Eighty-first Street has been leased by the 15th Assembly District Association of the Woman Suffrage Party and will be opened on July 1. It will be used as the business headquarters of the association, a boarding house for suffragettes and and a lunch room for the hungry. Mrs. Frederick Nathan, who sailed for Europe this week to act as delegate to the International Woman Suffrage Convention in Stockholm, Sweden, is head of the association, and Mrs. George Kremer, assistant head of the district, will be in charge of the new headquarters.

The 15th Assembly District women have been searching for the house for a year and the difficulties put in their way have convinced them of how little the people know of the advocates of votes for women. Real estate dealers have turned from them with fear and visions of riots following the opening of suffragette headquarters and the driving of their tenants from the neighborhood. At last the suffragists have wiped out this fear.

The main floor of the new house will be kept for the headquarters work and suffrage meetings. The basement will be the suffrage restaurant, lunch and tearoom, and red hot suffrage beverages can be obtained there made of solid-as-the-cause materials on the order that "mother used to make." The Summer dishes served will be cooling and refreshing, as frigid as the attitude of some politicians to woman suffrage, the women who are to look after the lunch room say.

The two upper floors of the house will be used for the residing guests, the second floor being rented as a whole. The house rents for $5,000 and the suffragists have taken it on a three-year lease.

It has been said that every room was to be papered with yellow, the suffrage color, that a big banner would hang from each window, that it would be preferred to have the guests of the house dress in the same sunny shade, and that no music would be allowed but the suffrage march and that the guests would move on to meals keeping step to it. But all that has been denied.

The 15th Assembly District has been one of the most active and earnest in the suffrage work and has a large Woman Suffrage Party organization, but the new headquarters, the workers say, will show no flighty innovations. It will be a quiet business establishment, conducted with great decorum and every one interested in the cause is invited to visit it on the opening day.

SHALL NEWSBOYS HOLLER?

Cornelius S. Loder of 30 Church Street, who asked Mayor Gaynor to do something about stopping the shouting of newsboys in the streets, sent him another letter yesterday. Here it is:

> My Dear Mayor Gaynor: I am interested in boys, especially those who are obliged to earn a living, and for nearly twenty years I have tried, outside of business hours, to help our younger brothers. I mention this so that you will not misunderstand my writing you in regard to newsboys.
> Your interest in them is known. I approve of their being controlled, and thus helped, through a license. But why permit them to yell their wares under office windows and in certain places? If some holler, all must holler. The strongest lunged outsells the modest little chap, who is entitled to our especial consideration. It is often the case of the "survival of the fittest." Why should any shout who maintain stationary stands, particularly when we are endeavoring to suppress all unnecessary noises?

The Giants again reached the top in the National League pennant race yesterday, defeating Philadelphia on the Hilltop by a score of 5 to 3, in a game that was jammed full of exciting situations. Christy Mathewson sayed the day for New York in the eighth inning, when the Phillies fell upon "Bugs" Raymond and had him groggy. They had tied the score at 3 to 3 and runners were on second and third bases, anxious to rush in with the victory. At the time Matty went in one man was out.

"Big Six" had no time to warm up, but took up the task at a moment's notice and showed a cool head and a powerful arm. Doolan was at the bat and hit a long fly to Devore in right field. Josh grabbed it and when Luderus started for home after the catch Josh made a wonderful throw to the plate, and the Phillies runner was nailed as he slid in, and the Quaker upheaval was nipped in the making.

In the same inning the Giants got together and batted in the victory. Devore beat out a bunt in clever style and Burns hit Doyle on the leg with a stray ball. Doolin made a throw to second to catch Devore off the bag, but the toss hit Doolan's knee and bounded off into right field, Devore going to third and Doyle to second. Then Burns was withdrawn from the mound and Alexander went in the box. Snodgrass, the first man to face Alexander, hit a single to left field, and Devore and Doyle scored.

More tumultuous emotion was crowded in that eighth inning than is seen in half a dozen ordinary games. When Devore made the mighty heave which cut off the Phillies rush he was greeted with a long, stormy outburst, but when Snodgrass drove in two runs a short time afterward the noise sounded like the rioting in Mexico City.

The game bubbled over with fast fielding performances, and the issue was in doubt most all the time. The Phillies were dislodged from their perch only after the hardest kind of a fight. Their eighth inning rally came out of a clear sky at just a time when Raymond seemingly had the game in hand. Up to that time he had been effective and had allowed only three scattered hits. Three raps in the eighth inning saw his finish, and Manager McGraw took him out just as the game hung in the balance.

Six fast double plays illuminated the day's fielding, each team contributing three of the rapid-fire stunts to the proceedings. Larry Doyle figured prominetly in the downfall of the Phillies, for he finished the afternoon's work with three hits and three runs to his credit. In the first inning, with one out, Doyle got his daily three-bagger to right field and scored on a hot infield rap by Snodgrass.

Philadelphia tied the score in the third inning. Knabe walked and was sacrificed by Paskert. Welchonce filed to Murray and Magee drove a hard two-bagger to the fence scoring Knabe. In New York's half of the same inning with one out Doyle and Snodgrass singled and worked a neat double steal. Doyle scored on Murray's out at first base.

The Giants assumed a two-run lead in the sixth inning when Snodgrass opened with a single to left field. Murray flied to Paskert and Snodgrass stole third. Merkle's infield rap was mussed up by Walsh at third base, and Merkle was safe. Bridwell grounded to Knabe and Merkle dallied between first and second base long enough to delay the out to give Snodgrass a chance to score. Knabe first retired Bridwell at first and then got Merkle between the bases after Snodgrass had gone home.

The eighth inning opened calmly enough with Paskert lofting to Devore. Welchonce walked and Magee singled to left. Luderus, the man who broke up the game at the Polo Grounds on the opening day of the season, poled a hard rap to centre field, scoring Welchonce. Raymond was getting very wobbly. Walsh singled to centre, scoring Magee with the tieing run. Then Matty appeared and saved the situation. The Giants took up the cudgel in their half of the same inning with the score tied in a knot.

Devore's fleetness of foot enabled him to speed his way to first ahead of a bunt. Perhaps Burns thought that Doyle was going to get another three-bagger, so he hit him on the leg and sent him to first base anyway. Then came a timely single to left by Snodgrass and the Giants were in the lead once more.

PENNSY AND YALE QUALIFY MOST MEN

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 26.—Sixteen universities and colleges qualified this afternoon in the preliminaries at the thirty-sixth intercollegiate championship games at the stadium on Soldiers' Field. At the conclusion of the afternoon series the following was the result of the various teams concerned in the matter of men who had worked their way into the final rounds to be decided to-morrow:

Pennsylvania, 14 men; Yale, 14; Cornell, 10; Michigan, 8; Princeton, 7; Harvard, 6; Dartmouth, 4; Rutgers, 2; Williams, 2; New York University, Columbia, Wesleyan, Amherst, Brown, Penn State, and Massachusetts Technology, 1 each.

There were some surprises, but all indications point to the outcome, as far as the first three teams are concerned, to Pennsylvania, Cornell, and Yale, finishing in that order, although Yale qualified as many men as Pennsylvania. The Blue will have no more men engaged in to-morrow's events than those who showed to-day, whereas the others will have most powerful reinforcements. The field was dampened somewhat by a fairly good shower, which was followed by a chill atmosphere, which rather curtailed the topnotch performances in some of the field events.

Eight athletes wearing the maize and blue of Michigan came through the afternoon with preliminary honors, especially R. R. Craig, the lightning finisher, who won his trial heats in the 100-yard and furlong sprints with his head turned toward his followers. As the little sprinter from Michigan seemed to pause in both these events, yet made them both in fast time, some wonderful running is expected of him to-morrow.

Princeton beat out Harvard for fifth place by a single man, the former getting seven men to the Crimson's six, while Dartmouth was seventh with four men left in the running.

No records were broken in the eleven events of the day. The surprises were the strength of Yale and the failure of Cornell to come up to expectations. The blue-jerseyed athletes were regarded as very strong in the field events, but when three of them qualified in the furlong, two in the 100-yard dash, and three in the hurdle, Louis Disbrow took a jump to-night, while Corpell's was depressed. The Ithacans, however, are relying on the fleetness and stamina of Jones in the mile and Berna in the two-mile to win them the victory.

Those who qualified for the events were as follows:

440-Yard Run.—Gamble and Haff of Michigan, Sawyer of Princeton, Hough of Pennsylvania, McArthur of Cornell, Kelley of Harvard, Young of Amherst, Wood of Wesleyan, Lester of Williams. Best time—0:49 4-5, by Hough.

880-Yard Run.—Pyzam, Jones, and Snyder of Cornell; Paull, Levering, Foster, and Bodley of Pennsylvania; Jaques of Harvard, Close of Princeton. Best time—1:58, by Jones.

120-Yard Hurdles.—Chisholm and Larkin of Yale, Griffith of Pennsylvania, Stibolt of Cornell, Havens of Rutgers, Lewis of Harvard, Dwight of Princeton. Best time—0:15 4-5, by Chisholm and Stibolt.

220-Yard Dash.—Thatcher, Bleistein, and Reilly of Yale; Craig and Ross of Michigan, Minds of Pennsylvania, Ford of Cornell, Cooke of Princeton. Best time—0:21 4-5, by Ross.

Running Broad Jump.—Mercer and Lafflamme of Pennsylvania, Holden of Yale, Mathers of Penn State College, Bartlett of Williams. Best jump—82 feet 3 inches, by Mercer.

Hammer Throw.—Tilley and Mardan of Dartmouth, Murphy of Pennsylvania, Bannister of Cornell, Childs of Yale. Best throw—145 feet 7½ inches by Tilley.

Running High Jump.—Burdick and Farrier of Pennsylvania, Dalrymple of M. I. T., Enright of Dartmouth, Barker of Harvard. First four tied at 5 feet 9¼ inches.

Pole Vault.—Gardner, Wagoner, and Byers of Yale; Babcock of Columbia, D'Autremont of Cornell. First four tied at 12 feet.

Japanese Team Here To-day.

The first international baseball game to be played in New York City is scheduled for this afternoon at Bronx Oval, where the team representing the University of Keio, Japan, will cross bats with the Fordham nine. The Japs are making an extensive tour through the United States, and have shown themselves as clever at America's National pastime as a number of the college teams which they have already played. This will be their only appearance in New York City. The Orientals average five feet four inches in height and 138 pounds in weight. Sugase, the Japs' star twirler, will be in the box for the visitors, and Kehoe will twirl for Fordham. The game will be called at 3:30 o'clock.

EASTERN LEAGUE.

Newark baseball fans were treated yesterday to the feat of a triple play, with Joe Agler, the brilliant young first baseman of the Indians, enacting the role of hero. The play was such a treat that the fans forgave the McGinnity tribe for dropping another game to Baltimore.

The performance occurred in the fifth inning. Egan, first Oriole up, singled. Adkins tried to sacrifice, but Umpire Pender ruled that Egan beat McGinnity's throw to head him off at second. Cy Seymour was next batsman. Cy picked out a good one that McGinnity sent up and slammed out a vicious line drive straight at Agler. Joe was playing close up for a bunt at the time, but his grip was deadly and his head was clear. Without an instant's pause he dashed back to first, beating Adkins there. A lightning throw that was as accurate as could be was taken by Nee at second, and Egan's dash back to that cushion was circumvented.

McGinnity pitched good enough to win, but the hitting was light, and an untimely error helped the Birds. The score:

According to a decision made yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers, completed parts of engines are not to be regarded as "manufactures of metal," with a duty of 45 per cent. ad valorem. Instead, the parts of engines are held to be subject to duty as "castings of iron," with a tax of 1 cent a pound as "castings of iron, machined and advanced." The decision says in part:

"We find from the record that the castings are in one piece, and have been fully machined, and are in a bed or frame intended to replace sections of three-cylinder reversing engines. It is held by the board, in a decision by Judge Fischer, that the cast iron castings are not excluded from the provisions of Paragraph 147. This being the unanimous conclusion of the board, the protest is sustained and the higher duty assessed by the Collector reversed.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

HARRIMAN LINES' EARNINGS

April Shows Losses in Gross and Net—Maintenance Expenditures Are Being Reduced.

Events rested in the steel trade yesterday and the same may be said in general terms of the day's proceedings on the Stock Exchange. United States Steel, still the centre of interest in the market, closed unchanged after narrow fluctuations accompanied by transactions which represented a smaller proportion of the total than on any recent day. The course of events in the steel trade in the immediate future will depend to a large extent upon the attitude which the United States Steel Corporation will take in the present emergency. Price wars such as in earlier years demoralized the steel trade are precluded under the operation of a policy such as that to which the Steel Corporation is committed. While it has come to be regarded in many quarters as the policy of the corporation to stand steadfastly for the maintenance of fixed prices, it is not true, and it is important that this is the case, that the Steel Corporation's policy excludes price changes. The attitude of the corporation has been made plain under similar circumstances several times in the past, but it is worth while at the present juncture to point to it afresh. An orderly reduction in prices when lower prices would mean increased business would not be a departure from the recognized policy of the corporation but a step in harmony with it. This fact will be particularly worth remembering in the event that next week's canvassing of the steel trade situation prompts the leading interest in the industry to follow this week's cut in bars by a general price revision.

Among the interesting items in yesterday's information bearing on financial affairs were the April reports of the Harriman lines. In the Northwest railroad traffic has lately been quieter than in most other sections of the country, which is reflected among other ways in the fact that lately the number of idle freight cars in that territory reached the highest number of the year. On the Harriman lines, and the movement is not confined to these, operating expenses are being reduced, but when the detailed April figures are published within the next few days it may be expected that they will show that such decreases as have been made in expenses have been due principally to curtailment of maintenance expenditures and this has not been sufficient to prevent a loss in net. Speaking of the Western railroads generally, the managements are not finding it possible, despite the decrease in gross receipts, to reduce any if at all the cost of handling traffic. Savings are being effected, however, by reducing maintenance charges below the large sums devoted to this purpose last year and in earlier years. So large were those outlays that maintenance expenditures can now for the time being be reduced without impairing the condition of the railroads. The explanation of the inability of railroad systems as well organized as the Harriman lines to lower transportation expenses in the face of decreased gross earnings is the familiar one of increased rates of wages which were allowed last year, when the hope was still entertained that advances in freight rates would be allowed. Permanent relief from high operating expenses cannot be had by cumulative reductions in maintenance expenditures, but for the moment such reductions on lines which have been highly maintained in the past can safely be availed of to lessen the effect of decreased gross earnings.

OPEN TALK OF WAR IN FREIGHT RATES

RAILROAD HEADS CONFER

All-day session of railroad Presidents in the rooms of the Trunk Line Association yesterday ended without any agreement being reached between the insurgent Delaware & Hudson and the Erie, and the other trunk lines. President Underwood of the Erie left the meeting at the noon recess, but President Loree of the Delaware & Hudson stayed to the end.

The meeting was called to decide on what action to take in regard to the new traffic route to Chicago and points further west to be opened up on June 15 by the Delaware & Hudson and Erie, which have discovered a new way in which to avail themselves of a 23-cent differential on westbound business. It developed considerable bitterness between the two factions, and the session ended without any provision for calling another meeting, but it was said afterward that the Presidents would convene again in the latter part of next week.

Some of the railroad men who are objecting to the new rate took a gloomy view of the probable result of the new arrangement. W. H. Truesdale, President of the Lackawanna, said that unless the two roads yield, a costly rate war will be declared by the other members of the Trunk Line Association.

"It looks like a general decrease in rates," said Mr. Truesdale. "The Erie and the Delaware & Hudson refused to recede from their position to-day, and the other roads are all acting together. It is another case of eleven jurors wrong and one right.

"If the two systems persist in maintaining their right to establish a fifty-two-cent rate on Chicago business we may cut the existing all-rail rate from 75 cents to 62 cents and put in a fifty-two-cent rate for the rail and lake route. The new route up the Hudson is only one day slower than the rail and lake trip. If the cut is forced upon us it will mean a general loss to the trunk lines, and none of them will make money. The Delaware & Hudson proposition is wholly unjustifiable. When the fifty-two-cent differential rate was allowed it was made to fit all specific cases in which it has been used; it never contemplated such an arrangement as has now been made.

"It is hard to see how the Erie expects to profit by linking up with the Hudson Navigation Company and the Delaware & Hudson. It means splitting that road's haul in two, with the addition of several terminal allowances."

Charles F. Daly, Vice President of the New York Central, also declared himself in favor of a reduction by all of the other lines to meet the new rate. "It appears to me that the railroads other than the Erie and D. & H. will be obliged to cut rates to meet the proposed arrangement," he said. "The situation was not changed as the result of to-day's meeting."

On the other side of the controversy, a President who refused to let his name be used said: "This rate was initiated by the D. & H., and other roads connecting with them can enter into the same arrangement with the Erie. The New York Central has taken advantage of this differential in carrying freight to Hudson, N. Y., by river, and thence over the Rutland to Ogdensburg. No one found any objection to that. As a matter of fact the differential is only good in the open navigation season, and even then the shallowness of the Hudson near Albany makes it impossible to run a heavy freight business over that route."

C. McCain, chairman of the Trunk Line Association, who attended the meeting, laughed at the suggestion of a rate war. "The day for that has passed," he said. "The executives will get together again next week and reach an understanding. It is just one of those matters which has to be threshed out."

Presidents Brown of the New York Central, McCrea of the Pennsylvania, and Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio, were not in New York yesterday, and their absence was said to have prevented any definite decision. Besides President Underwood and Loree, there were present at the meeting W. G. Besler, vice-president of the Central of New Jersey, W. H. Truesdale, president of the Lackawanna, J. B. Thomas, president of the Lehigh Valley; B. Thayer, vice-president of the Pennsylvania, C. F. Daly, vice-president of the New York Central, and J. Childs, vice-president of the New York, Ontario & Western.

A committee representing business men of Philadelphia came to this city to oppose the new route, on the ground that it would leave that city almost isolated. Railroad men who are eagerly watching the situation say that there is little likelihood that the disagreement will be carried to the point of cutting rates. Attention was called to the fact that once the trunk lines put a lower rate to Chicago into effect it would be a difficult matter to gain the Inter-State Commerce Commission's consent to a restoration of the present charges when the roads had settled their differences. If the commission allows the Delaware & Hudson-Erie 62-cent rate to go into effect it will require a thirty days' notice to get it withdrawn. It was suggested yesterday that representatives of the other trunk lines would go to Washington to-day to urge the commission to refuse to allow the new rate to become operative on the ground that it would upset all the existing differentials and create injurious confusion.

The present trouble arose from the filing with the Inter-State Commerce Commission on May 13 of a new 52-cent rate to Chicago by the Delaware & Hudson and Erie. The standard rate on first-class business is 75 cents per 100 pounds by the all-rail route. Freight going by rail to Buffalo and lake to Chicago gets a 62-cent rate, while that going by water to Norfolk and rail from there pays 65. The Grand Trunk and Rutland have enjoyed a 52-cent rate by way of the Hudson River, rail, and lake, and it is this differential which the roads are now trying to take advantage of. A large proportion of westbound business takes the differential routes. Of the merchandise forwarded to Chicago from this city in March the Erie got 13.5 per cent., as compared with 19.9 per cent. going by the Maybynds, 19.7 per cent. by the New York Central, 14.9 per cent. by the Lackawanna, and 15 per cent. by the Lehigh Valley.

It is possible that the trunk lines will agree to let the new rate go into effect for a trial period of ninety days, to see how it affects the movement of business.

COFFEE.

Trade prices were 3 to 8 points higher with sales on the call of 7,750 bags. Bears then hammered values to below the previous close, but there was a moderate rally late, and final figures were steady at 5 points decline to 3 points advance with total sales of 40,750 bags. Havre closed at ⅛f decline to ⅛f advance, while Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ pfennig lower. No cables from Brazil, owing to holiday. Spot coffee firmer for Rio grades, No. 7 7½c.

Weekly Failure Report.

Bradstreet's reports 236 business failures in the United States during the week against 235 for the previous week and 205, 263, and 142 for the corresponding weeks of 1910 to 1907. The Middle States had 87; New England, 33; Southern, 40; Western, 37; Northwestern, 14, and Far West, 25. Canada had 18, against 27 for the preceding week. About 86 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less and 11 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—Conforming with a typical weather market, wheat values fluctuated nervously during the session, but on the whole bullish enthusiasm showed a diminution, and under the restraint of profit-taking sales values barely managed to hold their own. Predictions of showers and cooler weather in many sections of the belt were largely instrumental in the abatement of excitement on the buying side, but, pending the extent of this expected precipitation, bears were cautious. There is also a belief that present bulls in May may take it upon themselves to maintain values in July, temporarily at least, for the purpose of reducing their holdings of cash wheat at a level as attractive as possible.

The buying movement of Thursday was resumed at the outset of yesterday's session, and although cables were a little disappointing, they were not especially gratifying to bears. Foreign advices told of an official French report which was slightly bullish. The figures given were misleading, but an analysis by Broomhall was that indications favored a crop of 20 per cent. over that of last year, but about 10 per cent. below the average. Estimates for world's wheat exports were also slightly in favor of buyers, although a liberal outward movement is expected, probably 14,250,000 bushels, which would compare with slightly over 16,000,000 last week and nearly 12,000,000 a year ago. A private cable from Budapest claimed frost in Hungary, but otherwise foreign crop information was not of an unfavorable character.

Naturally with the dry-weather map yesterday morning further damage complaints were received from the Southwestern and some Western States, but, on the other hand, advices from the American Northwest and Canada continue of an optimistic tenor, and certainly should prove at least a partial offsetting factor to the deterioration messages from a comparatively limited area at present. The Canadian Pacific Railway estimated the acreage in the Canadian Northwest at 9,730,000 acres, against 8,375,000 last year, when the crop produced aggregated to 150,000,000 bushels.

There was no improvement noted in cash demand, and the flour situation was described as extremely dull. Export business amounted to nine loads of Manitoba at outports. Bradstreet's exports for the week were 2,964,000 bushels, against 3,560,000 last week and 3,594,000 bushels a year ago; since July 1, 111,000,000 bushels, against 134,000,000 bushels last year and 150,000,000 bushels two years ago. Cash No. 2 red quoted at 97¼c, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.7¼; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.03½.

CORN.—Continued light offerings from the country restricted selling, and although the extent of the advance has interfered with foreign inquiry and checked cash business somewhat, sentiment is bullish on the theory that the market is on a supply-and-demand basis, which at present is claimed to be in favor of holders. There was heavy short covering during the day, credited to a prominent Western speculator, although near the close profit-taking sales resulted in some recession. Best authorities agree that the crop is not suffering from the drought complained of in wheat and oats circles. Bradstreet's exports for the week were 735,000 bushels, against 938,000 bushels last week, and 345,000 bushels a year ago; since July 1, 46,000,000 bushels, against 27,000,000 bushels last year. Export sales were ten loads at outports. Cash No. 2 quoted at 62c for export.

OATS.—As in wheat, there was further nervousness over weather conditions, the forecast for showers resulting in considerable selling. A good demand, however, was witnessed from the shorts. B. W. Snow sent much bullish crop news. Country offerings continue limited, but are expected to increase on the bulge. Decreased acreage predictions were numerous. Cash standards quoted at 42½c; No. 2 white, 43c, and No. 3 white, 42c.

PROVISIONS.—Smaller receipts of hogs than expected induced considerable short covering early, but on the advance profit-taking sales were met, serving to eradicate a good part of the gain. Packers were not largely interested. Cash demand is from fair to good.

COTTONSEED OIL.

In conjunction with an absence of support from refining interests were advices claiming that consuming demand had been partially checked by the higher values. Some claims were made that compounders could not profitably buy loose oil and stearine at current quotations and sell their product. Undoubtedly concessions granted in the tallow market had a sympathetic effect, although for several weeks tallow has been a great deal cheaper than cottonseed oil, soapmakers naturally giving preference to it, excepting when the cottonseed oil was absolutely necessary. Crude quoted at 5.60@5.73c. Future quotations follow:

COTTON.

Continued pressure in the near positions is exerting a bearish influence in many quarters. Yesterday's sharp decline in those options was credited to more or less bull liquidation, with stop loss orders encountered and a trailing long interest shaken out. While there is a diversity of belief as to the amount of cotton being sold by the bulls, it is quite evident that their efforts to support prices are not great. July at the low point yesterday was more than 90 points below the high of the season, and for the first time since the recent upward movement culminated short covering was in fair volume. There did not appear to be any important news in reference to the break, and although the Southern spot situation is quiet, and for the bullish aspect for several days it just appears to be attracting attention. Demand there is more quiet, which is natural in view of the curtailment in America at present, while Manchester official advices indicate some slackening abroad. The improved trade conditions talked of at present naturally refer to next season.

During the turmoil in the near positions new crop months showed latent strength. Many favorable crop advices were received. The Journal of Commerce advices on Mississippi and Louisiana being slightly bearish. The percentage in Mississippi was given at about 5 points over last year when it was 75.7, although the acreage increase is relatively small owing to fears of the boll weevil. In Louisiana condition is placed at 10 points above a year ago, when it was 71.5. Naturally the boll weevil is also a factor in this State, although at present the plant is said to be looking good. No relief, however, has been accorded to the drought-suffering sections of the Carolinas, Oklahoma, parts of Texas from where unfavorable advices receive their origin.

Some interests were inclined to attribute the liquidation to-day as due to expectations of a favorable bureau report on June 2, although with the steadiness of the new crop positions this explanation was obviously inadequate. There were rumors that the National Ginners' Association had issued a report privately giving a fair increase in acreage and a condition higher than that of 1902, which at that time was 95.1 per cent. Week-end figures were a trifle less bullish than anticipated, bearing out predictions that unless foreigners show more interest statistics for the balance of the season will make a somewhat less favorable showing for holders. The into sight was 51,000 bales, against 68,000 last week and 62,000 last year, since Sept. 1, 11,416,000 bales, against 9,980,000 last year. Spinners' takings were 157,000, against 152,000 last year. The visible supply of cotton is now 1,955,000 bales, 17,000 bales below that of last year. Decrease for the week was 106,000 bales, against a reduction of 123,000 last week and a shrinkage of 90,000 last year. Exports to date are 7,140,000 bales, against 5,510,000 last year.

Southern spots were unchanged to ⅛c decline; locally, spot cotton was quiet, and 10 points decline at Norfolk.

TRACTION SHARES STRONG

Advance Both in Chicago and Philadelphia—Copper and Other Shares Steady in Boston.

A generally firmer tone was shown in the out-of-town stock markets yesterday, some good gains being recorded in Chicago and on some of the other Exchanges. The failure of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company's employes to declare for a strike caused an increase in the demand for the stocks involved, part of which was reported to be covering of short contracts. Union Traction opened at 46½, compared with 45¾ at the close of the previous day. Rapid Transit rallied also. Cambria Steel recovered moderately, despite the fact that the company has met the cut in steel bars.

The elevated railway issues displayed a stronger tone in the Chicago market. Metropolitan common gained a point, the preferred almost 2, and South Side added more than 2, and Northwestern a good fraction. Other Chicago issues displayed generally a firm tone, with only fractional changes in most. Hart, Schaffner & Marx preferred on the Curb advanced from 102¾ to 103¾, comparing with sales at 102 on Thursday.

The Boston market was steady. Amalgamated gained a half point there, and North Butte advanced a fraction, to 33¾. United Railways income bonds in Baltimore eased off fractionally following the decision of the Directors to pay the June interest in cash instead of in funding 5s. This action had been anticipated. Maryland Trust shares continue strong on expectation of action to retire the preferred stock of the company.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Several deals of an interesting nature contributed to an active day in the realty market yesterday. The announcement that Harry Payne Whitney was the buyer of the former Charles W. Morse house, at 728 Fifth Avenue, adjoining his Fifty-seventh Street residence, directed marked attention to the business growth in the Fifty-seventh Street locality. Mr. Whitney sold the property to Mr. Morse somewhat over four years ago under a ten years' restriction for residential uses. Mr. Whitney can now abrogate the restriction. The acquisition of the Morse dwelling gives him a Fifth Avenue frontage of 100.6 feet and 125 feet on the street. The Morse house was sold a few days ago by John N. Golding for John E. Berwind, who bought the property in at foreclosure last season.

In the Times Square district the announcement of another purchase by Philip Lewisohn, who bought the Mendelssohn Hall plot on the preceding day, lent credence to the rumor that a big commercial structure would soon rise on the site. Mr. Lewisohn has added to his Fortieth Street purchase by acquiring the two lots in the rear, at 114 and 116 West Forty-first Street, a plot 40 by 98.9 feet, giving him a total plotage of 80 feet on Fortieth Street and 40 feet on Forty-first Street, practically 12,000 square feet. The plot just secured has been bought from the Middle States Realty Company, R. H. Davis and J. B. Streeton. Frederick Fox & Co., who made the Mendelssohn Hall deal, were the brokers. Mr. Lewisohn has acquired this extensive plot for investment, and negotiations, it is learned, are now under way for a quick resale of the parcels to a prominent builder who will improve the property with a high-grade loft and office building. The Forty-first Street plot adjoins the Comedy Theatre on the east, thus assuring the prospective loft of well-lighted space on that side. Two old houses are now on the plot.

A rumor that the old church property on the northwest corner of Amsterdam Avenue and 155th Street had been sold was denied by ex-Corporation Counsel John Whalen, who represents the syndicate controlling the parcel. Negotiations have been pending for some time for a sale, and are still in progress.

$450,000 Trade in Loft Zone.

The Fleischmann Brothers Company has sold through Mark Rafalsky & Co. the new twelve-story loft structure at 126 to 130 West Twenty-second Street, on plot 55.8 by 98.9, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues. The buyer, Henry R. Drowne, gives in part payment 147 West Thirty-sixth Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 20 by 98.9, which has not changed hands since 1856. The entire transaction involves $450,000. The sellers purchased the Twenty-second Street plot in May, 1910, and have since erected the building, and leased all but two floors.

Apartment Sold Before Completion.

The demand for apartment house property for investment in the Morningside Heights section was clearly shown yesterday in the sale of the nine-story elevator apartment house on the south side of 115th Street, 175 feet west of Broadway. The structure, which is rapidly nearing completion, is owned by the Carnegie Construction Company, of which Charles Newmark is President.

It occupies a plot 50 by 100, and according to rumor was sold for about $250,000 to an investor. There have been several sales and resales in the vicinity during the past week or ten days.

One of the largest deals that has been recorded for some time in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn has just been concluded by Alexander Selkin in conjunction with D. Schoen, who have sold for the Peoples Union Realty Company to the Brown-Weiss Realties two new four-story apartment houses on the northeast corner of Beverly Road and Twenty-first Street, occupying a plot 100 by 100 by 118. In part payment the Peoples Union Realty Company take a tract of 300 acres in the Adirondacks known as the De Bar estate. The values of the properties involved in the deal aggregate about $250,000.

Buys Sixty-Two Brooklyn Lots.

The Gollner Construction Company has purchased a tract of sixty-two lots on East Eighteenth Street near Flatlands Avenue for immediate improvement. The consideration was about $36,000.

Plans are now being prepared for twenty-four single family, two-story brick houses to be completed in November and to be retailed at about $5,300 each.

This plot of lots adjoins the large parcel recently purchased by Edward J. McCormack and constitutes the fourth sale in this section within as many months.

Wonderful Hearing Devices

is now being successfully operated in over 400 Churches throughout the country.
It enables people who are hard of hearing to distinguish every word of Sermons and Prayers, even in the rear pews of the Church.
This feature has added greatly to the attractiveness of these Churches for deaf people and their friends—they are showing it in their attendance and patronage.
Is also made for personal use and may be tested before it is purchased.

THE TURNER INTERIOR TELEPHONE is the most dependable, convenient and efficient Interior Telephone that modern science, combined with many years of experience in Electrical hearing devices, can produce.
It will work efficiently and persistently all the time—there is almost nothing to get out of order.
No mouthpiece—no germs—you may talk at 2 feet distance and be heard perfectly.

THE DICTOGRAPH
is the Instrument used by Detective Burns in recent famous cases to get evidence, etc. The daily papers have covered this fully in the past two weeks.
It also saves a vast amount of time to the busiest man in the modern office, bank, or institution.
He may dictate letters to his stenographer in the next room, or consult with a department-head four floors away, and not stand or sit within 10 feet of the instrument.

THE GENERAL ACOUSTIC CO., K. M. Turner, President.

A Novel Way of Spending a Vacation which has been devised by Capt. A. G. Bode of Great Neck, L. I., is his traveling camp Summer school, which furnishes recreation for young men while at the same time giving them instruction in pleasant doses. A varied program is arranged by the Captain and includes time to be spent on the salt water, in the mountains, and traveling along the road in a gypsy wagon. There is opportunity in this tour for enjoyment of every pastime known to outdoors, and many youths of Manhattan and Jersey are making haste to avail themselves of the opportunity. Effective Help Wanted Advertisements

¶ An effective Help Wanted advertisement in The New York Times, fifty words for one dollar, is read by people of discrimination and therefore reaches the very class those in need of assistance in offices or stores are eager to employ.

¶ Advertisers in The New York Times are saved the trouble of sifting the wheat from the chaff, as only desirable applicants reply to advertisements in The Times.

SHOOFLY SQUAD OUT; 3 PLATOONS COMING

Waldo Also Rejoices Headquarters Staff by Giving Shorter Hours and Half-Holidays.

MAY MAKE O'KEEFFE DEPUTY

In Place of Driscoll—Johnson in That Event Would Likely Be Made Fire Commissioner.

Police Commissioner Waldo has abolished the "shoofly" squad, which under the régime of former Commissioners Baker and James C. Cropsey made itself objectionable to the other men of the department by spying on their actions and reporting minor violations. Also the department is soon to return to the three-platoon system.

It was reported yesterday, furthermore, that Arthur J. O'Keeffe, Deputy Fire Commissioner is likely to be appointed First Deputy Police Commissioner to succeed Clement J. Driscoll, and that Joseph Johnson, Jr., now acting Fire Commissioner, will probably be named as Fire Commissioner early next week.

Mr. O'Keeffe served as Deputy Police Commissioner under Gen. Bingham. Several days ago it was reported that Fire Deputies O'Keeffe and Johnson were running a close race for the Fire Commissionership. Should the present plan of making Mr. O'Keeffe First Deputy Police Commissioner and Mr. Johnson head of the Fire Department be carried out it will solve what otherwise might have been a difficult choice.

Commissioner Waldo had nothing to say on the subject yesterday. He was too busy effecting changes in the Department. In addition to the abolition of the "shoofly" squad, he ordered shorter hours for the Headquarters force and began perfecting arrangements for changing from the five to the three platoon system. Under Cropsey the force at Headquarters worked from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock at night. In fact, many of the clerks were often obliged to work until 10 and 11 o'clock at night. One of his rules was that a clerk must be in each department at Headquarters until after the Commissioner and all his deputies had left the building. Commissioner Waldo gave orders yesterday that the Headquarters force report at 9 o'clock in the morning and quit at 5 P. M. He also informed the heads of bureaus that the office staff get a half holiday on Saturdays. When this change was learned, there was rejoicing among the Headquarters men.

Although no definite announcement has been made, the three-platoon system will be put into effect, it was learned yesterday, probably next week. There is at present pending in the Legislature a bill calling for the three-platoon system for cities of the first class. It was learned yesterday that, owing to rumors of a large "acceleration" fund having been raised to insure the passage of the measure, several legislators who favor the bill are reluctant to vote for it. According to the story that is going the rounds both here and in Albany, $100,000 has been raised through contributions by policemen of this city. State Senators Anthony J. Griffin and Stephen J. Stilwell of the Bronx were quoted yesterday as saying they had heard of the "acceleration" fund, and that the report had embarrassed their action.

"I have been told by a patrolman of my acquaintance that he gave $20 in the interest of the three platoons," said Senator Griffin, "and he supposed that other patrolmen had done the same thing. If 5,000 policemen did that there ought to be a fund of $100,000 somewhere for the passage of the bill. So far as I have heard, or could learn, this money has not reached Albany, nor has a representative of it appeared there, to my knowledge. The very report that it has been put up, however, will be sufficient to smirch men who vote for the three platoons. I would like to vote for the bill, for I have always favored that system for policemen of this city. But must I rest under the suspicion that this fund will throw over the friends of the policemen?"

Senator Stilwell said that Senator Griffin had explained to him what he had heard and that he suggested that a resolution be offered in the State Senate for an inquiry.

In order to get the views of experienced men in the department as to the advisability of inaugurating the three-platoon system, Commissioner Waldo met yesterday representatives of the five associations of the Police Department. These associations were the organizations of the doormen, the patrolmen, the Sergeants, the Lieutenants, and the Captains. From each association he learned that the majority of men on the force favored the three-platoon plan, which would give the men eight hours on duty, eight hours on reserve, and eight hours off duty, with a day off in every five.

On Monday the Commissioner will make the promotions which were to have been made on Thursday. He will advance several Captains to the grade of Inspector. Twelve Lieutenants will be made Captains, forty-four Sergeants will be come Lieutenants, and seventy-nine policemen will be made Sergeants.

It was reported at headquarters yesterday that the Captains to be made Inspectors are likely to be those who were reduced from Inspectorships after the passage of the Bingham bill. They now receive an Inspector's salary. These men are Capts. John Weigand, Donald Grant, Sylvester Baldwin, George Molusky, and James Hussy.

Another new rule which the Commissioner will put into effect to-day will be the withdrawal of policemen from outside the disorderly houses and gambling places and send them back to patrol duty. One by one the new Commissioner is revoking the orders which were put in force by Commissioner Cropsey.

It was also reported at Headquarters yesterday that a large number of policemen who applied for retirement several months ago, but were unable to obtain a ruling on their cases, will be allowed to retire shortly. These men have been in the department twenty-five years, but have not reached the age of 55 years. Commissioner Waldo, it was said, will retire them on the strength of their long service.

Among other changes considered by Commissioner Waldo is a plan to have an advisory board of five Inspectors and Captains at the head of the Detective Bureau. At present the Detective Bureau is in charge of Inspector Russell. The Commissioner believes that the efficiency of such a bureau might be increased by the establishment of an advisory board. Inspector Russell is said to share the views of the new Commissioner.

Still another plan for restoring harmony to the force without impairing its efficiency is being considered by the Commissioner. It is to allow mutual transfers from one district to another. The policeman, if this plan is adopted, will be allowed to choose the district he most prefers and swap places with a policeman of another district. Such a changing around of policemen will have to be effected gradually, however. It will allow several thousand policemen to have their beats in the precinct in which they live.

The "strong arm" squad in the Detective Bureau is to be increased. This squad, which is composed of some of the strongest detectives in the department, has been assigned to break up the tough gangs which hang around corners. The Commissioner thinks well of their work.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission, which refused to sanction the forty-eight appointments of policemen made by Mr. Cropsey several days before his retirement, met yesterday to look into the evidence on which Mr. Cropsey passed over forty-four men who were listed as eligible for appointment. The names of these forty-four applicants and a ruling on each will be put in Commissioner Waldo's hands to-day.

ADMITS MURDER LONG AGO.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Penn., May 26.—"Abe" Martin, a negro circus hanger on, arrested to-day on a charge of disorderly conduct, boasted that he had once killed a man near this town. Later he confessed to the murder of Edward Mull 12 years ago because of threats made by Mull. His recital of contemporaneous events made an apparently clear case.

Mull was shot in the hamlet of McGovern as he sat with a party of friends. Martin was suspected and a wide search was made for him for several years. He told the officers that the furthest from the scene of the crime he had been in the twelve years was 30 miles. Most of the time he was in Pittsburg and vicinity, where he was employed in mills. He declared he had spent several weeks at a stretch in Washington, and once had a room near the central police station.

STICK TO ARTHUR H. MURPHY.

Arthur H. Murphy, the Tammany leader of the Thirty-fourth Assembly District, in the Bronx, who resigned with the other Tammany Bronx leaders some time ago, as a result of the evident opposition of the local organization to the bill before the Legislature to create a separate county in the Bronx Borough, presented his resignation to the members of his club at a meeting held last night at its headquarters at Boston Road and 167th Street.

The resignation was tabled on the motion of a member who was supported by many others, who made speeches in which they declared that Mr. Murphy should not be allowed to retire from the leadership in any such manner. Steven Nugent, who has been Mr. Murphy's right hand man in his Assembly District for a long time, and who it has been declared, would run against him at the primaries this Fall, made a speech in which he said that he was still with Mr. Murphy and would not oppose him in any way.

SURGEON GETS PHTHISIS.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, May 26.—The slipping of his scalpel while performing an operation upon a woman, inflicting a slight cut on his finger, has resulted in Dr. J. W. Schlieder, a prominent surgeon, being removed to-day to the State Sanitarium in the Blue Ridge Mountains, suffering from tuberculosis, with which he became infected from the wound.

The operation was a desperate one, performed in a vain attempt to save the life of the woman. The disease, which has infected Dr. Schlieder, has rapidly developed, and appears of a malignant type. From a strong healthy man weighing about 170 pounds, Dr. Schlieder became weak and emaciated, and has lost over forty pounds within a month. Tuberculosis developed a week after the operation.

SOLDIER SENTENCED TO DIE.

Week of July 11 Set for Legal Killing of Corporal Spohr.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 26.—Corporal Lawrence Spohr of the United States Artillery, stationed at Fort Slocum, who was convicted yesterday of the murder of Rosa O'Toole, was sentenced today by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing in the week beginning July 11. As he was being taken to Sing Sing, Spohr said:

"I am sorry that the shooting occurred. I am now sentenced to die, and like a soldier I shall face my end. I had no intention of shooting Rosa O'Toole because I loved her better than my own life. I am now paying the penalty of the love I bore for her."

Charles H. Noxon, Spohr's lawyer, said he would carry an appeal to the Court of Appeals.

DETROIT, Mich., May 26.—A black hand satchel containing $50,000 in diamonds and jewelry, lost on Jefferson Avenue on May 11 by Mrs. Waldo A. Avery, wife of a wealthy local business man, was last night restored to her husband by Anthony A. Selewsky, who says he found the jewels a short time after they were lost. Selewsky, a local bicycle dealer, 30 years old, will receive a reward of $1,000.

Won't Examine Foxhall Keene.

Foxhall Keene's plea to have an order for his examination before trial of a suit against him by the Michelin Tire Company was denied yesterday by Supreme Justice Giegerich. The company is suing for $1,290 as a balance on Keene's account with it. Keene put in a counter claim for $290. He said that when he was entered for the Vanderbilt Cup race in 1908 representatives of the company had offered him two sets of tires free and other supplies at a substantial discount if he would use its tires in the race. He asserts he discovered that he had overpaid the company.

Was Mayor Low Right or Wrong?

Nine years ago the City had to determine whether the Brooklyn subway should be built by the Interborough Company or by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

The Honorable Seth Low was then Mayor. In voting to award the contract to the Interborough, Mayor Low said:

"I stand here as the representative of the entire City of New York, and my vote will be cast upon the best consideration that I can give to the general interest of the entire municipality. I propose to vote in favor of this resolution. In doing so I think it is due to my friends in Brooklyn that I should state clearly that it seems to me it is in their own interest that I should vote in this way.

"My old fellow-townsmen will not believe, I know, that I would cast my vote against the best interests of my birthplace. Brooklyn twice elected me her Mayor, and again gave me a large majority last fall.

"If the Brooklyn Rapid Transit bid should be accepted it would be necessary to pay two fares to ride the length of this road.

"Every citizen would be outraged if he could not ride from one end to the other of a road built by the City for a single fare.

"I believe that the unification of the City depends on making it possible to go from one part to any other of it for one fare."

The Interborough built the Brooklyn subway and has operated it since as a part of the main line for one five-cent fare. It now offers to build other subways in Brooklyn and make them all a part of one system for one fare. What Mayor Low said in 1902 was true then and is true now.
